AUTHOR'S NOTE.

The title page shows what this book is. As a second edition of T History of Old Tennent it is a rewriting of the first, much the same matter and arrangement ; but corrections have been made, and very m new material added, with a few changes in form throughout. Als number of new pictures and maps will be found in this print ; but author regrets that, though seeking for it, he was unable to find and obt a picture of Rev. Robert Roy. The author has performed this work a his busy pastoral and ministerial duties, and can lay no claim to stud elegance of language. He has sought rather, with much care and revi to be exact and accurate, but even in this respect does not claim that book is absolutely perfect, for unknown mistakes might be discover Nor is it claimed that the book is exhaustively complete, for the study one that is almost interminable especially as to family history. T author is much indebted to Rev. Allen H. Brown, Rev. Henry G. Sm and many others for assistance afforded, materials furnished, and for lo granted ; and especially to James Steen, Eatontown, N. J., for aid in g ealogical research. To the List of Authorities the reader is referred further study in Old Tennent history ;—and to these authorities the aut hereby makes due acknowledgment for their invaluable help. Trust that the book may prove of some value and interest to students in its li it is sent out on its way.

HISTORY OF THE OLD TENNENT CHURCH.

CHAPTER I.

ORGANIZATION.

Near the center of the rich agricultural county of Monmouth in New Jersey stands an old church building of colonial style and imposing appearance, attracting the attention of passengers in trains on the nearby Pennsylvania railroad, and the interest of constant visitors who enter its doors and enroll their names in the register on the church desk, and who usually come by carriage on the Freehold–Englishtown road crossing the Manalapan and Patton's Corner road.

This sanctuary, now widely known as Old Tennent, is a relic and a witness, a land-mark and a monument. It is a treasured heritage from stern and sturdy servants of God transmitted to their descendants through a number of generations, testifying to the history of a rugged faith in the eternal word of the Lord and of a noble and steadfast adherence to principle. This house is the proof positive of the sacred past speaking to the observing present. That splendid profound document, the Declaration of Independence, a parchment carefully preserved under glass is fading in its ink, and possibly will soon need to be deposited in a dark case to preserve the clear strong chirography of its precious page ; but Old Tennent edifice was standing twenty-five years before the Declaration was written, and through all the years since has stood exposed to the weather of storm and sun and wind, straight and strong to-day, and good for many years more if with God's providence her children will love her with faithful care.

As has been said this old building stands for an old organization or church, which has more than once changed its title or designating name. The present corporate name of the church is "The First Presbyterian Church of the County of Monmouth." Its earliest formation is called the "Old Scots Church." Afterwards, for more than one hundred years it was known as the "Freehold Church," and under this name it acquired its reputation. But in memory of the saintly John Tennent, and of the long and efficient services of his brother William Tennent, Jr., as pastors, it took the name of the "Tennent Church." By this name it has been enrolled in the lists of the General Assembly since 1859. This avoids confusing this church with the one organized in Freehold village in 1838, and which now is incorporated "The First Presbyterian Church of Freehold, N. J." And finally, from the dignity of its great age and its interesting historical association it has been colloquially styled "The Old Tennent Church." Thus following the successive stages of its history it might consistently be called The Scots–Freehold–Tennent Church. And though designated by all these different names its history is that of a continuous organization.

The history of a rural church is largely composed of an account of its organization, a description of its edifices, a record of its pastors, a story of its worshiping families, and a narrative of its local events. In this respect an increasing interest gathers around Old Tennent, ecclesiastical, genealogical and historical. That Old Tennent had an origin, and somehow in process of time an organization, is certain. But it is impossible to make a precise, correct, and authentic statement as to just when, where and how the organization was effected. Probably it will never thus be exactly known. Conjectures can easily be made and appear very plausible; but they are sometimes misleading, and sometimes diminish the credibility of a historian's page. Inferences are of value only so far as the reasons or arguments for them are set forth by the presentation of pertinent facts. In this strain much of the story of Old Tennent's organization must be told, for in the absence of positive statement there are nevertheless some relevant facts from which inferences may be drawn that will form a story that approaches being irrefutable. These facts are:

First: Old Tennent was of Scotch origin. Freehold township was largely settled by Scotch people, which suggests Old Tennent's extraction. But this fact is settled by the explicit statement of William Tennent, Jr., writing from Freehold, Oct. 11, 1744, to Rev. Mr. Prince of Boston. In that letter he describes the character of the revival at that time in Freehold, and he makes this historical paragraph, —"This place lies southwest from New York, and is distant from it about fifty miles. It was the first in the East Jersey, on the west side of the Raritan river, which was settled with a gospel ministry. This was owing, under God, to the agency of some Scotch people that came to it; among whom there was none so painful in this blessed undertaking as one Walter Ker, who, in the year 1685, for his faithful and conscientious adherence to God and his truth, as professed by the Church of Scotland, was there apprehended and sent to this country, under a sentence of perpetual banishment. By which it appears that the devil and his instruments lost their aim in sending him from home, where it is unlikely he could ever have been so serviceable to Christ's kingdom as he has been here. He is yet alive, and blessed be God, he is flourishing in his old age, being in his 88th year." At the close of this letter Mr. Tennent's church officers add, "ATTESTATION to the preceding Account by the Ruling Elders and Deacons of the Congregation of Freehold. "We the subscribers, Ruling Elders and Deacons of the Presbyterian congregation of Freehold, having had perfect knowledge of the circumstances of this place, some of us from the first settling of it, and others of a long time, do give our testimony to the truth in general, of the above letter of our Rev. pastor. 'May the Lord make the same of use for carrying on his glorious work begun in these lands, and make the name of the dearest Jesus glorious from the rising to the setting sun.

Walter Ker,	Robert Cumming,
David Rhea,	John Henderson,
William Ker,	Samuel Ker.

Freehold, in New Jersey, October 11th, 1744." (Log College Apndx.) Thus Wm. Tennent's statement was founded on the testimony of living witnesses, Walter Ker in particular, who might be styled The Father of Old Tennent. That the Scotch were persecuted for loyalty to their church is a matter of history. From Wm. Tennent's statement it is not improbable to suppose that more than one that worshiped in the Old Scots meeting house had been a sad witness of such atrocious work as that of Viscount John Graham (Claverhouse) and his dragoons, and of the horrible tortures and dreadful sufferings of the prisoners in the damp and foul Dunottar Castle; and had heard "the piteous prayers" of their Covenanter brethren. (read Wodrow.)

The Covenanters were chiefly Scotch Presbyterians that hated and opposed prelacy. They believed that Christ is the head of the church, and the authority in all true religion, and that no man could usurp these prerogatives. They would not unite in worship that was led and governed by so-called functionaries. Therefore they refused to conform to the zealous effort of King Charles the IInd to impose the rites and modes of prelatic worship upon them. Disobedience to the king's order by these non-conforming Presbyterians was especially manifested in their attendance on "conventicles," or gatherings for worship apart from the established church, and often held in private houses or in retired glens. This opposition to the king's will was the cause of a bitter and bloody persecution of twenty-eight years, from 1660 to 1688. "The Highland Watch, as it was called, was let loose upon the country (Scotland): its inhabitants were spoiled of their goods; cast into prisons, banished, and sold as slaves; and multitudes of them shot in cold blood, and otherwise butchered, sometimes with, and sometimes without, form of law." (Orme.) Some have estimated that during these twenty-eight years about 18,000 people were either banished or put to death.

During the summer of 1685, in the period of the "Killing times" so called, about one hundred men and women were imprisoned in Dunottar Castle, a strong fortress in eastern Scotland, built on a great rock looking out over the North Sea. It is now in ruins. Here these people were shut up in a vault which "was ankle deep in mire, with but one window overlooking the sea. They were without any conveniences for sitting, leaning or lying, and, indeed, so full was the place, that little more than sitting room was afforded. Stifled for want of air, stinted for both food and water * * * * many died, and others became afflicted with diseases." (Whitehead) And when several attempted to escape, some were retaken and subjected to excruciating torture by having matches put between their fingers and kept burning for three hours. The scars of these and other barbarous tortures were carried by the persecuted ones through after life. This reminds one of the story of the "Black Hole" in India, seventy years later. Toward the close of the summer these Dunnottar prisoners were marched down to Leith, most of them on foot, "and their hands tied behind their back with small cords," making a weary journey of sixty-six miles after their dreadful incarceration.

Previous to this, a certain George Scot, laird of Pitlochie, having been fined and imprisoned a number of times for the sake of his religion, determined to sail for the plantations in East Jersey, seeking to find there a refuge from the troublous times in his native land. Permission was granted him by the authorities to pass from the kingdom

"without any Let, Impediment, or Molestation." He chartered a vessel, "the Henry and Francis, of Newcastle, a ship of 350 tons, and twenty great guns, Richard Hutton, master," or captain. Then he publicly announced his purpose of sailing to the colonies, and invited and solicited others who were of his mind, and like him persecuted, to take passage along with him. Scot's project was quite extensive. He put out a volume of 272 pages under the title "The Model of the Government of the Province of East New-Jersey in America; and encouragement for such as design to be concerned there." (read in N. J. Hist. Soc. Collections. Vol. I.) Many joined Scot's company. Most of the Dunottar prisoners, then lying in the tolbooth at Leith, were sentenced to perpetual banishment to America, because they tenaciously and conscientiously held to their religious principles. A considerable portion of them was transferred as a gift to the laird of Pitlochie; that is, he was to carry them to America and there dispose of them so as to receive their passage money. But verily, in this way, he was acting as a quasi deliverer to these poor persecuted and mutilated prisoners.

The vessel set sail from the port of Leith on September 5, 1685, having on board in all about 200 persons, of whom 72 are said to have been banished prisoners. One historian relates how these prisoners suffered on shipboard by being disturbed in their worship under deck by the captain causing great planks to be thrown down among them. The voyage was sadly disastrous. A sickness of virulent fever broke out, especially among the prisoners; but also among the passengers and crew. About 60 people died, and their bodies were committed to the deep. George Scot and his wife were among this number. John Johnstone, son-in-law (to be) to George Scot, took his place in directing the voyage, and in disposing of the so-called prisoners. The captain proposed then to sail to Virginia or to Jamaica; but the winds set toward New Jersey, and there on its shores, probably near Perth Amboy, the vessel finally arrived near the middle of December 1685, after a voyage of about 100 days. Many if not all of the prisoners were, in process of time, cited before the legal authorities of the province, and settlements made for their passage money; after which they went free. Whitehead, in his book "Contributions to East Jersey History" p. 28 & 29, gives the names of nearly one hundred persons that came to New Jersey on the "Henry and Francis" with George Scot's company, and this list may be compared with some names in the early history of Old Scots.

A goodly number of those that came in the ship "Henry and Francis" moved to New England, and some returned to Scotland. Some evidently settled in Monmouth County. Walter Ker, as Whitehead says, "may have been a passenger with Scot." Beyond a doubt some of these passengers and prisoners joined in the formation of the church society of those who finally built the Old Scots meeting house. The name of George Scot, the Scotch Covenanter extraction, the names of the church officers, and the early name of "Free Hill" given to the eminence on which the old building stood, are all in line of the outcome of George Scot's enterprise. It is an exceedingly difficult matter to positively identify persons in the records of the past because of the wide possibility of mistake in making all references to them, in location, chronology and circumstance, corroborate; nevertheless James Steen, in his valuable sketch "New Aberdeen," has unquestionably established the fact that John Johnstone, son-in-law and companion to George Scot on his disastrous voyage, is the same man whose name is mentioned first, as one of the acting trustees in the deed for Old Scots ground given by Alex. Napier 1727:—and therefore his name stands with Walter Ker's as a charter promoter of Old Tennent. In the aforesaid deed the name of Peter Watson is mentioned second as acting trustee for Old Scots. In a letter to his cousin in Aug. 1684, (quoted in Scot s Model) he said "There are here very good religious people. They go under the name of Independents, but are most like the Presbyterians, only they will not receive everybody into their society. We have a great need of good and faithful ministers, and I wish to God, that there would come some over here; they can live as well and have as much as in Scotland, and more than many get. We have none within all the Province of East Jersey except one who is a preacher in Newark; there were one or two preachers more in the province, but they are dead, and now the people they meet together every Sabbath-day and read and pray and sing psalms in their meeting-houses." Steen, in a separate sketch, also identifies this man and points out that his Presbyterian churchly influence in Monmouth County antedated that of Walter Ker; and that his wife's name was Agnes, and he had sons William, Gawen, and David. If that Gawen Watson was the same as the one who married Euphame ——, who owned a pew in Old Tennent for many years, who died Aug. 24, 1771, aged 86 yrs. 8 mos. and was buried in a private grave-plot near Perrineville, and who appears to have had two sons Gawen and Peter, and two daughters Eupheme that married Joseph Ker, and Ann that married Walter Ker, —— then the influence of the longing heart of old Peter Watson, the Scotch Presbyterian, was felt through Old Scots down into Old Tennent, and he may thus be considered a so-called charter associate with Walter Ker and John Johnstone.

And there were others who aided in forming Old Scots about whose names and services we wish we knew more. It is said that in 1855 in the Amboy bay might still have been seen the remains of an old ship named the "Caledonia," which had been commanded by Robert Drummond. Ancestral tradition widely handed down in the Anderson family says that Capt. John Anderson commanded the "Caledonia :" this, of course, may have been at a different time from that in which he commanded the "Unicorn" in the Darien expedition. Dr. Arch. Alexander says in his "Log College" p. 103, "This congregation owed its origin to some Scotch people who were cast on the Jersey shore ; the vessel Caledonia, in which they sailed, having been stranded on our coast." Possibly because of the old and unserviceable condition the Caledonia was deserted presumably in 1715, and a storm breaking its moorings to the Amboy wharf, it drifted away to its wreck. Some people have still preserved relics in the shape of canes &c., made from the timbers of this old vessel. It is supposed that this ship brought emigrants from Scotland as early as 1685, and it is a matter of history that it bore to New Jersey many Scotch families about 1715. Some of these possibly joined with the early worshipers in Old Scots church. And so also some of the settlers that came over with Lord Neil Campbell (brother to the Earl of Argyle) in 1685, or through his instrumentality afterwards, may have had their names enrolled among the Old Scots members, as some of their names favorably compare with early records of the church. (see N. J. Archives. 1st Ser. Vol 21, p. 68. Also Whitehead's "Contributions to East Jersey History" p. 22.)

Later on, the early lists of officers, members, and supporters of Old Tennent discover such family names as evidently indicate the amalgamation of French Huguenot, Reformed Dutch, and English Presbyterian with the Scotch element, which latter at the first predominated. It might also be noticed that Old Tennent is a farmers' church, having been originated for the most part by land-holders or planters, and has always been and is to-day largely composed of husbandman of the soil.

Second: Old Tennent was formed into a church about 1692. This fact is based on a letter by John Woodhull, D. D., dated April 23, 1792, in which he says "The church was formed about an hundred years ago, chiefly by persons from Scotland." (quoted in Hodge's Constl. Hist. Pres. Ch. Part : p. 65.) Here again we have a competent and reliable authority in the character of the man and in the relations of his official position. But his expression is only general, or approximate, and leaves the reader to understand that Old Tennent was formed somewhere about 1692. Possibly Dr. Woodhull did not state the exact date because he did not know it ; and that because there was no exact date : and if there had been, he surely would have known it and would have stated it. Rev. Isaac V. Brown, in a foot-note in his sermon at the funeral of Dr. Woodhull 1824, found authority for saying concerning Old Tennent, "This Congregation was regularly organized, June 3, 1730. Before this, it had nominally existed a short time and enjoyed the Pastoral labours of the Rev. Joseph Morgan" &c. Yet long before this date Old Scots was considered a very church by the County Court ; and from Dr. Hodge we learn that it was the only church at first, in Jersey, belonging to the Philadelphia Presbytery. Rev. D. V. McLean, D. D., in a lecture 1866 on Freehold Church, says "The exact date, however, of the actual organization of the church cannot now (1866) be fixed with our present light on the subject. More thorough investigations, however, it is confidently believed will disclose facts which may enable us to fix the exact date, or at least to approximate very near to it." As Dr. Mc Lean had access to all the old records of Old Tennent before some of them were destroyed by fire in 1869, it appears that the records that were burned could not have stated the date of the organization. But those records may have been the foundation for the statement Dr. McLean makes further on in his lecture, viz. : "The Scotch Presbyterians who settled in Freehold, prized the ordinances of religion so much, that they sacrificed everything rather than surrender them and submitted to bonds, imprisonment, spoiling of their goods and even banishment. Some Ministers had come with them, or about the same time, and were probably living at least temporarily with them ; hence it seems in the highest degree probable that the Freehold congregation was organized very promptly, after the arrival of the Scotch, probably within a year or two, certainly before the year 1690." In this Dr. McLean is evidently making an approximation, but further on he continues in a precise and exact statement, viz. "The first house of worship erected by the church of Freehold was erected cotemporaneously with the gathering to-gether of the congregation, on a rising piece of Ground at a place called Topenamus, near the residence of the late Garret Covenhoven and that church has always to this day been called 'The Scotch Church' or 'Meeting house.' " (in Library of Presbn. Hist. Soc., Phila.) Steen, in his sketch, contends that "the first organization of the old Scots meeting, in all probability was at New Aberdeen (now Matawan) and not on the site of the meeting house of 1705." (p. 4.) And he gives the list of thirty names of men to whom was surveyed and deeded the landing on Matawan Creek 1700, and to almost the same set of men 100 acres laid out on the site of New Aberdeen (Matawan) 1701. (Compare N. J. Arch. 1st. Ser. Vol 21. p. 324 & p. 327.) This list remarkably corresponds with names in Old Scots' early record history, and may afford us some idea of the first Scotch attendants of the church, and also some idea of where their community interests centered. Now possibly Dr. McLean and Mr. Steen may both be considered correct by assuming that the earliest form of church worship for Old Tennent founders was something like the "conventicles" in Scotland, from house to house, that all the region from Shrewsbury to Matawan joined in such services, and that when some worshipers went southwestward and built Old Scots that movement started a distinct congregation by itself : and that the remainder finally developed into Shrewsbury & Matawan congregations. But this must only be taken as a plausible supposition.

Old Scots meeting house was certainly standing 1705 as the Court records show ; but how long before this is not known. By Aug. 3, 1730 it was in such a condition that the congregation determined that it "be Repaired With all the Haste that can be." And also on May 8, 1738 they agreed to "Repair the Doors & Defective posts of the Lower Meetinghouse" (Old Scots), and it "was forthwith Repaired." (in Old Tennent Ch Records.) This would seem to imply that the building had been standing a great many years.

Wm. Tennent says that Walter Ker was the chief instigator in the gathering of the settled church. Walter Ker received a deed for 50 acres "at Topenames" 1689-90 : and in the same year (& adjoining the Topenames plot possibly), he had a deed for 30 acres "of headland." In 1698 he is spoken of in connection with John Reid as being "of Hortencie." It is easy to understand how this stanch Scotchman would early seek to establish a church in his own community. Old Scots stood in Topenamus locality. But the exact date of the building of Old Scots meeting house is involved in doubt, possibly in interminable doubt. Considering all the record statements concerning the fact, and all the deductions based on relevant records, the best that now can be said is that the church was formed about 1692.

In connection with the organization it is in point to study the story of the charter of the church, the Royal charter. There is evidence of the fact that there was a strong desire in the Presbyterian churches of Monmouth County, if not some earnest efforts, for the possession of a charter some ten years and more before it was secured. It was finally effected under an application of three if not four churches associated, viz. : Old Tennent ; Upper Freehold, now called Allentown, organized 1725 ; Shrewsbury formed about 1734 with Middletown and Shark River possibly to be considered as churches united to it in the first pastorate of that place ; and perhaps Cranbury formed as early as 1738. The record book shows that in the first election of trustees under the charter, viz. : on First Tuesday in Oct. 1750 according to the charter provision, Nicholas Stevens was one of the elders that took part. He had been made an elder in Cranbury 1744. The charter was finally secured largely through the strong character and indefatigable efforts of John Henderson, one of Old Tennent's early noblemen. Still treasured among the church's records is the Trustee book which opens its record cotemporaneously with the securing of the charter. On the first pages is found a detailed account of how the charter was obtained, written in John Henderson's beautiful chirography. It is here quoted entire, as follows :—

"A Book of Record, belonging to The Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County Pursuant to their Charter of Incorporation Dated February the 21th 1750-49 in the 23d year of his Majesties Reign——

When Colonel Morris Became Governour of this Province, John Little Esqr. Thinking him to be a Lover of the Civil as well as Religious Priviledges & Liberties of all his Majesties Loyal Subjects & that he the Sd. Little had Considerable Influence with the Governour, Proposed to the Ministers, Elders, Deacons & Brethren of the Several Presbyterian Churches & Congregations in Sd. County to Petition his Excellency for a Charter of Incorporation for Securing of what Estates the Sd. Presbyterians Should Purchass, &c. for Pious & Religious &c. All the English Presbyterians agreed to his Proposal, but the Dutch when Conferred with upon that Affair Refused to Join Saying that they thought their Church Estates Secure enough by Virtue of the Articles of the Surrender of this Country Between England & Holland &c—

Mr. Little by the Consent, Approbation & Desire of Sd. Ministers Elders & Brethren Applied to James Alexander Esqr. and William Smith Esqr. & Gave Fees to Each of them for Councill and a proper Draught of a Petition & a Charter which he got and presented to the Governour before it Should be brought in Form before him———— but the Governr. put both in his pocket & neither Gave Answer neither got Mr. Little the Sd. Draughts Back again untill after Sd. Governours Death—

At Christmas 1748 Upon his Excellency, Governour Belcher's Invitation the Reverd. Willm. Tennent went to Burlington to Preach and John Henderson accompany'd him and in Converse with the Governour they Informed him of the above affair from whose Conversation they took Courage to begin again and a Petition and a Draught of a Charter prepared & the Petition Signed with a large Number of persons of the Presbyterians living & Inhabiting in the County of Monmouth & Waiting untill the Governour & Council Should meet which did not Hapen untill the Month of February Anno Domini 1749-50 when John Little afd. & Stephen Pangburn Esqrs. and Sd. John Henderson were appointed Commissioners to Present Sd. Petition to the Governour & Council and Soliciat or Cary on the Affair of the Charter but Mr. Little being too Infirm to Travail to Burlingtown Impowered John Henderson afd. to Act in his Room & Stead with the Governour and Council for the purposes afd. Accordingly on Monday the Twelveth Day of Sd. February Sd. John Henderson Set Out for Burlington but Mr. Pangburn Said he Could not go with him therefore Sd. Henderson went to Burlington and waited on the Governour and Council untill Fryday the 16th. Day of Sd. February when the Governour was pleased to Come to the Council Chamber where his Excellency and the Honourable Council was Graciously pleased to Receive and hear the Said Petition and Grant the Request petitioned for and Give the Sd. Henderson the Copy of a Rule or Order that was then Entered in the Council Books Directing the Attorney General to prepare a Charter for that Purpose. Accordingly Sd. Henderson Set out for Trenton to the Attorney General's and Came to his House and Gave him the Copy afd. but he could not get a New Charter Drawn on Parchment but Indorsed his Approbation &c of the Same Charter on a Draught that the Sd. Henderson had Drawn on Paper and Sd. Henderson paid him Three Pounds proclamation Money for the Same and then the Said Henderson made all the Haste that the very great Extremity of the Weather would allow back to Burlington and Waited on the Governour and Council who was pleased to meet on Wednesday the 21th Day of Sd. February at the Council Chamber and the Charter being Writ on two Sheets of Royal paper the Governour was pleased to Sign his Name on Each Sheet for fear of the Sheets Should be parted by any Accident and the Governour and Council Ordered the Secretary forthwith to Affix the Great Seal of the Province which he Imediately Did the Governour & Council Refused to Receive anything for their Favour and pains & the Secretary & Other Officers would Take nothing but the Ordinance Fees."

For a copy of the Charter that was thus secured see Appendix. What is undoubtedly the original of this charter is now in fire-proof apartments in the custody of the Synod of New Jersey held by mutual agreement and in trust for the Old Tennent church. Through the care and efforts of Rev. Hugh B. McCauley, formerly of Freehold (town) church, large, beautiful, facsimile copies have been made of this document by photograph, one of which now hangs on the walls of the old church.

The names of the first trustees under this charter were John Little, Jun., Christopher Longstreet, Jonathan Forman, Esq., John Anderson, Esqr., James Robinson, John Henderson, Stephen Pangburn, Esq., Robert Imlay, and Tobias Polhemus. Of this board of "Notable Church Trustees" James Steen has written interesting sketches, from which is mainly drawn the following facts:—Those having "Esq." after their name were County Judges or Justices at the time. Of the several corporators;—

John Little, Jr., who represented the Shrewsbury church, was a son of John who was a Scotch Irish Presbyterian. This John, Sr. was a judge in the Monmouth Co. Court for twenty-five years. He had fought in the French and Indian War 1746 as Lieut. Col. of the Monmouth Militia. He lived near Eatontown, and died in 1750-51 leaving £200 to the Shrewsbury church, having been instrumental in its establishment. John, Jr., like his father, became an elder in the Shrewsbury church, and a judge in the County courts. He was a patriot in the Revolution, an active member of the Committee of Safety. He married first "Mercy," or "Moica," Longstreet, sister to Christopher the trustee. Second he married 1752 Elizabeth, widow of Rev. Eleazar Wales. He drove long distances in attending the meetings of the trustees, going as far as Allentown. He died in 1785.

Christopher Longstreet, representing Shrewsbury, was the son of Theophilus and his wife Mercy Lane. He was baptized in the Dutch Reformed church of Long Island Dec. 25, 1713. He married Abigail Wooley Dec. 1743. One of his descendants was Gen. James Longstreet, C. S. A., and another, Virginia Lafayette Longstreet, married Hon. Lucius Q. C. Lamar, U. S. Supreme Court: and a large number of others may be found in the South and West. In the trustees' book his name is sometimes put "Stoffil" and "Stoffel" the common abbreviation of Theophilus which was indeed his name. In 1750 he purchased a grist mill in Allentown, and removed there. He died in 1784.

Jonathan Forman, Esq., representing Old Tennent, was a county judge. Some have claimed that he was the son of John Forman the Scottish exile and Covenanter. Others hold that he was the great-grandson of Robert Forman, an Englishman who came to this country and died 1691 on Long Island. He married Margaret Wyckoff. A large number of notable and patriotic citizens claim descent from him. He died Dec. 28, 1762 aged 74 years, and was buried in Old Scots ground. About one and a half miles southeast of Monmouth Court-house is a locality long known as "Forman neighborhood" or "Forman square."

John Anderson, Esq., representing Old Tennent, was another county judge, and was the son of John Anderson, Sr. who was captain of the "Unicorn." His mother was Anna Reid daughter of John Reid map-drawer and Surveyor-general. He had brothers and sisters, James, Kenneth, Jonathan, Margaret, Helena, Anna, Elizabeth and Isabella. His uncle, Rev. James Anderson, was the first pastor of Wall Street Pres. church, New York City. He died July 19, 1793 in his 90th year, and was buried in Old Tennent cemetery.

James Robinson, representing Old Tennent, was of Scottish descent. He deeded the site for St. Peter's (P. E.) church, Freehold, N. J.,

March 28, 1738. His descendants intermarried with the Rhea, Hendrickson, West, Vaughn, and English families. He died Jan. 22, 1773 in his 74th year, and his grave is in Old Tennent yard.

John Henderson, the fourth trustee for Old Tennent, was born in New Jersey about 1697. He was a very prominent and active member and officer in Old Tennent for more than forty years. June 9, 1730 he was chosen clerk for the congregation, and much of its earlier history and Baptismal Register under Wm. Tennent is thus written in his fine hand-writing and accurate statement. He was the first president of the board of trustees, and for many years occupied this position. He lived about one mile east of Freehold (town) on the Colts Neck road. He died Jan. 1, 1771 in his 74th year, and his grave is in Old Scots yard. See, further, "Genealogical Notes" in Appendix.

Stephen Pangburn, Esq., was a justice. It is difficult to determine which he represented in the college of churches. In 1754 David Knot was chosen to fill his place in the list of trustees. He had lived in Middlesex Co., and married 1742 Rebecca, of Upper Freehold, widow of William Imlay. He removed to Monmouth Co. In 1754 he married for second time Anne Montgomery. He owned a grist mill, and probably a saw mill, at Mannahawkin. He died about 1779.

Robert Imlay, representing Allentown, purchased a mill in Upper Freehold 1727. He died there 1754, and Peter Imlay, son of Wm., was chosen in his "room and stead" as a trustee. He had property at Middletown Point and Mount Pleasant. Possibly he was the son of Patrick Imlay who 1705 joined with others before the court to have the Old Scots meeting-house recorded.

Tobias Polhemus, also trustee for Allentown, was a lineal descendant of Rev. Johannes Theodorus Polhemus, who preached in the Dutch Reformed church Brooklyn and Flatbush, L. I., as early as 1654. He married first 1748 Parthenia daughter of Samuel Imlay. His sister, Elizabeth, married Guisbert Hendrickson. His daughter, Mary, by his second wife, married Theophilus Little, son of John, Jr., of Shrewsbury. He died in 1780.

Immediately on the securing of the charter the trustees met at the house of James Robinson March 26, 1750, when they qualified by "Taking the Oaths of Aliegance, Abjuration Declaration &c.," and also they took the following for the discharge of their office or trust, "You and Each of You shall faithfully and Truly Discharge Your and each of Your Duties and the Trust Reposed in You & Each of You, as Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County Pursuant to his Majesties Charter of Incorporation to You for that purpose According to the best Of Your Understanding So help You God." They acknowledged the oaths "by Each Man Signing his Name hereunto."

According to a provision in the charter the trustees adopted a seal choosing their own device. Unhappily this seal has been lost or somewhere mislaid. But in 1896 through the combined study and effort of James Steen and Rev. Allen H. Brown an impression of this seal was discovered on a deed given by the trustees May 5, 1760 to Elihu Williams, and at the time in the possession of Arthur W. Little, of Philadelphia, who kindly loaned it for inspection. This deed was submitted to the Rev. Dr. Henry C. McCook, a connoisseur in church seals and emblems, who deciphered the devise in the dim impression, and wrote an interesting article in regard to it, which was published in "The Presbyterian" May 27, 1896. He thought that the rough figure of a bush or tree on the center of the seal was probably an attempt to reproduce the "Burning Bush," the symbol on the seal of the Scotch Church, from which the Covenanters of Old Scots had come ; or that possibly it was meant to represent a "tree of liberty," which he said "has been the well-known symbol of popular freedom from early ages." Also he called attention to the similarity of the phrase "Religious Liberty" on the seal, with the words

"Free Hill" and "Freehold," as suggesting "a clue to the spirit which prompted these liberated exiles to perpetuate their gratitude and their sentiments in the motto upon their corporate seal." The seal he said is "the oldest known corporate seal of any American Presbyterian church."

Of course, after the separate corporation was secured, the use of this Monmouth seal ceased. The Trustees of the new corporation immediately decided March 13, 1787, "to procure a seal for the Corporation with the following words and device engraven thereon viz. The seal of the first Presbyterian Congregation in Freehold and a dove with an olive branch, that Genl. David Forman be requested to procure the same." The device chosen is suggestive of the spirit and desire in the church at that date. Later, May 2, 1859. the trustees resolved "to procure a seal for the corporation and that the device be a key and that Joseph Combs procure the same." If this resolution was carried out, then this seal could not long have been used, since now for some years the trustees have not been accustomed to place any adopted device on their documents.

The churches, associated with Old Tennent under the Royal charter, were all of early origin.

Shrewsbury Church.—Definite data concerning the organization of this church is meagre and unsatisfactory. The place was settled very early, and George Fox, the Quaker, visiting it in 1672 found the Friends building a meeting house. The Presbyterians of that place possibly came up to Old Scots for a time. But preaching services must have been held and a nucleus begun before or by 1734, for in that year a call from the people of Shrewsbury and Middletown was made to Samuel Blair, a native of Ireland, and a student of the Log College ; and he settled among them. The church was comparatively weak, and for many years of slow growth. It suffered much from long interims of settled pastors : but a few faithful souls kept the little flame of sanctuary worship alive. Those who have served as pastors or supplies are Samuel Blair 1734-39. Elihu Spencer, D. D. 1761-64. Charles McKnight 1767-78. Ebenezar Grant 1800-02. Horace S. Pratt 1822. Nathaniel A. Pratt 1824-26. James M. Huntting 1828-30. James Woodward 1830-39. L. S. Bebee 1839. Rufus Taylor, D. D. 1840-52. Thaddeus Wilson, D. D. 1852-97. Samuel D. Price 1898—.

Allentown Church,—or Upper Freehold, probably got its name from one Nathan Allen, who in 1706 bought a large tract of land there, and on it built a grist mill and a house. The settlement was largely made up of Friends. But the Dutch from near Middletown and Shrewsbury, and the Scotch from Freehold moved in, and thus a Presbyterian element was begun. Joseph Morgan of Old Scots church visited and preached in the settlement and helped to start the movement toward gathering a church:—later also Wm. Tennent preached there as an occasional supply when the people were without a pastor. George Whitefield was a visitor there in 1740. The church was organized, or formed, 1725, although a house of worship had been built and preaching services conducted some time previous to that date. During its history it has suffered from the lack of pastors at times, of which some were long interims: but the Lord kept the church to prosper. At one time it was joined with Cranbury in the collegiate pastorate of Charles McKnight, preacher and martyr-patriot, whose tablet may be seen in Trinity Churchyard, N. Y. In 1752 a parsonage farm was purchased, which eventually contained more than 220 acres. The pastors at Allentown have been Eleazar Wales 1730-34. Charles McKnight 1744-66. Wm. Schenck 1774-78. Geo. Faitoute 1779-81. Joseph Clark 1788-96. John Cornell 1800-20. Henry Perkins, D. D. 1820-64. K. P. Ketcham 1864-71. Lawrence M. Colfelt 1872-74. George Swain, D. D. 1874—.

Cranbury Church,—by 1738 was organized sufficiently to have commissioners appear in the first meeting of the Presbytery of New Brunswick and ask for supplies. In 1740 a church building was erected on a site which is now covered by the old cemetery. Its pastors have been Charles McKnight 1744-56. Thomas Smith 1762-89. Gilbert Tennent Snowden 1790-97. Geo. Spafford Woodhull 1798-1820. Symmes C. Henry 1820-57. Joseph G. Symmes 1857-94. Joseph E. Curry 1894—.

Pursuant to the charter, the trustees procured a book (as above mentioned) into which they entered the record of the business they performed and also copies of deeds. This book is still in the possession of Old Tennent, and contains interesting information as to the successive trustees and how they disposed of business, with hints as to the names of elders and deacons in the respective churches. The trustees met, according to circumstance and convenience, at different places, at the Old Tennent church frequently, and at the houses of the following persons, Capt. John Little in Shrewsbury Feb. 1752, Rev. Chas. McKnight in Upper Freehold June 1752, Widow Allen in Allentown April 1756, Mr. Petter Forman Oct. 1767, John Henderson, Esq. Oct. 1768, Widow Marfords in Freehold Oct. 1769, Hartshorne White in Lower Freehold Oct. of 1771, '72, '73, Widow White in Freehold Oct. 1774, and frequently at James Robinson's in Freehold.

CHAPTER II.

EDIFICES.

The first house for worship, in the history of Old Tennent, was erected on the site of what is now known as Old Scots' grave yard, a lonely, retired, and sacred God's acre, in Marlboro township, Monmouth Co., and near to Wickatunk depot, Central R. R. of N. J. The sanctuary stood on a little eminence which the early settlers named "Free Hill." It is about 195 feet above mean sea level, and water flows away from its vicinity in several directions. The current tradition is that the church edifice was built of logs, possibly smoothed on the outer and inner sides. Or it may have had a frame with an inclosure of heavy boards without paint. It must have been of primitive fashion as the facilities for house-building were necessarily limited in those early days. Monmouth Co. was then a wilderness with Indians and wild beasts through it, many years even after Old Scots house was built. As late as 1730 the Council sitting at Perth Amboy passed "An Act to Encourage the Killing of Wolves and Panthers." A few months previous to this The New England Weekly Journal, Feb. 23, 1730, had the following item, "Philadelphia, January 13. On Monday sennight was killed near Shrewsbury in the Jerseys a monstrous large Phanter, the like never seen before in these Parts Its Legs being thicker than that of a Horse, with a Body proportionable, and the Nails of its Claws longer than the middle Finger of a Man's Hand. It seems the Indian who killed him was creeping up on the Ground, in order to have a Shot at a Buck, but hearing a rustling of Leaves behind him accidentily saw the Panther a few yards off, just ready to leap upon him he thereupon instantly fires, and luckily, with about 4 or 5 Swan shot, hit him in the Head, and Killed him. The Indian received a considerable Reward for the Service, from the Liberality of the neighboring People."

It is interesting and amusing to note also the following item in The American Weekly Mercury, Sep. 2-9, 1731, "Upper-Freehold, September 7. Yesterday one Thomas Deacon a Servant to Robert Lawrence, and a Boy of about 11 Years of age, coming from Meeting together heard their Dog (who for Fashion sake had been to Meeting) bark very much, sent the Child to see what was the Matter, who running back told him it was two great Bucks fast together by the Horns. The Man with much difficulty Cut both their Throats, their Horns being so lockt together that several have tried to part them, since both their Heads are cut off, but find it cannot be done without breaking or cutting of them."

These incidents afford some idea of the condition of the localities through which the people traveled long distances in attending church service. Indians and their descendants remained within the bounds of the congregation for 100 years after the first church was built. It is to be regretted that we do not know more about the style and size of this Old Scots meeting house, which stood about five miles to the northeast of where Old Tennent now stands. Dr. Arch. Alexander said, about 1840, that the remains of the old building might yet be seen. Rev. H. G. Smith in 1895 said "Of the building itself, no memory, tradition, or trace remains except the slight depression in the soil, which would indicate the humble dimensions of a structure perhaps some twenty feet square" (History of Old Scots Church p. 13.) In a note he says "These dimensions would make the building larger than the famous 'Log College,' built over thirty years afterwards." Thus one of the most famous landmarks of this section, and of Presbyterianism in this country, has passed into oblivion.

In an old book in the County Clerk's office at Freehold marked "Minutes of Monmouth Co. 1688-1721," p. 239, is this, "At A Court of Genarall quorter sessions held At Shrowsbury for ye County of Monmouth on ye fourth Tusday In december Annoqe Dom 1705."

The next day after this opening the record reads thus :—
"At Six aclock ye Court being opened

This recording of the meeting house gave to the Old Scots people a sort of charter and title of possession together, as Rev. H. G. Smith says that it gave to these Presbyterians "an endorsement by the constituted authorities of their ownership and their rights to own."

Of the men mentioned in this recording, Walter Ker was he of whom Wm. Tennent speaks, that he came over in 1685 banished for religion's sake. He was then about twenty-nine years of age. He seems to have served indentures for four years, when Thomas Parr, brick maker, deeded to him March 2, 1689-90 "the 30 acres of headland coming to him." He became a land-holder as his name in early deeds may show, in Matawan, in Topanemus, and near the Old Tennent church. Once he is spoken of thus, "John Reid of Hortencie to Walter Ker of the same place," intimating a place where he once lived 1698. He has left a large list of descendants of whom three at least became preachers, Rev. Nathan Ker, Goshen, N. Y., Rev. Jacob Ker, Somerset Co., Md., and Rev. Frank M. Ker, Hempstead, Long Island. (see Appendix.) He was evidently a man of decided opinions and force of character. He and his sons were active elders and deacons in the church. He passed the years of his early life amid the sad scenes of persecution in his native land ; but by the mercy of God he was given to be a man serviceable in promoting the Christian religion in this Old Tennent region, and to be a witness in his declining years of the glorious scenes of "The Great Awakening" in America. Smith says, "Walter Ker came from the Parish of Dalsert, Lanarkshire, and was banished two days before Pitlochie's expedition sailed through the influence of the curate of the Parish, Joseph Clelland."

About one-half mile east of the present Old Tennent church on a wooded and hilly point of ground, his grave stone may still be seen bearing a unique inscription which testifies to the esteem in which he was held in character and in worth, and also suggests the strong scriptural faith of his friends in Christian eschatology.

The tombstone is of "firmed-grained sandstone" and the letters are neatly and clearly cut, and may still be easily read, thus :

"Here lies what's Mortal of Walter Ker
Deceased June 10th 1748 in ye 92 year of his age

His autograph here given is taken from the deed of 1727, when he was about seventy years of age.

William Ronnol (or Ronnel) was an early settler. A William Ronald (possibly the same name), came over by or before Dec. 1, 1684, and was registered "in the Secretary's books of Records," and indentured for four years. William Ronald made his will 1709, making his wife Helen executrix, and names his sons John, William, and James, and daughters Euphame, Janet, Helen and Sophia. In 1712 John bought land on Doctor's Creek, near Allentown.

Patrick Imly is possibly to be identified with the one that was a grantee in the Matawan tract and landing ; and that acquired land on Doctor's Creek, Allentown ; and that left descendants Robert, William, and Parthenia. The N. J. Archives show the name spelled variously, and yet doubtless the same person.

The Philadelphia Presbytery was the first one formed in America. Some claim that its first meeting about which anything is officially known, was held in Old Scots' church Dec. 29, 1706, when it ordained John Boyd, the first known virtual pastor of the church ; and for this reason great honor and interest have been attached to the spot. Steen questions this assertion, and gives a number of arguments to show why it could not have been so. The official records of this Presbytery open in the midst of the account of the examination and ordination of John Boyd, as the first leaf of the record is missing, and doubtless irrecoverably lost, to the extreme sorrow of the Presbyterian Church in this country. And therefore, it can not be positively affirmed at what place that meeting was held.

There is a deed still carefully treasured by the church, dated June 1, 1727, given by Alexander Neiper to John Johnston, Senr. Esq., Peter Watson, Walter Ker, Senr., Patrick Imlay, Senr., Archibald Creige and Richard Watson for a lot of ground five chains square, or two and one-half acres. (see Appendix). To this deed an agreement is added and signed at a later date, March 27, 1728, thus, "Before the signeing & sealing of this Deed the within Mentioned persons Doth all promise that them theire heirs and Every of them shall use the said Land for a buring Yard and to Keep a prisbteran Meeting and for No Other Use the sade Alexander Nipper his heires Exetor shall Not be troubled with No taueran Nor No Residentar on the said tract of Land," and this is signed by Walter Ker, Archibald Creige, Richard Watson, and Charles Gordon. The land was sold "for and in consideration of a competent Sum of money," and a sort of rent was to be paid, thus, "Yeilding & Paying therefore Yearly & every Year for ye Said Tract of Land unto him ye Sd. Alexander Nepier, his Heirs & Assigns a corn of Peper or the value thereof at or upon every 25th day of March for ever hereafter in Lieu & instead of all other Services & Demands." Perhaps this means that the land was virtually given to the church. A number of graves had already been made around the church, and the agreement subjoined was perhaps an effort made to have the ground preserved sacred. Of the men therein named, Steen says of John Johnston that he had been a druggist in Edinburgh, married Eupham, daughter of George Scot, April 18, 1686 after coming to this country, and by her came into possession of a large tract of land of thousands of acres. He practiced medicine, and was prominent as a public official. He had six sons, John, Andrew, William, James, George, and Lewis (William and James died young), and seven daughters only two of whom were married : and a large and respected posterity followed. He died at Perth Amboy Sep. 6, 1732 in his 71st year. Archibald Craige may possibly be identified with the one who came over under Lord Neil Campbell Dec. 1685, whose list includes and spells, John, James, Archibald, and Orsella Graige ; and with the one named among the grantees of the Matawan tract 1701 ; and with the one named in a deed April 10, 1702, "John Craige of Amboy to his son Archibald Craige, for a lot in Monmouth Co., on Spotswood Brook ;" this would be in Old Tennent locality. He died March 6, 1751, aged 73 years, and was buried in Old Scots yard. Richard Watson was another son of Peter, beside those mentioned in Chapter I. Alexander Neiper was possibly the one that came over in 1684 and indentured for four years. He was Presbyterian, then Quaker, then Episcopalian. He appears to have been father-in-law to Peter Watson.

This Old Scots ground had been granted to Alexander Neiper Feb. 5, 1697, by deed of sale "from John Reid Esqr. Deceased of Hortensie." John Reid was a map-drawer of the province, and subsequently became its Surveyor-general. He had one son, John, who went to Westchester and practiced law. One of his daughters, Anna, married Capt. John Anderson of Monmouth: the other daughter, Helena, married Rev. John Bartow of Westchester, N. Y.; another daughter died in infancy. John Reid had a brother Andrew. Also he had a brother, James, who had sons Samuel and John, and who has had many descendants in Old Tennent congregation. According to Whitehead "Hortensia" was a tract of 200 acres of land given to John Reid for his services in drawing maps. It was situated in Monmouth County on the east branch of Hope River.

This plot of two and a half acres of ground at Old Scots was held in peaceable possession by the congregation for many years. In 1815, on the 12th of October, J. H. Newell, D. Sur., resurveyed this ground, and made a map, showing the original lines. Within this are the lines of the cemetery which then enclosed ninety-four hundreds of an acre. Oct. 1, 1816, the trustees of Old Tennent church (Thomas Henderson, M. D., being President of the Board) sold to Garret I. Covenhoven one acre and a half of this ground for the sum of $90, "money of the United States." The deed stipulated that the whole plot of ground was sold to Mr. Covenhoven "excepting and reserving out of the same one acre which has been occupied and used for a burying ground by the presbyterian Congregation aforesaid for seventy or eighty years past, and is to be and remain for that use and purpose forever hereafter." The trustees of Old Tennent claimed the right of selling this ground, as they stated in the deed "by virtue of a deed of sale from under the hand and seal of Alexander Neiper bearing date the first day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand Seven hundred and twenty-seven which deed has been duly proved and recorded," and also "by virtue of possession the said Congregation not having had any Legal claim Set up against the said lot or any part thereof since the date of the aforesaid deed and having enjoyed the peacible quiet and undisturbed possession thereof for about ninety years." Thomas Henderson signed this deed " and affixed the Seal of the Said Corporation" to it. This deed is recorded in the County Clerk's office at Freehold, N. J., in Book Z, page 288. The statements made in this deed, as they are above quoted, form a part of the argument that Old Tennent church is one continuous organization with Old Scots. From 1816, it appears, the Old Scots burying-ground has remained the same in area as it is at this present day, namely about one acre.

In this Old Scots cemetery are a number of memorial tablets of brown sandstone, the forms and inscriptions of which are antique. How interesting and helpful in our study of those times it would have been if all the graves had been thus marked, and bearing items of family history. Among the oldest may be noted that of William Redford and his wife Margaret, telling that they came from North Brittain 1682. The State Secretary's Records show that they came with seven children from Frier Shaw in Tiveodaill, that he was a husbandman, and that he was "to have 100 a. rent free for 10 yrs." in East New Jersey.

How long services continued in Old Scots church is not known. The Minutes of the Board of Trustees of the College of New Jersey (Princeton) for a meeting held in the college Aug. 2, 1785, show that there was produced an extract from the will of William McConky of Monmouth county dated Oct. 9, 1760, as follows :—

"First I give and bequeath the interest of the sum of one hundred pounds for the support of a Presbyterian minister at the Scotch Meeting-house in Freehold ; and this aforesaid sum to be committed to the care of the Trustees ; likewise this aforesaid sum if not continuing in that use, it is to be given for the support of poor scholars at the College of New Jersey. Likewise I do give and bequeath the sum of one hundred pounds to my cousin Samuel McConky son of Samuel for the use of college learning ; and if not put to that use, to return likewise for the support of poor scholars at the College of New Jersey. I do likewise give and bequeath the sum of one hundred pounds for the support of poor scholars at the College of New Jersey."

Then the college trustees "Resolved that Mr. Woodhull be authorized and impowered to negotiate the business and to settle the legacies mentioned therein to be appropriated to the purpose of educating poor scholars at this college, with the said Wm. McConky" etc. (i. e. the Wm. McConky to whom administration of the other William's estate had been granted). Mr. Woodhull was asked to request Gen. Forman to assist in the above negotiation, and to report to the next session.

In connection with this the records of the Trustees of Old Tennent read, for April 30, 1790, that "The money by the said will committed to the care of the Trustees which is one hundred pounds was put on loan to Derick Sutphin and a bond taken therefor payable to this Board with legal interest from the sixth day of february seventeen hundred and eighty seven." This money was subsequently paid to the Trustees and they put it out again on interest Nov. 8, 1791. The significance of these records, in regard to continued service at Old Scots, may be inferred.

REDFORD TOMBSTONE IN OLD SCOTS YARD, IN 1895.

The second house for worship in the history of Old Tennent was not erected on the Old Scots ground, but about five miles directly south on an eminence called "White Hill," the name probably meaning White (oak) Hill from the numerous oak trees on and around it. The chief reasons perhaps for this second building were the enlargement of the congregation, and the settling of a large portion of the members around what is now Freehold town, and Tennent, and toward Manalapan. Rev. H. G. Smith, in his Old Scots History, says that in 1727 the church obtained a permit from the Crown for this proposed building, and that this permit was in existence some years ago but seems now to have disappeared. This permit, or a copy of it, may possibly have been among the papers destroyed by the deplorable fire of 1869. On the first page of the Congregational Records, (which are the earliest that Old Tennent now possesses and of which in some places the edges of the leaves are broken off or so stained that the writing is now illegible) may be seen what arrangements were made for this second building, thus :—

"The Minutes of Freehold Congregation Begun Tuesday June 9th, 1730."

"June 9th afd. the Congregation Met and Chose John Henderson to be their Clerk, and Charles Gordon, Timothy Lloyd, Jonathan Forman, Robert Cumming & John Henderson as helps to Waltar Ker & John Hutton Elders, or to Represent the Congregation.

"The Meeting House to be made Forty feet Long and Thirty feet Wide and Each of the Builders to have One Seat in it above their Common Due."

The work on this second sanctuary must have prospered well, for by the next springtime it was sufficiently finished for the holding of services ; and in that first service Margaret Ker, daughter of Wm., was "the first Baptized in the New Meeting House," as the Baptismal Records show (see Appendix.) Concerning this new meeting house the Congregational Record has these further items :—

"April 18, 1731 was the first Time that there was Service in the New Meeting House on White Hill."

"May 2th 1731 Charles Gordon was Ordained an Elder of this Congregatn. Jonathan Forman & Archibald Craig Esqrs. & Timothy Lloyd having Declined Serving as Mannagers in Carying on the Meeting House Aaron Mattison of his own free Will Served And the Said Mattison together with David Rhe William Ker and John Henderson, carryd on the Work which is now Inclosed and Glased."

"The Upper part of the Congregation of Freehold having for some Years past Complained of great hardship put upon them in Travailing so far to the Lower Meeting-House Seeing the Upper Meeting House was below the Centre of the Congregation, And for the present desires only to have the Service two Sabbaths at the Upper—— House for one at the Lower during the Winter Six Months Accordingly David Rhe & John Henderson were Appointed with them of the Lower part the 3d. of Febr. 1737-8 at Mr. Timothy Lloyds who Accordingly Met with Messrs. Lloyd, Gordon, Reed & Logan where the matter at last was Refferred to the Session by them under the following Restrictions viz. that if the Session would Enact that if the people of the Lower part would Join & Subscribe for the Lower Meetinghouses' Reparation & the people of the Upper part would not Join then the Subscription to fall & the Reparation to be made out of the publick Stock. Accordingly the Session Met on the 9th Day of Sd. February where was present all the Members Mr. Lloyd came when the Session had Almost finished & Denied Agreement & Said the above Mentioned Supperscription was a Missunderstanding & that he in the Name of others had only Consented that the Lower Meetinghouse Should be maintained out of the Collections The Major part of the Session being Inhabitants of the Upper part of Congregation thought it not fit to give their Judgment in the Affair but Refferred it to the next Presbyterie for their Judgmt. in the Affair which the Session tho't was Weighty And Advised each party to attend the next meeting of the Presbyterie by their Commissioners If there be not Some Expedient found out before that time for a Christian Accommodation of the Affair this Unanimously Agreed to by the Session."

"Monday May the 8th Day 1738. In Refferrence to the above affair Mr. Tennent Gave the Congregation Notice of the time of the Sitting of the Presbytrie & Desired the Congregation to go & Agree Amicably or to Choose Commissioners for Each party & fit the Business for the Judgment of the Presbyterie, Accordingly after Service a Number of Each party Stayed at the Meeting-House & after Debating between them they Came to the following Agreement viz. That the Congregation Should Join Unanimously & Repair the Doors & Defective post of the Lower Meetinghouse & that from Henceforth the Service Should be two Sabbaths at the Upper Meeting House & one at the Lower, & the Lower Meeting house was forthwith Repaired pursuant to Sd Agreement."

The Session having Examined the Stock belonging to the Congregation find, That (after the payment of Sundry Accompts which they allowed) There is in the Hands of the Deacons the Sum of £16 : 0 : 3 at 8-p oz."

"Monday April 1th 1745 being the Monday after the Sacrament of the Lords Supper was Administered in the Congregation, After Divine Service was Concluded : The Congregation Chose the following Persons to the following Offices without One Disenting vote, viz. Capt. John Anderson and Joseph Ker, Elders to be Added to the Number of the Present Elders and Robert Newall and Samuel Craig Deacons to be Added to the Number of the Present Deacons And Jacob Sutphen and Samuel Craig Managers To take Care of the New Meeting-House and the Buildings on the Ministers place : And Peter Forman and Robert Rhe for Trustees in the Room of John Anderson and Peter Gordon."

"Lords Day May 19th 1745 Capt. John Anderson & Joseph Ker were Solemnly Ordained to the office of Elders & Samuel Craig to the office of a Deacon pursuant to the above Election. Robert Newall declined the office of a Deacon."

These long quotations are made in order to preserve in a printed book the important parts of the early records of the church, and to give opportunity to the reader for the study of all that is stated or suggested therein as to circumstances, conditions, discussions, customs, names, and dates of that period.

A tradition has been handed down that it was planned by the "undertakers" to locate the church on a lower part of White Hill, and that Janet Rhea, of Scottish descent, seized the small corner-stone in her apron, and, toiling to the top of the hill, set it down there saying to the astonished builders, "Wha ever heard o' ganging doon to the Hoose o' the Lord, an no 'o ganging oop to the Hoose o' the Lord?" (Smith.) This woman, of strong mind and scriptural application, was a communion member in Old Tennent. She was the daughter of John Hamton. She married Robert Ray, a carpenter, Nov. 9, 1689, at Shrewsbury in Quaker meeting. Her grave may still be seen on the D. D. Denise farm near Freehold, where she was buried in 1761 aged about 93 years.

Another ancestral tradition relates that James English dug the first spade-full of earth for setting the foundation of this new meeting-house on White Hill. This James English married Margaret ———: they had a son James, born in 1733, who married Catharine Hutchinson, daughter of Wm. and Ann, in 1755 : and they had a son James born 1757, who became a physician and served as a surgeon in the Revolutionary war. It is understood that the brothers James, David, and Robert English came to Monmouth County sometime before 1730, and bought a large tract of land embracing about all of what is now called (after the family) "Englishtown," the brother David building on the ridge toward Tennent. Descendants of this family still sit in the pew on the middle aisle of the present church corresponding to that which James English occupied when the first map of pews was made in 1734. (compare illustrations.) The map of the pews is a history in itself.

The ground on which this new meeting-house stood was a rectangle five chains long by two chains wide, containing one acre. It was deeded by William Ker, out of ground purchased from Walter Ker, to four men of the church, viz. Aaron Mattison, David Rhe, John Henderson, and Samuel Ker, on May 1, 1731, for "the Sum of One Shilling Current Money of the province." This deed is still one of the treasured records of the church, a copy of which is given in the Appendix : and for plan of this ground see early map of Old Tennent cemetery, Chap. XX. In this new house on White Hill both John and William Tennent preached as pastors. Here also, it appears, George Whitefield preached, with whose labors William Tennent, the pastor, was in sympathy, (see Belcher's Life of whitefield, p. 117.): possibly, at times, also Theodorus Jacobus Frelinghuysen, Dutch pastor at New Brunswick, as intimated in Wm. Tennent's letter to Mr. Prince (see Log College.) Tears of the penitent and songs of the saved mingled together within the walls of this house during revival times, when the blessed Lord shed abroad his grace from on high. Doubtless also David Brainerd preached in this church. In the present sanctuary, which is the second one built on White Hill, may still be seen an old communion table, that bears evidence of belonging to the first sanctuary built there. Its workmanship does not correspond to that of the inner finishing of the present church, especially with that of the pulpit and the square enclosure. There is a rugged massiveness about it that suggests the work of an earlier date than that of the fine panel-work of the present church. Also by comparing the conformation of this table with the plans of the pews of the two buildings, it will plainly be seen to apply more to the former one of 1734. It is a tradition that Brainerd (evidently David) administered the Lord's Supper to his converted Indians at this old table. David, in his diary Saturday, June 7, 1746, writes: "Being desired by the Rev. WILLIAM TENNENT to be his assistant in the administration of the Lord's Supper, I this morning rode to Freehold to render that assistance. My people also being invited to attend the sacramental solemnity; they cheerfully embraced the opportunity, and this day attended the preparatory services with me." And the next day, among other things, he writes, "A number of my dear people sat down by themselves at the last table; at which time God seemed to be in the midst of them." The people of old Freehold seemed to have been kindly disposed toward missionary labors among the Indians in New Jersey; and in a certain length of time they raised £12. 11s. for that work. In the present Old Tennent church, some of the foundation stones, some of the frame work, some of the window-casings and sashes, and the old communion table, are probably parts and relics of the first church built on this present site.

Concerning some of the men whose names are mentioned in connection with the above account of the first church on White Hill, William, Samuel, and Joseph Ker were sons of Walter, and like their father were active in the spiritual offices of the church, and they were prominent in its financial support. (see genealogy in Appendix.)

Robert Cumming was another very prominent member and elder for many years. Steen has to say of him that he was born in Montrose Scotland, and settled here in Monmouth early in the eighteenth century. He married Miss Blair, born in Ireland, and sister of Rev. Samuel Blair first pastor of Shrewsbury church. He had a son, Alexander, born 1726, who became a Presbyterian minister: and his youngest daughter Mary, by his first wife, married 1758 Rev. Alexander McWhorter. He was High Sheriff of Monmouth County. For his second wife he married 1746 Mary Noble born in New York City 1719, and who, when nineteen years of age, had become stepdaughter to Rev. Wm. Tennent by his marriage to her mother. Of the children of Robert and Mary, Anna married Rev. Wm. Schenck once pastor at Allentown; and Margaret married, in New York, James Watson 1780. Robert Coming was the first to subscribe to the building of the present Old Tennent church. Many of his descendants to this day occupy honored positions. His negro servants as well as his family were trained in things religious, and Cube and Mimbo were members of the church. (see lists in Appendix.)

Peter Forman was the second son of the trustee Jonathan, born in May 1718. He married 1742 Eleanor Williamson, and their children were William, Jonathan, Samuel P., Anna married Michael Sweetman, Jane married Henderson Sweetman, Mary married Col. Elisha Walton, Eleanor married Wm. Conover, Lydia married Garret B. Conover, and Helena married Tunis Vanderveer. From his list of dues on the church pews 1755 he appears to have been the treasurer. For some years after the present church was built he led the singing in the services. At the time of the Revolutionary War he was a justice of the peace. He died Sep. 8, 1785 in his 67th year, and was buried in Old Tennent yard.

In 1750, for the third time within a period of a little more than fifty years, the congregation undertook the work of another building. The prosperity and enlargement of the congregation was such during the twenty years previous that it justified them in undertaking the erection of a more commodious room. And indeed the growth must have been substantial and the people deeply interested and willing that it should move those staid and careful fathers to build two churches on the same spot only twenty years apart, tearing down one and building up another. It is possible also that the attendance on the services in the Old Scots church was declining, and that it was becoming evident the meetings there might eventually be discontinued and all the congregation be assembling at White Hill. When this famous house was built amid the green swales and undulating knolls of Monmouth, times and conditions were changing for the better. It was in the reign of King George the Second, the most prosperous period that his country had ever before known when landed territory, and literary fame, and opulent commerce were being added to England ; in times when the Crown looked with more religious tolerance on the wishes of the American colonists, and New Jersey was feeling the governing hand of broader minded men ; in the days of the influence of "The Great Awakening" among the people under the preaching of Edwards the tremendous metaphysician and theologian, of Bellamy the precocious youth approbated to preach when about eighteen years of age, and of the saintly and powerful Tennents ; when peace and power and prosperity were settling over the state, and even the Indians at the doors were listening with accepting faith to the Brainerds preaching the gospel of the heavenly life ; ——— in such times the Old Tennent fathers were moved to build the grand old edifice that remains unto this day.

When the Royal Charter for the Monmouth churches was granted in Feb. 1750 the Trustees met in the next month, March, and organized their board. At the very next meeting they took measures for the building of Old Tennent church. The record book reads :—

"1750 May 29th. All the Trustees Except Tobias Polhemus met at the New-Meetinghouse in Freehold Pursuant to the Presidents Call or Citation. And the Sd. Trustees Chose and Impowred Jonth. Forman & John Anderson Esqrs., James Robinson and John Henderson to Receive the Subscriptions, Imploy Work-Men, And Do every lawful and Necessary thing towards Building & finishing a New Meeting House or Church of Sixty Feet Long & Forty Feet Wide which House is to Stand at or near the Meetinghouse now Standing, Commonly Called the New-Meeting House."

At another meeting in the following August arrangements were made for the work to be done :—

"August 10th 1750. the Committee of the Trustees Met at Mr. Robinsons & Appointed the President to Agree with John Davies to be Chief Carpenter to Carry on the Work of the Meetinghouse or Church ; Which he did, And Said Davies is to Work at four Shillings & Six pence light Money a Day & his Accommodations & to Assist in Getting Timber next October and to begin to Work the Latter end of next February or beginning of March & not to Leave the Work untill the House afd. is Finished."

This record would seem to imply that some movement had been begun towards a new church before the charter trustees took any action about it and so indeed it had, for a subscription paper had been started in March of that year headed with the name of Robert Cumming, and perhaps largely due to his influence. That paper, used to gather funds for the building of the present noble edifice, is an intensely interesting and suggestive document, still preserved among the treasures of the church. So fast and binding were its stipulations that a man's signature thereto was substantially in honor equal to his laying a mortgage on his property to the amount subscribed, until payment was made. This paper contains the names of one hundred and ninety-two persons, and the total amount subscribed by these is seen to be about £500. (see Appendix.)

This third house, the last and present one in Old Tennent history, was erected near to or on the spot on which the former house stood on White Hill. It is probable that some of the parts of the former house were used in the building of this one. For the most part a new frame was made, hewn out, by skilled hands with the sharp broad-ax, from the deciduous but enduring white oak. It is told that Dr. A. A. Hodge once said of this house "It was built out of the heart," which was doubly true, materially and spiritually. The sempervirens also yielded their riches, for the sides of the building were sheathed with long cedar shingles, and fastened with nails patiently wrought out on an anvil : and the interior was finished with beaded and paneled Jersey pine. An ancestral tradition tells that William Redford Craig, a carpenter, built the neat and unique pulpit, as his contribution toward the erection and furnishing of the church. It is placed on the north side of the room, built against the wall, with narrow stairs leading up to it, closed in with a door, and the Bible desk being nine feet above the audience floor, with a great sounding-board overhanging the whole. It is an amusing little reminiscense of the past that is often told to listening observers that Rev. Wm. Tennent was accustomed to hang his hat on one of the three little wooden pegs that are fastened in the paneling above the pulpit seat, and that in warm weather he would hang his coat on another one of the pegs, and in very warm weather his wig on a third. About one hundred years after its building the pulpit was draped with a damask valance. Below the main pulpit a second desk or sub-pulpit is built, where the precentors used to stand ; and around and in front is a square of seats, commonly called the "Elders Square." The galleries extend along three sides of the room, very capacious, and crowding like a canopy over the pews below. The seatings are in straight high-backed pews, closed in with entrance doors. The tower or steeple of the church is stoutly built, set on a trestle-work of enormous strength in the rafters, capable of supporting, in its ringing motion, a bell of respectable power. Although in 1856 the trustees made some movement toward the securing of a bell, yet the antique steeple still stands empty and quiet. Benjamin Van Cleve, whose initials are stamped in the iron bars or latches of the east and west doors, is reported to have made the iron furnishings of the church, such as nails, door-hinges, latches, and possibly the weather-vane or finial on the steeple, a study in itself. (see illustration.) These presumably were all forged out on his anvil. The whole make-up of the house is an excellent sample of the ecclesiastical architecture in colonial times. The church was built well, the best and of the best. Its stiff rugged foundation and straight level combing to-day proves its kind. Still it survives, while many of the old home buildings all around the country side have vanished in the past, like Samuel Craig's on the old Englishtown road, and Wm. Ker's and its famous "Barrs" contiguous to the south boundary of the cemetery, and on the hill anent the church the house of Matthew Rue Gordon with its well and cobbler's bench, and like the famous parsonage on the battle field. And "Old Tennent church" still stands to this present day (1904) in all general respects as it was when the last nails were driven; and this is probably the name by which it will go into future history, though locally it has been called the "New Meeting House", and "Woodhull's church", and possibly the "Old Red Church".

According to specifications in the record quoted above the building must have been begun March 1751, and it appears to have been two years before it was fully completed, as the iron bar fastenings of the doors are stamped with the date 1753. But, like its predecessor, it is likely that the work was rapid until the house was "Inclosed and Glased," and so Old Tennent may be spoken of as built in 1751, though not completely finished and furnished until 1753. The diagram of pews in this building was not dated when it was made, but evidently it was about 1755 or possibly a little later. Peter Forman, church officer and probably treasurer, made report May 29, 1755, showing what was due, "Interest to be payd. from May 1, 1754," referring to dues for the meeting house, or to dues on the pews. His pew list, apparently made out at the same date, may be compared with the diagram found in the record papers of the church (see illustration.) and is the same except in the following instances in which he puts, pew 4-Darick Suttfin Jacob son, pew 7-Michal Johnston, pew 8-Darick Suttfin & his son Darick, pew 12-Cort Schank & son Garret & John Lonstrat, pew 13-paseg unto the pues, pew 15-by the stares a short pue, pew 18-John Formon son of Jonethn Esqr., pew 20-Petter Willson son of Petter, pew 22-Gawen Wattson, pew 24-Jonethan Forman Esqr., pew 25-A ew for the Minester of the pleas, pew 28-Timethy Loyd & his son John Loyd, pew 32-John Anderson Esqr., pew 33-William Mc Knaight, pew 45-John Littel Esqr., pew 46-Robert Davison, pew 48-John Truaxe Thomas Craig & William Shaw, pew 52-Charels Hibbets for the banesters, pew 53-blank, pew 54-the upen Entrey, pew 55-Michal Errickson, pew 56-Joseph Cheseman William Cheseman & John Reid Junr., pew 57-William Laird & James Dey, pew 58-Abraham Clayton Wm. And the prices of the pews are the same except Peter Forman puts pew 25-blank, pew 53-blank, pew 57-£15, pew 66-David Gordon 14 : 10 : 0 Petter Gordon Esqr., 2 : 10 : 0=£17. Peter Forman's list also shows fourteen pews in the gallery, beginning No. 1 at the northeast corner ; five of these were owned, No. 7 Dockter Petter Lacownt £8, No. 11 Philap Conine Estate 5 : 10 : 0 John Siliman 1 : 10 : 0=£7, No. 12 James Mulligan & David Brooks £7, No. 13 Hugh Mcfarren £7, No. 14 Robert Mc Chesney & son £8.

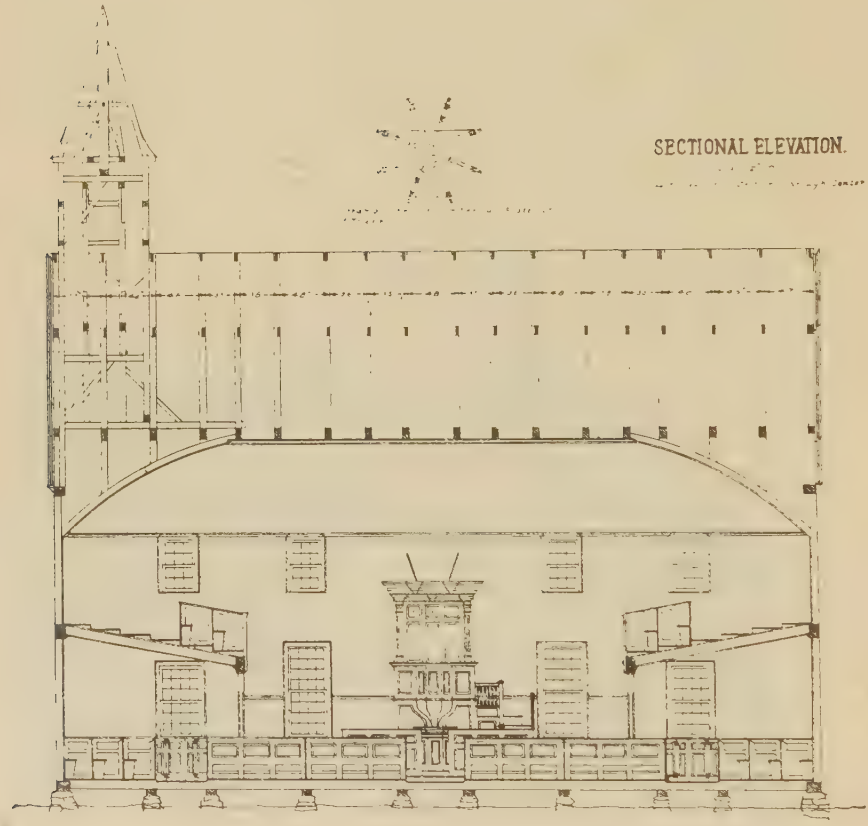
In the map here given pew 53 should be marked £8 instead £10 ; this was the author's error in copying the original. The two diagrams of pews of the two church buildings will be found interesting and informing as affording suggestive facts about the people of the congregation. The pews appear to have been sold and bought and written titles given, and possibly transmitted from parent to child. Some of the record papers speak of the pews as "The property of,"

and "The property of the heirs of." The church support presumably was raised by assessing the pew holders according to the value of their pew: and other methods also were sometimes used such as promises on subscription lists etc., special efforts being necessary by occasion of accounts in arrears. Later the seatings were spoken of as being "rented to the highest bidder."

Old Tennent Church, in 1894, Showing the Big Oaks.
L. R. Cheeseman, photo.

Two giant white oak trees have for many years stood close by the old church. They must have been standing when the church was built, though possibly small in size, and they have kept a sort of guard on the old building ever since. In 1897 the trustees were compelled to take one of the trees down. It stood the nearer to the church and had many branching limbs which were beginning to die, and to threaten damage to the church by falling. The other oak still stands and is known as "the oak with the long limb." The people of the church have taken much delight in these two handsome trees with grateful shade and magnificent shape.



One of Louis Rue's Drawings of Old Tennent Church.

In 1902 a very valuable work was rendered to the memory of Old Tennent by Louis Rue of Freehold, formerly of Manalapan, N. J. After very careful measurements and considerable study he drafted in blue print ten fine architectural plans of the old building, showing in detail its structure in different elevations, and its various frameworks and finishings. Also he prepared elaborate specifications of the construction of the building. So complete and accurate are the drawings and the descriptions that another edifice could easily be erected, by following these plans, as an exact copy of the original. This set of drawings and specifications are now in the possession of the church.

CHAPTER III.

THE OLD PARSONAGE.

As the congregation became more established and of sufficient material prosperity, their attention and desire was turned toward the securing of a parsonage. Whether or not the church had owned or held an interest in a parsonage plantation previously, at all events some few months after Wm. Tennent, Jr. settled in the congregation steps were taken to procure a permanent home for the pastor, which in those days was thought must be a good plantation rather than simply a house and lot. The congregational records read, "Thursday February 13th 1734 the Congregation Met at White Hill Meeting House and Chose, Archibald Craig & Jonathan Forman, Esqrs. and David Rhe and Robert Cumming to Purchass a Farm for Our Minister to Live on and to Have it Secured for a Ministers place or a Parsonage to Continue for the use of the Presbyterian Congregation forever."

"Second Tuesday in March 1734-5 at the Town Meeting the Above Messrs. Craig, Forman, Rhę & Cumming Made Report that they in Name of the Congregation had purchassed the Plantation Lying Between Spotswoods Middle and South Brooks from William Cowenhoven Son of Peter for £500. And John Henderson Drew the Articles of Sale and was Desired to Draw the Deed in Convenient Time which he Did" etc. etc.

In the midst of the record about the parsonage business is inserted the following :—"Lords-Day June 1th 1735 David Rhe & John Henderson w * ed Elders for this Congregation : The Lord Enable them to * the weight of their Charge & preserve them from becoming * * to his Cause or People." This made five elders in the session at that time.

Lacking some parts broken off at the edges of the leaves the record goes on at some length to show what was done to make the parsonage farm safe to the church. At the strong insistence of John Henderson efforts were made to secure, in legal form, the plantation "for a Continual Parsonage for a Presbyterian Minister." Accordingly by appointment and with funds provided, Mr. Henderson went to Wm. Smith, lawyer, of New York, and laid the whole matter before him, and paid him for the service. Mr. Smith wrote a letter to Wm. Tennent describing the counsel he gave in the matter, and enclosing what he called a "Declaration of Trust," presumably to be signed by the acting trustees of the church. All this was done, first, because evidently the church had no charter under which they could legally and with certain security hold and convey property ; and second, because the congregation desired that the plantation be clear of all claims of interest therein or ownership thereof by any others, and also probably desired that the farm should always be held in possession by the church alone. The farm embraced "All that tract of Land Scituate Lying and being in the County of Monmouth aforesaid betwixt Spotwoods Middle Brook and his South Brook Supposed to Contain One Hundred and fifty Acres be the Same more or less." This speaks well for the liberality of the congregation, that having just undergone the expense of building the first church on White Hill they turned and bought this farm of such respectable proportions. And all the more so, since in 1751 when they were undertaking the greater expense of building the present church on White Hill, it appears they bought 100 acres of land from Isaac and Joseph Sharp "for the yous of the parsonage," thus making altogether a glebe of very extensive area. This 100 acre addition was a wood tract. The land in this parsonage farm was reasonably fertile. A paper, still preserved, states the conditions under which the farm was to be rented in 1777, after Wm. Tennent's death, during the interim of pastors ; from which it appears that Indian corn, wheat, oats, and flax were the principal products at that time, and as such they prove the fruitfulness of the soil.

The parsonage house was situated about a mile and a half, around by carriage road, southeast from the present church building, and is described in Franklin Ellis' "History of Monmouth County," page 686, as "a low building, large on the ground, with four lower rooms,—two on each side of the hall,—with kitchen attached in the rear. Above was the attic room, sloping on one side with the rafters, and with a window facing the north, which, as is said, was used as a study by both Mr. Tennent and Mr. Woodhull. During the battle of June 28, 1778, a round shot came through the roof into this room while the conflict raged furiously around the house and in the adjoining orchard." In 1795 some move appears to have been made for the repair and improvement of the parsonage buildings, and although it does not state that the work was done the record paper reads :

"It is the opinion of the Commity Appointed to judg what Cash will be necery for the Repairs of the personage buildings &c that the Barn & garden Cant be well done under Seventy or Seventy five pounds : the house & Citchen to Repair them well and Inlarge the Sellar will take two hundred and twenty five. It is our opinion to take down one part of the house & build a New one from the foundation would be Most to the advantage of the Congr. and the Comfort of Mr. Woodhull.

Signed by order Thomas Cook
James Anderson
April 10th 1795 Jon. Perrine."

This at least gives us an idea of the condition of the parsonage buildings at that time. A new barn was built in 1802, and a new kitchen a few years later.

In this parsonage home Wm. Tennent lived for about forty years. Here his wife proved herself an able and skillful manager and true help-meet, for "She took the care of his temporal concerns upon her, extricated him from debt, and by a happy union of prudence and economy, so managed all his worldly business that in a few years his circumstances became easy and comfortable." And she and Mr. Tennent proved themselves genial and hospitable entertainers. Here Whitefield, the famous evangelist, was a guest and held fellowship with the godly pastor of Old Tennent. Doubtless to this parsonage David Brainerd occasionally came during his short and toilsome ministry, and possibly also some of his Christian Indians to whom Mr. Tennent was a true friend. Here Wm. Tennent also entertained John Brainerd, sometimes over night, and comforted him "in his sadness and depression." In this house also it appears, from the diary of John Brainerd, that Mr. Tennent entertained Governor Belcher and his wife in October 1749.

In this old parsonage Rev. John Woodhull also lived for more than two score years, and probably some of the young men that studied under his teaching. Rev. D. V. McLean was the last pastor that occupied it, although his predecessor, Rev. Robert Roy, had not made it his home. Many and impressive sermons were prepared under its roof, and about a hundred years of daily family prayers sanctified it as a Bethel in the community. It was a silent witness to the struggle on Monmouth's field, and hard by its doors the gallant English colonel, Henry Monckton, fell mortally wounded. In the fields around the house, and even under its very windows, cannon balls and musket bullets have been picked up during the years since. And later on some New Jersey regiments that entered the terrible battles of the Civil War, drilled and equipped on their camp field very near the site where the old parsonage had stood.

In 1827 the parsonage farm was rented by the church for one year to Wm. I Thompson for $300 : and again in 1831 it was rented to the same man for $290. Notwithstanding the design of the purchasers of the parsonage farm to have it secured "for the use of the Presbyterian Congregation forever," it appears that the trustees and congregation, after discussion and deliberation that extended through a period of more than twenty years, finally decided to dispose of it, and just one hundred years to the very month the farm was sold, as the paper of the conditions of sale dated March 16, 1835 records "William T. Sutfin, being the highest bidder the Farm was struck off to him at the Sum of Nine Thousand nine hundred dollars." Thus was made a break in the historical connections of the temporal possessions of the old church, which never can be replaced, since the old parsonage was more venerable than the old church building itself, it being commonly alleged that the house on this parsonage farm was erected in 1706. For some years this old house stood empty, a sorrowful reminder of men that were buried and of things that were past. It gradually fell into decay, and became lamentably dilapidated, partly by the ravages of time and partly by the hands of relic-seekers, who frequently stopped off the rail-road trains which ran close by, and carried away memento pieces. Finally, about 1861, the old building was taken down.

John Brainerd writes in his journal, "Tuesday, Aug. 22, 1749.— Attended religious duties, and after some time took leave of Dr. Le Count and his spouse, and rode about three miles to a medicinal spring, where were a number of my people, who came there to drink the waters ; with these I spent considerable time in conversation and prayer. Took leave of them, and went to several houses in Freehold, where I had business, and in the evening came to Mr. Tennent's ; after some conversation with him, attended to religious duties and went to rest." The name of Dr. Peter Laconte with that of Velariah his wife appears in the early church records as a communicant in 1744 ; and again he is owner of pew No. 7 in the gallery, £8, 1755 ; also he had five children baptized some at home, and some possibly at one of the meeting-houses. Doubtless this is the same person of whom John Brainerd speaks, and whom Brainerd's biographer calls "a pious parishioner of Tennent's." Steen says that Dr. La Conte and his wife Velariah were members of Shrewsbury church ; that he was of Huguenot descent, and that he "preached" as well as "practiced ;" that his second wife was Velariah, daughter of John Eaton, founder of Eatontown ; that some of his descendants became the celebrated California professors of Natural History ; and that his tombstone is about the oldest in the old Presbyterian graveyard at Matawan near Freneau depot ; that his wife's sister, Joanna Eaton, was the wife of Rev. Elihu Spencer, D. D., and in her descendants are to be numbered the celebrated Miller family of Princeton.

The medicinal spring, of which Brainerd speaks, may possibly be the one on the farm of Staats C. Stillwell, and about three miles from Old Tennent church ; but more probably it is the one that is located in the neighborhood of Tinton Falls.

CHAPTER IV.

REV. JOHN BOYD, 1705-1708.

The Rev. A. P. Cobb stated in a historical sermon that the Rev. Mr. Keith while a missionary at Topanemus preached in the Old Scots church, and that also probably John Gray preached there in 1708. But evidently the first pastor in Old Scots, as far as can now be definitely known, was Rev. John Boyd. He was virtually so, and considered so, though not regularly installed. Probably, before him, there was no stated preaching by one man, the church only being served when occasional supplies could be obtained. When such supplies could not be obtained it is only justice to those church members, trained in Covenanters' ways, to suppose that they gathered on the Lord's day, possibly in the Old Scots meeting-house, read the sacred Scriptures, sang Psalms, catechized the youth, and united in prayer unto the Lord who hears and answers prayer.

Considerable research by different students has resulted in discovering scarcely anything definite concerning the history of John Boyd previously to his coming to Old Scots. He was born about 1680, and as is believed in Scotland. Webster (p. 90) suggests that when Rev. Francis Makemie returned to America in the fall of 1705 accompanied by the Rev. John Hampton and George McNish, that it is not unlikely that Mr. Boyd came with them as a probationer. Rev. Dr. Alfred Nevin in his "History of the Presbytery of Philadelphia" says of John Boyd, "His name is entered in the University of Glasgow, as a student of the 4th class, March 11, 1701, without nationality." The surname Boyd is often found in the lists and records of that period. In the list of settlers that came with Lord Neil Campbell in 1685 is found the name of John Boyd, but this is evidently a different man from the preacher at Old Scots. Smith says (in Note 21) "The Rev. William Boyd, pastor of Lamington Presb. Church, 1784-1807, was 'the son of John Boyd, a Scotch-Irishman, was born in Franklin county, Penn., where his father settled on removing to America.' Manual of Lamington Church, p. 12. Mr. John Boyd Van Doren, of Princeton, considers Rev. Wm. Boyd 'the son or direct descendant of the Rev. John Boyd of Monmouth.' " John S. Neill, of Phil. Pa., is a descendant of Sarah Knott, who had brothers Peter and John, and sisters Mary Knott (nee Holmes) and Lydia Knott (nee Hufman). Sarah Knott married a Mr. Boyd, and Mr. Neil thinks that this may have been Rev. John Boyd. A certain John Boyd, buried in Old Tennent yard in 1863 in his 75th year, came from Ireland, and was a teacher and afterwards a merchant in the Tennent community.

In the Monmouth Co. old record book, immediately following the statement about the recording of Old Scots meeting-house, Dec. 1705 as referred to in Chap. II, is this item,

"Mr. John Boyd Minnister of the sd Presbeterians of freehold did also Parsonally Appear & did desire that he might be Admitted to qualify himself as the law directs in that behalf. Ordered that further Consideration thereof be Refered untill the next Court of Quarter Sessions."

Further on the old minute book reads,

"Att a Court of Generall Quarter Sessions Begun & Held att Shrowsbury for ye County of Monmouth on ye 28 day of May 1706. The Justices Present Were Capn. John Bowne, Capn. Richard Salter, Jeremiah Stillwell, George Allen Esqrs." In the record of the next day's session, May 29, 1706, the same justices and also Obediah Bowne being present, is also this item,

"Whereas Mr. John Boyd, Minister of ye Presbyterians of freehold, Made applycation to ye Court of Sessions, held Last December, yt he Might be admitted to qualifie himselfe as ye Law Directs in yt behalfe, and ye Court ordered yt further Consideration thereof should be Refered, and Now ye Sd. About a year after John Boyd appeared in the Monmouth court he is found in Presbytery, for the first page of the earliest records of the first Presbytery in America opens in the midst of a minute concerning the examination of Mr. Boyd in view of ordination to the ministry. The ordination took place Sunday, Dec. 29, 1706. Because of the loss of the first leaf of the records the account begins abruptly, and reads as follows :

FIRST PAGE OF THE MINUTES OF THE PBY. OF PHILA., THE EARLIEST PRES. RECORDS IN AMERICA.

Of Mr. Boyd's popular sermon on John 1: 12 "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name", Rev. H. G. Smith (p. 25) exegetically remarks "This is one of those texts that Luther aptly names 'little Bibles', and in it the young preacher, before his stern but kindly critics, could manifest his ability to expound, defend and apply the great doctrines of Election, Adoption, Faith and Conversion".

Mr. Boyd was faithful in being present at every meeting of Presbytery until his death, and he was chosen by the Presbytery to matters and positions of importance; in 1707 on a committee with Mr. Andrews to "prepare some overtures to be considered by the Presbytery for propagating religion in their respective congregations"; in 1708 on a committee with Mr. Wilson and Mr. Andrews to "wait upon them at Cohansey, in order to his (Mr. Smith's) ordination, and the people are to present them a call to the said Mr. Smith"; in 1708 at the same meeting on a committee with Mr. Andrews and Mr. Mc Nish to "read over the letters from Woodbridge concerning the differences betwixt that people and Mr. Wade, and make a summary report thereof at the next meeting"; and also at the same meeting Mr. Boyd was appointed to preach every third sabbath at Woodbridge if those people desired it, and if the people of Freehold would consent to it, and under certain conditions of a meeting place. Thus it will be seen that Mr. Boyd's ministerial duties in his short career, called him out on long horse-back rides through the state of New Jersey, beside his regular pastoral seivice at Old Scots. Dr. Mc Lean says that Mr. Boyd "devoted some portion of his time to Middletown".

On May 20, 1708 a letter was presented in Presbytery by the people of Freehold about the settlement of Mr. Boyd, and it was "referred till the next meeting". The reason for this postponement is not given. Before the next meeting Mr. Boyd had gone to the house appointed for all living; and so in the meeting of 1709 the Presbytery made this sad, short, expressive record "The Rev. Mr. John Boyd being dead, what relates to him ceases". He died August 30, 1708, and was buried in the Old Scots sacred acre, close to where the church is supposed to have stood. A tombstone of brown sandstone inscribed in Latin was set over his grave. At first it was laid horizontal on a packing of stone and lime. In this position it rested for nearly 175 years, until, about 1883, in a neglected and dilapidated state and covered with a luxuriant growth of lichens it attracted the attention of Gideon C. Mc Dowell, living nearby the cemetery, who respectfully thinking to preserve it, raised it to an upright position, fastening one end of the slab to the ground. Rev. Prof. H. C. Cameron, of Princeton University, thinks that this stone possibly was brought across the ocean as ballast for a ship. He has made a very careful study of the Latin inscription, which is intricate in its diction and becoming much time-worn on the face of the stone. The following is Prof. Cameron's copy of the Latin inscription and his translation into English :

He died the thirtieth day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eight, in the twenty-ninth year of his age.*

Thus it is noticed that Mr. Boyd's ministry at Old Scots was of short duration, and his death must have been a sad experience to the hopes of the little church. Mr. Steen claims that Rev. John Boyd came to Old Scots largely through the influence of Peter Watson. Searching for record of Mr. Boyd's will in corroboration of this, he says, "Instead of a will, however, we found that on September 8, 1708, Governor Richard Ingoldsby, Governor of New York, New Jersey, etc., granted letters of administration upon the estate of 'John Boyde', of Monmouth county, to Peter Watson. Which, considering all the circumstances, seems to indicate Peter Watson as the intimate friend and acquaintance of the dead pastor."

The church possesses no records concerning Mr. Boyd's pastorate, and no papers showing his hand-writing or in any way suggesting the location of his home, the salary that was paid him, or his family connections, or the church officers associated with him.

Much interest in Presbyterian circles, especially in New Jersey, has centered of late in Old Scots yard, from the fact that Rev. John Boyd was the first minister ordained by the first Presbytery in America, and the fact that Old Scots was the church of which he was pastor, and the fact that his grave had been marked with a tombstone prominently inscribed, while the grave of Rev. Francis Makemie, the moderator at his ordination, is unknown. In 1894 Rev. Allen H. Brown brought these facts into prominence before the Synod of New Jersey, and at that time the Synod appointed a committee, of which Mr. Brown was chairman, to consider what might be done to commemorate the establishment of the Old Scots and Tennent church, and to arrange for a visitation of these historic places. Largely through the leadership and the untiring efforts of Mr. Brown such a commemorative gathering was arranged and pleasurably accomplished on Tuesday, June 4, 1895. It was called the "Boyd-Tennent-Pilgrimage." Invitations were sent out to different ecclesiastical bodies, to various institutions, and to high public officials, to be present at the exercises; and general notices were given through the press. At the forenoon session in Old Scots yard Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Studdiford presided: and after devotional exercises, addresses were made by Rev. Dr. George Swain "On the Beginnings of Monmouth," by Rev. Frank M. Kerr "On Walter Ker and his Posterity," by Rev. Dr. John S. McIntosh "On Makemie, Our First Father and his Monument," by Rev. H. G. Smith "On Rev. John Boyd:"—Greetings etc. followed. At the afternoon session in Old Tennent church Rev. Dr. F. R. Brace presided assisted by Mr. Brown. The pastor of the church extended a welcome and exhibited some relics. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield "The Pioneer Guard of New Jersey Presbyterianism," by Rev. Dr. J. Henry Sharpe "The Presbyterian Historical Society," by Col. James S. Yard "The Battle of Monmouth," by James Steen, Esq., "Prominent Scotch, Irish and Huguenot Settlers of Monmouth County :"—Greetings etc followed.

It was decided to raise in Old Scots yard a monument to Presbyterianism, and Mr. Brown was placed at the head of this movement. By his indefatigable exertions the funds were raised in due time, churches and individuals contributing. The monument was built by Messrs. J. & R. Lamb of New York after carefully studied designs. It is suggestively composed of Scotch and Vermont granite and Irish greystone, surmounted by a Scotch thistle carved in Scotch granite. Fastened to the monument are tablets and seals all of bronze, and all bearing historical significance. Its cost complete was $1300. It is known by the name of "The Presbyterian Historical Monument." A similar visitation to that of 1895 was arranged, and successfully accomplished on Thursday, June 14, 1900. At the forenoon session in Old Scots ground Rev. Dr. A. N. Hollifield presided. After devotional exercises Rev. A. H. Brown gave the history and description of the monument, and Walter Kerr, Esq., of New York, unveiled it. Rev. Dr. Geo. D. Baker made the dedicatory prayer. Rev. Dr. R. F. Sample presented the greetings and congratulations of the Northern General Assembly, and Rev. Dr. Robt. P. Kerr bore the salutations from the Southern General Assembly. Rev. Dr. W. H. Roberts made an address on " Characteristics of the Presbyterian Church." At Old Tennent church in the afternoon Dr. Hollifield again presided. Rev. Dr. Parke P. Flournoy made an address on "Presbyterians before Presbytery." Then followed brief addresses by Revs. Dr. H. C. Cameron, H. G. Smith, H. B. McCauley, F. R Symmes, Wm. M. Rice, and Robert Alexander.

After this, another fund of $1000 was raised, the income of which is to be used primarily for the preservation of the monument and the care of the grounds. The trustees of Synod who hold the fund, and the trustees of Old Tennent who hold the deed for the yard, have executed a written agreement between them for the proper performance of this work in the Old Scots ground. The old tombstone of Rev. John Boyd was taken to Philadelphia, encased in a strong standing-frame made from locust trees grown at Old Scots, and set up in the Library of the Presbyterian Historical Society.

CHAPTER V.

REV. JOSEPH MORGAN, 1708–1729.

Rev. Joseph Morgan was the second pastor in Old Scots. He was possibly of Welsh descent. His grandfather, James Morgan, came to New London, Connecticut, about 1647. His third son married April 1670 Dorothy Parks, daughter of Thomas. Their son Joseph was born in New London, Conn., Nov. 6, 1674. It is said that he graduated at Yale College, 1702, being in the first class that completed its course in that institution; but he had begun to preach before this. The Association of Ministers of Fairfield County, Conn., ordained him. He served churches in Bedford, and in East Chester, N. Y., and in Greenwich, Conn. In the close of the year 1708, or in 1709, he came to Old Scots. He was pastor of this church; and at the same time he was pastor, or "Dominie," of the Brick church at Marlboro, now called The First Reformed Church of Freehold, where he was installed Oct. 17, 1709. When he appeared before the court to qualify in Sept. 1709, the record terms him "Minister of ye Presbiterians in Freehold & Middletowne." (old Court Records p. 152.) The Dutch church at Marlboro (Freehold) was connected with a church at Middletown, "a double congregation of Dutch settlers, sometimes called 'the congregation of the Navesink.'" And according to Ellis' Hist. Mon. Co. p. 532, a Presbyterian edifice was built on its burying ground plot at Middletown soon after 1706, and that John Boyd and then Joseph Morgan had the care of the congregation. Rev. T. W. Wells says, "When he (Mr. Morgan) appeared in Court to take the necessary oaths as a minister of the Gospel, he was presented by representatives of both congregations (Old Scots and Marlboro). These oaths were required because he was not a minister of the church of England. According to 'An Act of Parliament for Exempting her Majesties Protestant subjects discenting from the Church of England, from the penalties of certain laws,' every minister not in the communion of the English church was obliged to take oath that he would not teach the doctrine of Transubstantiation, nor anything contrary to the doctrine of the Trinity, as taught in the thirty-nine articles of the English church. This was called 'qualifying,' and in this manner Dominie Morgan 'qualified' himself, in December, 1709, having been 'presented by several of said congregation, viz : Jacob Laen, John Wikof, John Sutfin, William Hendrickson, John Essmith, William Wilkins and Auri Mattison, in behalf of themselves and the rest of their brethren.' The first three of these persons were in the communion of the Reformed church, the others represented the Scotch Presbyterians." Auri Mattison was probably Aaron Mattison, then twenty-eight years of age. Mr. Morgan lived on the parsonage farm belonging to the Dutch church, which had "one hundred acres of good arable land, as good as any in Freehold, on which a family may subsist comfortably." Speaking of his sons Mr. Morgan said "His eldest son had been more of an impediment than a help to him ; his second son was at Yale ; and the third and fourth relieved him from the labour of the parsonage plantation" (see Webster.) The Dutch church and Scots church were not greatly distant from each other, and Mr. Morgan was able to preach both in the English and Low Dutch languages. But the Dutch church at that time was more flourishing than the Scots, and so all parties were willing that the Dutch church should employ three-fourths of the services of Mr. Morgan. Yet during the whole period of his pastorate he was a member of the Presbytery of Philadelphia, or at least from the time he was received as a member of that body in Sep. 1710.

"At this time Monmouth county was little less than a forest. Here and there was a clearing, but the settlements were widely scattered, the streams unbridged, and the roads not much more than paths through the wilderness. Horseback riding for many years was a necessity. In the latter part of his ministry Dominie Morgan, it is said, attracted attention by riding through the country in a two wheeled cart or gig—probably the first thing of the kind brought into the county." (Wells) Indians lived in the country during and long after Mr. Morgan's pastorate. In June 1727 a certain Indian King, Wequalia, was executed at Perth Amboy for the murder of Capt. John Leonard. When the sheriff asked him if any of the ministers should pray with him before he died, he rather indifferently chose Mr. Morgan, and chose him only "because he was his Neighbor." This shows how heathen were at the very doors of Old Scots, and suggests the varied character of Mr. Morgan's ministrations.

He wrote and printed a number of treatises and dissertations, the study of which as well as of his letters and the records concerning him might lead one to style him as somewhat eccentric. Certainly he was possessed of intellectual ability, and was a man of extended erudition for his times. A letter was preserved that he wrote in Latin to Cotton Mather in 1721. He was of an ingenious inventive turn of mind, but possibly might be called visionary. In his later life various charges were brought against his conduct, apparently without foundation. But later on, in 1736, Presbytery disciplined him on the unfortunate charge of intemperance, and suspended him for a season. He was subsequently restored to his good standing.

The only record the church possesses about Mr. Morgan is the following :—

"October 15, 1730. the Revd. Mr. Joseph Morgan (after having made a Complaint against this Congregation that that they Owed him above £200 Arreas of Sallarie) Met the Congregation at the Old (or Scots) Meeting House, where Accompts was fairly made up, and Mr. Morgan gave the Congregation a Discharge in full the Copy which is Received October 15th, 1730 from the Congregation Freehold, full Sattisfaction to this Day for all Sallarie Due to him as their Pastor, Joseph Morgan. a True Copy p Me John Henderson." In 1729, or 1730, he separated from the Old Scots church, but remained a while longer with the Dutch church at Marlboro, when he went to labor in the churches of Hopewell and Maidenhead. He died about 1742 while ardently engaged in missionary labors in destitute districts along the seacoasts of New Jersey, and was buried in a grave now probably unknown.

What little is known about the church and congregation during these years apparently discloses a sad condition, especially toward the close of Mr. Morgan's pastorate. Divisions seem to have arisen among the people, and probably also an opposition to Mr. Morgan, in which perhaps was Walter Ker. Rev. Wm. Tennent, Jr., in a letter to Rev. Mr. Prince of Boston, says of the Freehold church, "In the year 1729 their minister removed from them, and they were so grievously divided among themselves, that it appeared improbable they would ever agree in the settlement of another. In this miserable, helpless and almost hopeless condition they lay, and few among them had eyes to see, or hearts to bewail, their woful, wretched circumstances. Thus they seemed to be cast out, as the prophet Ezekiel represents it in the 16th chapter of his book, and 5th verse. But the Lord, who is rich in mercy, of his unexpected and unmerited love, passed by them lying in their blood, and said unto many of them since that day, Live; and live they shall to all eternity." The church had undoubtedly grown in some degree during Mr. Morgan's time, even though it was somewhat distracted when he left. But refreshing times, and better days were coming, and the beginning of a long period of prosperity and comparative peace.

CHAPTER VI.

REV. JOHN TENNENT, 1730–1732.

The third pastor of the church was Rev. John Tennent, who entered upon his ministry and continued through his short career in all the ardor and consecration natural to youth. He was a young man eminently pious, and "thoroughly furnished unto all good works." He belonged to the family of Tennents that have become famous in Presbyterian history. Rev. Wm. Tennent, Sr., his father, was born and educated in Ireland, and ordained a priest 1706 in the Episcopal church of that country. In May 1702 he married the daughter of Rev. Gilbert Kennedy, and by her had four sons, Gilbert, William, John and Charles. With his wife and four sons he came to America 1716, and preached in New York and Pennsylvania. In 1718 he united with the Synod of Pa. writing out the reasons for his changing to the Presbyterian denomination. He was settled as pastor of the church at Neshaminy, Pa., 1726 about twenty miles north of Philadelphia, and being a man of classical learning, so much so that he could converse freely in the Latin language, and seeing the need of higher schools of learning for young men, he erected an academy house, about twenty feet long and nearly as broad, built of logs, close by his own dwelling, and began his teaching. This school came to be known as the "Log College," from which has "proceeded streams of blessings to the church." Its founder died 1746 aged 73 years. Log College may be considered the virtual beginning of what is now Princeton University.

John Tennent was born in county Armaugh, North Ireland, Nov. 12, 1707. When a boy he came to America with his father, and was afterwards educated in the "Log College." His conviction of sin was unusually deep and intense, bringing him sometimes almost to despair; and he continued in agony for about four days and four nights with "doleful lamentations." On the other hand his conversion was a remarkable experience of inexpressible joy and abiding consolation. Distinguished for piety and consecrated zeal in his Christian life, he was a modest, gentle, humble young man; yet he proved to be possessed of the traits of an attractive and powerfully effective preacher.

Walter Ker, went to Neshaminy (as will be related in Chapter X) and was instrumental, under God, of inducing John Tennent to make a preaching visit to Old Scots, which resulted in the congregation giving him a unanimous call April 15, 1730. The following autumn he was settled as pastor, and entered upon his labors which he fulfilled with "prudence, diligence, and success." John Henderson's congregational record reads: "Thursday, November 19th, 1730 Then the Presbytry or a Committee of the Same Met at the Scots Meeting house and after fasting and prayer and Strict Examination and full Approbation Did Ordain the Revd. Mr. John Tennent * * Ministerial Charge in this Congregation: The Ministers N—— * that * * * * William Tennent, Jonathan Dickinson, Joseph Morgan, and Gilbert Tennent. The Names of the Committee for the Congregation was Walter Ker & John Hutton Elders, Jonathan Forman Esqr. Richard Clark, David Rhe, Richard Watson, William Ker, Robt Cumming, John Henderson, Robert Newall, Waltar Wilson, George Walker, Timothy Lloyd & Charles Gordon." As has been said, the congregation was in a deplorable condition when John Tennent was requested to preach in the church. Wm. Tennent, Jr., in his letter, previously mentioned, says that his brother shrunk from going to preach in Freehold, for he wrote that John "often told me, that he was heartily sorry that he had engaged to go among them, for it seemed to him that they were a people whom God had given up for their abuse of the gospel. But the Lord's thoughts are not our thoughts, nor his ways our ways, for when he had preached four or five Sabbaths in the place, which was the whole time he tarried among them at first, the Lord so blessed his labours, engaging people to attend to the things which were spoken, and in stirring them up to search the Scriptures whether these things were so or not, and withal enabling him to preach to them with such uncommon freedom and earnestness, that he told me he was fully persuaded Christ Jesus had a large harvest to bring home there ; so that, though they were a poor broken people, yet if they called him, he would settle among them, albeit he should be put to beg his bread by so doing."

During his pastorate John Tennent preached both in the Old Scots church and in the new and first church on White Hill. The next month after his ordination he baptized Jane Henderson, daughter of John, who made this entry in the church record of baptisms "The first Child ever the Revd. Mr. John Tennent Baptized." She died in her 19th year, and her tombstone may still be seen in the Old Scots yard. John Tennent's ministry was remarkably fruitful. He came to the Freehold church seemingly as a ready and tireless reaper to a ripe harvest. Again Wm. Tennent's letter says of his brother "his labours were greatly blessed, so that the place of public worship was usually crowded with people of all ranks and orders, as well as professions, that obtained in that part of the country, and they seemed to hear generally as for their lives ; yea, such as were wont to go to those places for their diversion, viz. to hear news or speak to their tradesmen, &c., even on the Lord's day, as they themselves have since confessed, were taken in the gospel net. A solemn awe of God's majesty possessed many, so that they behaved themselves as at his bar while in his house. Many tears were usually shed when he preached, and sometimes the body of the congregation was moved or affected. I can say, and let the Lord alone have the glory of it, that I have seen both minister and people wet with their tears, as with a bedewing rain. It was no uncommon thing to see persons in the time of hearing, sobbing as if their hearts would break, but without any public outcry, and some have been carried out of the assembly (being overcome) as if they had been dead." A great reforming work began. Religion was the common topic. Many sought the saving power of Christ. These reviving times in old Freehold under John Tennent formed a portion of the early workings of "The Great Awakening" in America in the eighteenth century. Dr. D. V. Mc Lean's lecture on John Tennent says "According to tradition his zeal was ardent, his style beautiful with remarkable fluency of expression, and luxuriance and aptness of illustration, while a peculiar tenderness, compassion and pathos, breathed in all he said, even while denouncing the terrors of the law against the secure and impenitent. His memory was long and lovingly cherished by his people."

But God soon took this young servant to himself; for, only two years after the church had called him, this saintly young man, on a Sabbath morning April 23, 1732 entered his eternal rest. The people, who had greatly respected and trusted him, mourned deeply over his early departure. This is expressed by John Henderson in his congregational record, "Lords Day April 23th 1732. The Reverd. & Dear Mr. John Tennant Departed this Life between 8 & 9 of the Clock in the Morning and was Buried on The Tuesday following A Mournful Providence & cause of great Humiliation to this poor Congregation to be bereaved of the flour of Youth The most Labourious Successful well Quallified & pious Pastor this Age aforded tho. but a Youth of 25 Years 5 Months & 11 Days of Age." For about six months before he died he was physically unable to preach in the public services, but "his love for his people and concern for their welfare" rather increased than diminished. He was quick to see the work of God in the heart. He, with his brother William, believed in early regeneration, for just two months before he died a little girl, Hannah Hankinson, aged 13 years, was received into the full communion of the church. The results of his ministry continued to be manifested in the conversion of souls very conspicuously after his death; and which his brother William said were reaped by him especially during the early years of his long pastorate in the church. Thus in whatever credit that may be attached to human agency under God's blessing in making the life of Old Tennent vigorous and influential, the name of John Tennent, in some respects more than that of Wm. Tennent, deserves a position of distinguished honor.

John Tennent was buried in Old Scots yard, hard by the old building; and for his tombstone, that lies horizontally sinking into the turf, the Rev. Jonathan Dickinson of Elizabethtown composed the epitaph, which still may plainly be seen:

"Here lies what was mortal of

Who quick grew old in learning Vertue Grace.
Quick finished well yielded to Death's Embrace.

Whose soul triumphant with bright Seraphs reigns.
Waiting the time till Heaven's bright Concave flame
And ye last trump repairs this ruined frame.

The grave stone is quadrangular in form, lies flat in the ground, gray and brown with age, and sacred with the memory of his godly life, a very inspiration to the thoughtful observer. Two sermons of John Tennent's writing are left, one on "The Nature of Regeneration," and the other on "The Nature of Adoption."

CHAPTER VII.

REV. WILLIAM TENNENT, JR., 1733–1777.

The fourth pastor of Old Tennent (formerly called Freehold) was the Rev. William Tennent, Jr., famous in religious and church history. He was born June 3, 1705 in the county of Armaugh, Ireland, and was a boy in his teens when he came with his father to America, as related in the foregoing chapter. In his studies he showed great industry, and became particularly proficient in the Latin language. Early in life he was deeply impressed with a sense of divine things, and soon determined to devote his life to the ministry of the gospel. His biography is of surpassing interest, a fascinating story of the unusual and extraordinary in spiritual life ; the main features of which are too well known to recount here in detail. The memoir of Mr. Tennent was first published in "The Assembly's Missionary Magazine" 1806, and was prepared by Hon. Elias Boudinot, LL. D., but at his request the greater part of the narrative was written by Thomas Henderson, M. D., one of Old Tennent's faithful elders and most distinguished sons. The original manuscript has long been in the possession of the Historical Society of New Jersey. The story has been published in book form by Dr. Archibald Alexander in his "Log College" (Presbyterian Board of Publication, Phila.) from which quotations are herein made ; and also the story is published in neat booklet form (Robert Carter & Bros., New York). To these the reader is referred for further account than herein given. The most prominent feature in Mr. Tennent's life and personal experience is the account of his remarkable and celebrated trance. He had completed his course in the languages, and then had gone to New Brunswick, N. J., to study theology under his brother Gilbert who was preacher of the church in that town. While there he experienced the trance ; and it is said, that the house, in which it is supposed to have taken place, can still be pointed out. The story is told in the book "Log College" as follows :—

REV. WILLIAM TENNENT Jr

"After a regular course of study in theology, Mr. Tennent was preparing for his examination by the Presbytery as a candidate for the gospel ministry. His intense application affected his health, and brought on a pain in his breast, and a slight hectic. He soon became emaciated, and at length was like a living skeleton. His life was now threatened. He was attended by a physician, a young gentleman who was attached to him by the strictest and warmest friendship. He grew worse and worse, till little hope of life was left. In this situation, his spirits failed him, and he began to entertain doubts of his final happiness. He was conversing one morning with his brother in Latin, on the state of his soul, when he fainted and died away. After the usual time he was laid out on a board, according to the common practice of the country, and the neighborhood were invited to attend his funeral on the next day. In the evening, his physician and friend returned from a ride in the country, and was afflicted beyond measure at the news of his death. He could not be persuaded that it was certain ; and on being told that one of the persons who had assisted in laying out the body thought he had observed a little tremor of the flesh under the arm, although the body was cold and stiff, he endeavored to ascertain the fact. He first put his own hand into warm water, to make it as sensible as possible, and then felt under the arm, and at the heart, and affirmed that he felt an unusual warmth, though no one else could. He had the body restored to a warm bed, and insisted that the people who had been invited to the funeral should be requested not to attend. To this the brother objected as absurd, the eyes being sunk, the lips discoloured, and the whole body cold and stiff. However, the doctor finally prevailed, and all probable means were used to discover symptoms of returning life. But the third day arrived, and no hopes were entertained of success but by the doctor, who never left him night nor day. The people were again invited, and assembled to attend the funeral. The doctor still objected, and at last confined his request for delay to one hour, then to half an hour, and finally to a quarter of an hour. He had discovered that the tongue was much swollen, and threatened to crack. He was endeavoring to soften it, by some emollient ointment put upon it with a feather, when the brother came in, about the expiration of the last period, and mistaking what the doctor was doing for an attempt to feed him, manifested some resentment, and in a spirited tone said, 'It is shameful to be feeding a lifeless corpse;' and insisted with earnestness, that the funeral should immediately proceed. At this critical and important moment, the body to the great alarm and astonishment of all present opened its eyes, gave a dreadful groan and sunk again into apparent death. This put an end to all thoughts of burying him, and every effort was again employed in hopes of bringing about a speedy resuscitation. In about an hour the eyes again opened, a heavy groan proceeded from the body, and again all appearance of animation vanished. In another hour life seemed to return with more power, and a complete revival took place to the great joy of the family and friends, and to the no small astonishment and conviction of very many who had been ridiculing the idea of restoring to life a dead body.

"Mr. Tennent continued in so weak and low a state for six weeks, that great doubts were entertained of his final recovery. However, after that period he recovered much faster, but it was about twelve months before he was completely restored. After he was able to walk the room, and to take notice of what passed around him, on a Sunday afternoon, his sister, who had staid from church to attend him, was reading in the Bible, when he took notice of it and asked her what she had in her hand. She answered that she was reading the Bible. He replied, 'What is the Bible? I know not what you mean.' This affected the sister so much that she burst into tears, and informed him that he was once well acquainted with it. On her reporting this to the brother, when he returned, Mr. Tennent was found, upon examination, to be totally ignorant of every transaction of life previous to his sickness. He could not read a single word, neither did he seem to have any idea of what it meant. As soon as he became capable of attention, he was taught to read and write, as children are usually taught, and afterwards began to learn the Latin language under the tuition of his brother. One day, as he was reciting a lesson in Cornelius Nepos, he suddenly started, clapped his hand to his head, as if something had hurt him, and made a pause. His brother asking him what was the matter, he said that he felt a sudden shock in his head, and now it seemed to him as if he had read that book before. By degrees his recollection was restored, and he could speak Latin as fluently as before his sickness. His memory so completely revived, that he gained a perfect knowledge of the past transactions of his life, as if no difficulty had previously occurred. This event, at the time, made a considerable noise, and afforded, not only a matter of serious contemplation to the devout Christian, especially when connected with what follows in this narration, but furnished a subject of deep investigation and learned inquiry to the real philosopher and curious anatomist.

"The writer of these memoirs was greatly interested by these uncommon events ; and, on a favourable occasion, earnestly pressed Mr. Tennent for a minute account of what his views and apprehensions were, while he lay in this extraordinary state of suspended animation. He discovered great reluctance to enter into any explanation of his perceptions and feelings, at this time ; but, being importunately urged to do it, he at length consented, and proceeded with a solemnity not to be described.

" ' While I was conversing with my brother,' said he, 'on the state of my soul, and the fears I had entertained for my future welfare, I found myself, in an instant, in another state of existence, under the direction of a superior being, who ordered me to follow him. I was accordingly wafted along, I know not how, till I beheld at a distance an ineffable glory, the impression of which on my mind it is impossible to communicate to mortal man. I immediately reflected on my happy change, and thought,—Well, blessed be God ! I am safe at last, notwithstanding all my fears. I saw an innumerable host of happy beings surrounding the inexpressible glory, in acts of adoration and joyous worship ; but I did not see any bodily shape or representation in the glorious appearance. I heard things unutterable. I heard their songs and hallelujahs of thanksgiving and praise with unspeakable rapture. I felt joy unutterable and full of glory. I then applied to my conductor, and requested leave to join the happy throng ; on which he tapped me on the shoulder, and said, 'You must return to the earth.' This seemed like a sword through my heart. In an instant, I recollect to have seen my brother standing before me, disputing with the doctor. The three days during which I had appeared lifeless seemed to me not more than ten or twenty minutes. The idea of returning to this world of sorrow and trouble gave me such a shock, that I fainted repeatedly.' He added, 'Such was the effect on my mind of what I had seen and heard, that if it be possible for a human being to live entirely above the world and the things of it, for some time afterwards I was that person. The ravishing sound of the songs and hallelujahs that I heard, and the very words uttered, were not out of my ears when awake, for at least three years. All the kingdoms of the earth were in my sight as nothing and vanity ; and so great were my ideas of heavenly glory, that nothing which did not in some measure relate to it could command my serious attention.' ''

It appears that Mr. Tennent had written out a more extended account of this trance and left it among his papers. But these papers were either burned in Dr. Henderson's house when it was destroyed by fire at the time of the Battle of Monmouth, or lost after the death of Mr. Tennent's son in Carolina. Many interesting anecdotes are recorded about Mr. Tennent in regard to his preaching, his manners, his dealing with men, and his personal and spiritual experience, which may variously be described as amusing, singular, extraordinary, mysterious.

Wm. Tennent's autograph, here shown, was taken from a receipt of 1773, when he was about sixty-eight years of age. In personal appearance he was tall in stature, being somewhat over six feet, and erect. His face was thin, his nose long and sharp, and his eyes bright and piercing. His countenance was of solemn mien, as might be supposed in such a man, and yet withal it was cheerful ; and he was a man of conspicuous activity in both body and mind. Thus his whole external appearance was such as would command respectful attention before any audience. A man of scrupulous integrity, of pronounced piety and intense spirituality, of decision of character, of cheerful disposition, and of thorough education, he exercised a wide influence ; and was a successful peacemaker in settling disputes and difficulties in surrounding congregations. As a preacher he was strong, attractive, prolific, successful ; a few specimens of his sermonizing remain for study to this day. Mr. Tennent was chosen as one of the first trustees in The College of New Jersey (Princeton), and his name is mentioned in the memorandum of the first charter 1747.

After the death of John Tennent the congregation turned their attention to Wm. Tennent, who had been preaching for them for about six months while his brother John was slowly dying. He supplied them for about a year and then was settled as their pastor. John Henderson gives an account of this settlement in his usual accurate statement in the Record book. He sadly writes of John Tennent's death, and then goes on to record, "after which we lived Destitute of a Pastor or any Constant Supply untill September 28 Day 1732 when the Revd. Mr. Wm. Tennent Junr. after much Reluctance was prevailed upon to Settle amongst us at least for a time. Saturday March 10th 1732-3 The Elders & the Majr. part of the Representatives met at the House of David Rhea & Chose Collectors to Collect the Ministers Sallerie for the Ensuing Year, viz. Mr. Charles Gordon, Jonathan Forman Esqr. Robert Cumming, Samuel Ker & John Henderson, with John Hutton for the fresh Ponds." (Fresh Ponds was possibly in the vicinity of what is now North Long Branch : there were Huttons or Hootons there at an early date). "Saturday September 8th 1733 David Rhe & Robert Cumming was Chosen our Commissioners to Present a Call to the Revred Mr. Wm. Tennent Junr. at the Synod of Philadelphia which Call Mr. Tennent Accepted. Thursday October 25th. 1733 A Committee of the Presbetry Met at White Hill Meeting House & after Examination & Approbation Did with Fasting Prayer & Laying on of Hands Ordain the Revd. Mr. Willm. With the settlement of Wm. Tennent the church entered upon a long period of flourishing growth. There was a great increase of communicants. The reviving times of John Tennent's ministry continued after his death, and a harvest from his labors was partially reaped by his brother through a number of years. But Wm. Tennent's preaching and energetic and thorough pastoral visitation and conversation promoted a deep spiritual influence throughout the congregation.

Wm. Tennent preached in both pulpits, the one at White Hill in the "Upper Meeting House," and the one at Old Scots the "Lower Meeting House." For arrangements about the division of preaching services in the two meeting houses, see quotation of church records in chapter II.

Wm. Tennent continued the active and earnest pastor of the church until his triumphant death March 8, 1777, when he had almost reached seventy-two years of life. He had been a helper of the poor, a friend to the rich, a true and loyal patriot, a peacemaker of unusual tact, and a trusted and revered pastor. A great concourse of people from his own congregation and from the country around assembled at his funeral service, and Dr. McLean said in his lecture on Wm. Tennent "The Rev. Charles McKnight, then pastor of the church of Shrewsbury preached the sermon at his funeral at the Parsonage and not at the church." His body was buried beneath the floor near the center of the present church building on White Hill where it still rests. It was buried there, it is said, for safety from possible molestation by English sympathizers in the Revolutionary War, probably the same that had annoyed and threatened and involved him in an unpleasant situation on account of his patriotism, just previous to his death. Forty-one years after this, in 1818, a memorial tablet three feet by six feet in size, made of white marble and with a suitable inscription was placed in the wall of the church on the west side of the pulpit. The funds for the erection of this tablet were contributed by friends, subscriptions being solicited by a young woman with others to assist her. In 1890 this tablet was removed to the wall on the east side of the pulpit, and its engraved lettters regilded. This was in order to erect a recess on the side of the church where it had first been placed, and in which a pipe organ now stands (see pulpit picture) This inscription is as follows : —

"Sacred to the Memory of the Reverend
WILLIAM TENNENT Pastor of the first Presbyterian Church in Freehold who departed this life
the 8th of March, 1777 :
Aged 71 Years, and 9 Months.
He was
Pastor of said Church
43 Years, and 6 Months.
Faithful and Beloved."

During the pastorate of Wm. Tennent some noted divines preached in the pulpit of old Freehold, as mentioned in chapter II. The American Weekly Mercury, April 24–May 1, 1740 announced the preaching places of Mr. Whitefield, for the week and shows that on Tuesday Morning at 10 o'clock May 13, 1740 he was to preach "at Mr. William Tennent's new Meeting House at Freehold, where a Collection is to be made for the Orphan House" in Georgia. This was in the first house on White Hill. Also it is a well authenticated tradition that Whitefield once preached in the present Old Tennent pulpit from the text Acts 26 : 18. Doubtless David Brainerd and his brother John both preached in the first house on White Hill, and possibly John in the second or present house. These two men were intimate friends of Wm. Tennent, and he was interested in their labors among the Indians near to Freehold, "and often took the care of the Indian church in their absence." In a letter for the general public written August 16, 1746, to attest the work of divine grace among the Indians, he says, "As I live not far from the Indians, I have been much conversant with them, both at their own place, and in my own parish, where they generally convene for public worship in Mr. BRAINERD'S absence, and I think it my duty to acknowledge, that their conversation, hath often, under God, refreshed my soul."

His elders and deacons also made an attestation of the true work of grace among the Indians as follows :

"We whose names are underwritten, being elders and deacons of the Presbyterian Church in Freehold, do hereby testify, that in our humble opinion, God, even our Saviour, has brought a considerable number of the Indians in these parts to a saving union with himself. Of this we are persuaded from a personal acquaintance with them ; whom we not only hear speak of the great doctrines of the gospel with humility, affection, and understanding, but we see walk, as far as man can judge, soberly, righteously, and godly. We have joined with them at the Lord's supper, and do from our hearts esteem them as our brethren in Jesus. For 'these who were not God's people, may now be called the children of the living God ; it is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.' Oh that he may go on 'conquering and to conquer,' until he has subdued all things to himself ! This is, and shall be the unfeigned desire and prayer of,

In the book "The Indians of New Jersey," etc., by William Nelson, Paterson, N. J., 1894, p. 141-143. is the following letter by Rev. Wm. Tennent telling of the Indian mission at Cranbury ; the style, abbreviation, and orthography of the original are here presented with the utmost accuracy :—

THE INDIAN MISSION AT CRANBURY, IN 1756.

The following letter of the Rev. William Tennent, of New Jersey, never before published, as far as known to the author, in whose possession it now is, gives some interesting particulars of the Indian Mission at Cranbury. It will be observed that Mr. Tennent uses the letter "y" very freely for "th."

Freehold march 1756

As it hes been ye Constant practis of my Reverend Brethren mesurs David, & John Brainard ; to give an act of ye state of ye Indian Congregation under their Charge (at least annualy) for ye satisfation of all concerned, with the means they used to promote God worke [am] ong them. in As much as I have been intrusted with ye care of that society, for some time past ; aprehending that something of that Kind may be (Reasonably,) expected of me, have drawn up ys General, & succinct narative.

All their Lands haveing been sold by a drunken Indian by wc they were liable to be turned off at pleasure, & so scatered yt that they cold not enjoy Gospel ordinances : to prevent wc, care has been taken to secure to ym 500 acers of ye same large tract, & they have now Removed on to it & made some considerable improvements. So yt yy have a medium for their temporal suport for ye present, & can conveniently meet for divine praise. But as their Bounds is too contracted to incourage others to setle among them I hope means will stil be used to obtain a large tract, for ye use of all such as may be inclined to embrace the christian Religion &.c. then wc nothing is more necessary to ye spreading ye gospel among ye indians, except it be, ye continewing to buld up yt Church, wc oure Lord by ye unweried labours of his servants hes gratiously Raised among them.

to return The School had been droped for some time, & ye Children neglected except by ye almost matchless pains of mr. Br & after all (by his many avocations) cold not carry ym on in their Learning as other ways yy might be. nor had he freedom to imploy a master partly becaus yy were unsetled, & partly ye smalness of ye medium wc had to support on. But as ye Learning of ye children is of ye last importance to ye spread of christian knowlog I venturd to erect ye scool under ye care of an Indian master, hopeing by ys means to have it continewed at much less charge, as also to rais in ye Indians a Laudable emulation in Learning, by advanseing one of ym selfs to be master. Blessed be God I am not disapoynted. The school is Regularly carried on ; ye Children learn well I have weekly examined them & am Refreshed at their progress. morning & evening prayer is performed by ye master, & a due decorum preserved, tho we greatly need Catechisms & other bookes ; there are between 15 & 20 ordinarily yt attend & sometimes more.

I have according to my measure preached to ye congregation once evrey week ordinarily, & frequently oftener. as I can preach wt them in ye morning, & at my one church in ye afternoon : ye distance being as is computed between 7 & 8 mils. nor have I faild to discharge evrey part of ye Pastoral office as far as I am acquainted with it, tho there has been alles and stil is in all great weaknesses, and many sinful infirmitys we need ye blood of X to cleans them.

The Congregation is in poynt of number is rather larger yn wn mr Br left it some haveing returned who had left it & have declared yy cold not be easy in their hearts without ye preached word They are sincearly attached to ye inglish intrest & I doubt not wold be as free to venture their all in defence of it as any of his magestys subjects as is evident from ye declaration of one of them called Simon who listed in ye Provinsial troops ye last campain. being asked by me wt indused him to enlist he Replied yt he understood yt ye French had not only a designe to take our lands but to keep us from serveing Jesus as he wold have us. & furder aded yt as he had given himself to X soul & body he thought it his duty to fight for him. I asked him how he made out wt his felow soldiars? he answered he was more afraid of ym yn ye enimy yy were so wicked, for sd he yy drink yy sweare yy fight, & dont mind ye Sabath I again asked him wt he did about praying? he answered, tho he cold but seldom get alone yet he often yea when under arms lifted up his heart to Jesus X who gratiously mad his heart warm wt love to him. excuse this degression.

Profesors among them are generaly regular in ye walke there has been but two instances of misconduct that I know of among ye members since I was concerned wt ye sosiety one yt was drinkeing to excess. & both have publiquely confesst it nay one of ye persons spoke so to ye congregation warning ym by his fall yt yr was floods of tears shed all over ye house he was so afected himself that he was not able to speake for some time, & after he begun to speake was more yn once constrained to stop, & sob as if his heart wold breake, such was his sence of ye dishonour done to god. I wold to god yt amongst our selfs where more may be expected there was such preceiuse evidences of contrition.

Mr. Tennent's salary, it is thought, was possibly less than £100. But he lived on the parsonage farm, which was an excellent plantation, capable of yielding a comfortable support to his family. And yet he became embarrassed in his expenses, through inattention to temporal concerns, when he was a bachelor thirty-three years of age. A friend from New York visiting him advised him to be married, and suggesting a certain widow as an appropriate helpmate, recommended her in high terms, "In short, that she was every thing he ought to look for ; and if he would go with him to New York the next day, he would settle the negotiation for him. To this he (Mr. Tennent) soon assented. The next evening found him in that city, and before noon the day after, he was introduced to Mrs. Noble. He was much pleased with her appearance ; and when left alone with her, abruptly told her that he supposed her brother had informed her of his errand ; that neither his time nor inclination would suffer him to use much ceremony, but that if she approved the measure, he would attend his charge on the next Sabbath and return on Monday, be married and immediately take her home. The lady with some hesitation and difficulty at last consented, being convinced that his situation and circumstances rendered it proper. Thus in one week she found herself mistress of his house. She proved a most invaluable treasure to him, more than answering every thing said of her by an affectionate brother." The marriage took place Aug. 23, 1738. The lady's maiden name was Catharine Van Brugh. She married first 1717 John Noble, and they had a daughter Mary who married Robert Cumming. Beside several children that died in infancy Mr. Tennent had three sons that grew to manhood, John, who was a physician and died in the West Indies, William, who was a minister, in Charleston, So. Carolina, and died the same year as his father, and Gilbert, who was a physician and died at Freehold in a remarkable deathbed repentance, and there being no minister near by his father conducted the funeral service and preached an impressive sermon. Mrs. Tennent died at Pittsgrove, N. J., in her 82nd year.

Thomas Henderson, M. D., the biographer of Wm. Tennent, was an efficient and influential man. For his family connection see in Genealogical Notes, Appendix. Graduated at Princeton 1761. Studied medicine with Dr. Nathaniel Scudder. Pursued his profession first at what is now Freneau, near Matawan : afterwards at Freehold ; had extensive practice. Was a member of the first Medical Society of N. J., 1766. His home for many years was one and a half miles due southwest from Monmouth Court house on road from Freehold to Mt. Holly. This house, which he built after his first house on same place had been burned by the British 1778, is still standing. In his day he was considered one of the largest land owners in Monmouth Co. He was an ardent patriot : was one of the "Committee of Observation and Inspection" 1774, and of the "Committee of Safety :" was Major of Minute Men 1776, and later was Lieut. Col. in Genl. David Forman's Brigade : rendered valuable service in the Battle of Monmouth : was one of the original members of the Order of the Cincinnati 1783. He served in several different offices at different times : was Justice of the Peace : Surrogate of Mon. Co. 1776 : Judge in the Court of Common Pleas 1783 and 1799 : Master in Chancery 1790 : Member of N. J. Assembly 1780-85 : Vice-Pres. of Legislative Council 1793-94, and acted as Lieut. Govr. for a time during absence of Gov. Howell : Member of Congress, and in April 1796 made a long speech supporting treaty with Great Britain. A man of faithful Christian life and strong attachment to his church. Like his father John, he was a ruling elder and trustee in Old Tennent for many years, and, as president of the trustees, their records are still preserved in his chirography from 1787 to 1817. He was a promoter and charter member of the Monmouth Co. Bible Society, formed Sep. 8, 1817, with Rev. John Woodhull president and Thomas Henderson vice-president. His grave is in Old Tennent yard surmounted by a marble tombstone of the table-like pattern.

FREEHOLD CHURCH, CHARLTON, N. Y.

In 1774 a family of Sweetman's, of Scotch Irish descent and of Covenanter doctrine, left Freehold, Monmouth Co., and went up into the wilderness region north of Schenectady, and settled on the western borders of Ballston township, Saratoga Co., New York. They were shortly joined by other families from Freehold, from other parts of New Jersey, and by a few from Connecticut. A settlement was thus formed, and a church was organized Jan. 3, 1786, which took the type of "Presbyterian" largely through the influence, it is said, of the members from Old Tennent. The town became known as "Charlton," and the church as "The Freehold Presbyterian Church of Charlton." Many of the founders of this church had come from Old Tennent. One of its most efficient and successful pastors was Rev. Joseph Sweetman, son of Thomas Sweetman and Sarah Kerr, grand-daughter of Walter Kerr. He was baptized by Wm. Tennent in 1774, just before his father Thomas went with the first band of settlers up to the Charlton wilderness. In after years also the records of Old Tennent show that some members were dismissed to join this church at Charlton, manifesting the subsequent drawing of one community to the other. Thus it may be said that the "Freehold Church of Charlton" is virtually the child of Old Tennent.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE BATTLE OF MONMOUTH. JUNE 28, 1778.

The vacancy between the pastorate of Wm. Tennent and that of Dr. Woodhull has been made memorable in the history of Old Tennent because of the famous Battle of Monmouth which took place during this interim and about one mile and a quarter to the southeast of the present church building. The battle occurred on Sunday June 28, 1778, beginning quite early in the morning, and continuing at intervals through the forenoon, raged in the afternoon until the setting of the sun, and is celebrated as one of the severest and also the longest in duration of all the battles of the Revolution. On the day of the Battle the calm and stillness of a summer Sabbath was resting in all nature around the old church, bright, warm, and beautiful. Fields of corn, wheat, oats, and flax stretched away in the openings, and the oak woods between were covered with their deepest green. For years the church doors had been opened on Sabbath morning for reverend worship by God's people. But on that Sunday the usual double preaching service could scarcely have been held, since the church was pastorless at the time, and though it is said that Rev. Benjamin Du Bois of the Brick church was performing most of the ministerial functions for Old Tennent during that interim, he could scarcely have left his own congregation on that Sunday morning when they were aroused by the British troops and trains passing near by on their way to Navesink. Moreover a portion of the women and children of Old Tennent community had been taken away to places of safety and hiding, a precaution to which some of them had been advised as early as Saturday afternoon. But especially, a congregation could scarcely sit in a worshipful service when a battle was roaring three and a half miles distant : and about midday Gen. Washington with the artillery and infantry of about 6000 men came sweeping along the road by the church in hot haste to the Battle.

The Battle of Monmouth has sometimes been called the "Battle of Monmouth Court House," because it began near to that building, and because that building prominently identified the locality. Monmouth Court House was and is in the town of Freehold. It was built in 1715 and the place was called by its name, and not called Freehold until after the Revolution. At the time of the Battle the place had scarcely more than a dozen houses. But the Battle proper was fought in the woods and fields about half way between Old Tennent and St. Peters P. E. church in Freehold, both of which buildings were standing at the time. A magnificent monument commemorative of this historic battle has been erected in Freehold (town), and was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies Nov. 13, 1884. The funds for this monument were started by an Association organized in its interest in 1878, which raised $10,000. To this sum the State Legislature added $10,000, and Congress contributed $20,000. The monument is built of Quincy and Concord granite, and stands nearly 100 feet high. On the top is placed a large granite statue, styled "Liberty Triumphant." Around the base are five finely executed bronze tablets, Bas-reliefs of thrilling scenes in the Battle and previous to it. They were designed by Mr. J. E. Kelly.

MONMOUTH BATTLE MONUMENT.

The facts and figures, as here given about the Battle, are chiefly based on "Battles of the United States, by Henry B. Dawson," and "Battles of the American Revolution, by Col. Henry B. Carrington," and a paper read by Charles King, Esqr., before the New Jersey Historical Society at Freehold, Sep. 13, 1849, and the excellent historical sketches by Lossing, and the full accounts given in "Old Times in Old Monmouth," (all of which see for the fullest information). Gen. George Washington for the Americans, and Gen. Sir Henry Clinton for the British, commanded the Battle in person. Students have variously estimated the number of troops in each army, but possibly it will afford a fair idea of the size of the Battle to accept the estimate of about 11,000 men for the Americans, and 10,000 for the British.

The British army had been comfortably quartered in Philadelphia during the previous winter, while the American army had wintered at Valley Forge with all its rigorous experience. The events and conditions of the opening of the year 1778 made it necessary for Gen. Clinton to abandon Philadelphia and repair to New York. Accordingly he evacuated Philadelphia early in the morning of June 18th, crossed the Delaware river near Camden and began his march through New Jersey. First he came to Haddonfield, thence to Evesham with a portion of his army through Moorestown, and on to Mt. Holly, to Black Horse (Columbus), to Crosswicks, through Imlaystown and Allentown where he changed his course and turned towards the Jersey shore, and so came on to Monmouth Court House. The starting of this march from Philadelphia by the British made it necessary for Gen. Washington to follow and come to open battle if need be, in order to sustain and augment respect for his army and its cause, and to endeavor to fulfill the expectation of his country. So on the afternoon of June 18th Washington started his army from Valley Forge. They crossed the Delaware at Coryell's Ferry (near Lambertville), and came on to Hopewell where Washington held a second council of war concerning this pursuit and attack of the British, which is depicted in one of the bas-reliefs on the handsome monument, and is described as representing "Generals Washington, Lee, Greene, Stirling, Lafayette, Steuben, Knox, Poor, Wayne, Woodford, Patterson, Scott and Duportail as they appeared in the important council of war held at Hopewell, old Hunterdon county, New Jersey, June 24, 1778. General Washington is listening attentively as General Lafayette, standing by the table, is urging upon the council to decide on making a strong demonstration against the British column, even if it brought on a battle. The position and general expression of other officers clearly indicates their opinion of Lafayette's appeal. General Lee, who preferred to let the British force parade unmolested across the State, looks anxious and indignant that his military experience and judgment does not entirely control the board. It is also easy to see that the foreign officers, Steuben and Duportail, want to make a strong attack, and not simply to feel the enemy. General Patterson agrees with them, and so does the true-hearted Greene. General Wayne, always ready for fight, can hardly wait until Lafayette has finished that he may speak a few words of ardent patriotism. Colonel Scammel, Washington's Adjutant-General, who afterwards gave his life for liberty on Yorktown's ramparts, is here engaged in noting the opinions of the general officers for the guidance of his chief." General Washington, favoring the opinion of Gen. Wayne, proceeded to Kingston, thence to Cranbury, and finally to near Englishtown by June 27. He had sent on in advance of his main army several detachments of troops at different times to harrass the British army. These detachments amounting altogether to about 5000 men, were finally commanded by Gen. Charles Lee, sent forward with instructions to arrange an attack. On Saturday afternoon the Americans were completing their arrangements for this attack, and Gen. Clinton, previously apprehending it, had changed the positions of his troops so as to be ready. Saturday night was one of great anxiety to both the armies, and of considerable excitement to the people of the vicinity. Sunday morning opened, a day of sultry and enervating heat, exceedingly prostrating to soldiers. The armies were moving early, and the Battle was preceeded by a number of skirmishes of increasing severity. First was that of Dickinson's reconnoitering party between 7 and 8 o'clock. After this Butler, northwest of the Court House, drove back the Queen's Rangers acting as a small rear guard. The next fighting occurred a little nearer to the rear of the British on their march toward Middletown, Gen. Wayne in the front. But at this point the Americans began to fall back before the British, who had turned their rear guards into an advancing front. This backward movement of the Americans confused and irritated their brigade generals and colonels, who did not understand the reasons for it. They were virtually in retreat without seeing the explanation of it. There was disappointment and some confusion, but no panic among the Americans. The under officers and the soldiers were perplexed but not demoralized. The British continued their advance pressing on the Americans who retired through the woods and down the road leading from Freehold to Old Tennent. Upon Gen. Lee was laid the responsibility of this seemingly needless retreat. He was afterwards tried by court-martial, found guilty, and punished.

But meanwhile the cannonading during the forenoon aroused Gen. Washington, who was at Englishtown, to press forward with his main army. As he hurried on with the left wing of the rear column, led by David Forman and Peter Wikoff as guides, he was unaware of the confusion and retreat of his forward troops. Passing about a hundred yards in front of the church door, he soon began to meet men returning on the road, and inquiring the reason of their hurried return could scarcely believe their story of the retreat, until he came into the midst of the disorded and retrogade regiments. Considerably surprised, disappointed, and exasperated he met Gen. Lee and addressed him in terms of rebuke, near to the bridge over the brook that crosses the road about a mile and a quarter from the church. He quickly checked the retreat, reforming the line, and bringing up the new troops into position. Of the retreat of the Americans, Carrington says "The ordeal of Valley Forge saved the army. The arrival of Washington restored it." The sight of Washington riding down the line magnificently inspired the soldiers. One of the bronze tablets on the monument shows Washington "riding down the American lines on the splendid horse which had just been presented to him by New Jersey's War Governor, William Livingston, and rallying the troops after Gen. Lee's unaccountable retreat. He is placing the regiments of Stewart and Ramsey and Livingston in position to check the advance party of the British. General Washington's head and figure are modeled from Houdin's life-cast, now in possession of Mr. Power. The model is worked on a scale, and is entirely accurate in all its proportions, from Houdin's measurements. The style of the uniform and horse equipments of the chieftain are all from authentic sources." Setting his batteries in advantageous positions, and placing Lord Stirling in command of the left wing, and Gen. Greene of the right, he took leading command in the center with Gen. Wayne in front of him. Lieu. Col. Nathaniel Ramsey, of Maryland, and others, were the first to stand and resist the pursuing British, after the retreat. In the bas-relief he is depicted "in the closing effort to hold his position until the main army could be rallied. General Washington had told him he depended on his exertions, and he had promised to check the enemy. He tried with his gallant regiment to defend the guns of Lieutenant-Colonel Oswald, until, having been dismounted, he was overwhelmed by the superior numbers of the British Dragoons. In the foreground he is represented with historical accuracy in a hand-to-hand conflict with a detachment of the Seventeenth British Regiment, Light Dragoons. Colonel Ramsey's portrait is from a minature and silhouette, both taken from life and furnished by his family. His sword is modeled from the short bladed weapon which he actually carried and used with great effect that day, and which is still preserved. The uniform, horse furniture and all the equipments of the Dragoons are taken from the official record of the regiment. "So particular has the artist been that the 'death head' may be seen on the hat of the trooper of the Seventeenth Dragoons—the organization allowed to wear the same by the order of the King—with the motto 'Glory or Death.' In the background Oswald is directing his men in their attempt to carry off his guns." The Battle raged with the combatants face to face, and sometimes hand to hand. Gen. Wayne's position was near the parsonage. The British grenadiers attacked him but were repulsed again and again. The British moved against the left wing of the Americans, but were repulsed. They then turned against the right but were compelled to retire. Gen. Wayne at last advanced against the British and drove them back to a defensive position, which they held when the Battle ended at sundown. One of the five bas-reliefs "depicts Mad Anthony Wayne leading his troops in the final charge of the day through a trampled cornfield, and the battalions of British grenadiers falling back and trying in vain to carry away the body of their dead commander, Lieut.-Colonel Henry Monckton. The parsonage of Tennent Church is seen in the background." Both armies, worn out with fighting and with the heat of the day, threw themselves on the ground to sleep for the night. Washington, wrapped in his cloak, slept the night under a tree. It was his purpose to renew the Battle in the morning. But during the night Gen. Clinton had drawn his men off the field, and by morning was well on his march towards the Navesink hills; and Washington deemed it impracticable to pursue. The sudden, silent, and unusual retirement of the British from the battle-field made Washington's victory more pronounced; and the battle and its issue strengthened and encouraged the colonies in their struggle for independence. In the Battle Gen. Washington was unusually exposed to the enemy's fire in his endeavors to insipirit his soldiers, and many of the prominent officers of the American army were engaged. A long list of names is preserved of the men of Monmouth Co. who at this time fought for their liberty and their homes. Many soldiers in both armies died of the effects of heat, and Dr. Sam. Forman said the tongues of hundreds of soldiers "were swollen so as to render them incapable of speaking." The Americans lost 8 officers and 61 non-commissioned officers and privates killed : 18 officers and 142 non-commissioned officers and privates wounded : 5 sergeants and 126 rank and file missing, some of whom were overcome with fatigue and heat, and subsequently reported for service. The British lost 4 officers and 61 non-commissioned officers killed and 59 died from fatigue : 15 officers and 155 non-commissioned officers and privates wounded : and 68 missing. Dead British soldiers were buried on the battle-field, and probably also some of the Americans.

One of the thrilling stories about the Battle is that of Molly Pitcher called the "heroine of Monmouth." Her maiden name was Mary Ludwig, of German descent, born 1754 in New Jersey on a farm situated between Princeton and Trenton, and married John Hays, of Carlisle Pa., who joined the Continental army, and Mary came back home to live with her father. As the army came across New Jersey she visited her husband and was with him on the Sunday of the Battle. During the Battle she aided her husband and the gunners in Gen. Knox's artillery by carrying water in the cannon's bucket for her husband's cannon and for the thirsty men, who in pleasantry called her "Molly Pitcher." Her husband, overcome with fatigue and heat dropped down by the cannon, when his wife jumped forward and helped to "work the gun." A bas-relief on the monument gives this scene showing her as "an ideal woman of great muscular power. Her (exhausted) husband is at her feet, and Gen. Knox is seen in the background directing his artillery line. A wounded soldier uses his right hand instead of left in thumbing the vent. This, it is readily seen, improves the composition of the picture. The Old Tennent Church, still standing as a memorial of the battle, is seen on the extreme left of the relief." Molly soon nursed her husband to his usual strength after the battle. Gens. Washington, Greene, and Lafayette complimented her. Congress bestowed on her an annuity of $40. After the death of her first husband she married a man by the name of McCauley. She died Jan. 1833, and was buried at Carlisle, Pa. Years afterwards on July 4, 1876 the citizens of Cumberland Co., Pa. placed a handsome Italian marble stone over her grave. She was not a coarse camp-follower, as has sometimes been said, but a robust, industrious, kind-hearted woman, faithful as a wife and mother. Mrs. Isabella (Crater) McGeorge has written a fine sketch of this subject in the American Monthly Magazine of Nov. 1900.

Ancestral tales and traditions are still told that relate to the church and its people in connection with the Battle, and with a good degree of authenticity. It is said that the house of Wm Ker, now long since taken down, and that stood about a quarter of a mile from the church, was one of the places used as a hospital at the time of the Battle. Also it is a current story in the present Bills' family, descendants of the George and Tone families, that their great-grandmother and her mother nursed the wounded soldiers in the church ; and their great-grandfather George and his brother carried water all day to the wounded soldiers on the battle-field from Molly Pitcher's spring : and also that their great-grandmother, aided by her mother, entered the British lines, having the pass-word from her father an American soldier of the most loyal type, and by means of a few biscuits and two or three chickens, bought silk for a gown and broadcloth for a cloak, bringing them home secretly, and keeping them without her father's knowledge, for her wedding apparel, some five years after.

It is a current tradition that musket balls pierced the sides of the old church during the Battle. Whatever breakings were thus made in the enclosure have long since been repaired with other shingles.

It is also a much repeated tradition that during the Battle an American soldier, possibly fatigued with the heat and having drank at the well on the south line of the church lot, had come up and sat on the headstone of a grave a few feet to the southwest from the church, when he was struck by a cannon ball and badly wounded, and the headstone broken off. He was carried into the church and laid in the third pew from the door in the west aisle. There his blood dripped out and he died. The blood stains from his wounds can still be plainly seen on the board seat; and before the graining of the pews was put on, the marks of the bloody hands of this dying soldier were visible on the book-rest of the pew in which he died, and on that also in the pew behind. The headstone of the grave is now gone though a part still remains under ground, and the footstone is also standing. The grave was that of Sarah Mattison, buried in 1774.

Lieut. Col. Henry Monckton, a man of tall stature and fine personal bearing and high moral character, a brave loyal subject of his King, a gallant and able officer commanding the 2nd battalion British Grenadiers, was killed in the Battle while leading his men in a fierce charge against Gen. Wayne near the parsonage. Over his body was a desperate struggle until finally the Americans secured possession of it, carried it to the rear, brought it up to the church yard, and buried it a few feet from the southwest corner of the church. A half century or more later, Wm. R. Wilson, a native of Scotland, and a school master in Monmouth Co., set up a board over Col. Monckton's grave with an inscription thereon beginning with the Latin words "Hic jacet." Some years after this, Samuel Fryer, a marble dealer of Hightstown, N. J., gratuitously erected a marble headstone with a suitable inscription, in the place of the board slab. Over this grave on Decoration Day for many years a British flag was placed by Mrs. Forman Stillwell, while the stars and stripes were set over many graves around it by the detail from the Post of the Grand Army of the Republic.

May 12, 1874 R. Perrine Craig, sexton of the cemetery, in digging a grave came upon three skeletons of human bodies. One apparently had an arm broken, or the arm amputated. The bodies had evidently been buried together, and there were no signs of there being any coffin. These were supposed to have been soldiers that possibly had died in the church. Three flags are placed across each other over this grave on Decoration Day.

It is a tradition in the Perrine family that Gen. Washington slept the night after the Battle under an appletree on ground belonging to Henry Perrine, who had a farm of about 800 acres right close by the battle-ground ; his 100 acre field of barley was a part of the battle-field where the struggle took place. Seven cannon balls it is said passed through his house ; which house stood, it is supposed, near to what is known now (1904) as the Sheriff John Perrine home. The present house was built about 1832 by John Conover. The previous house was one with low hanging eaves and a large porch. Henry Perrine was the son of Henry, and father of Lewis and Matthew.

Lieut. Col. David Rhea, son of David ruling elder in Old Tennent, fought in the Battle almost over the very spot where the graves of his family's dead were made. His sister, Janet Rhea wife of Aaron Davis, lived near Monmouth Court House on the place now known as the John Bowne farm, with their seven children, Anna the oldest at twenty years and little Aaron the youngest at one year and four months. In the imminence of battle on that hot Sunday morning Anna had assisted in driving the cattle to the woods for protection. She wore a straw hat, the kind that was plaited and sewed together. Being startled by a rustling of leaves behind her she hurried away and her hat caught in the bushes and the straw plait unraveled. Hearing a laugh she looked behind her and saw in Continental uniform a tall soldier of the New Jersey line. He was Alexander Low, a carpenter and cabinet-maker, whom she afterwards married. Col. David Rhea rode up to his sister's, Janet Davis, and wanted to help them to hurry away to some place of safety, as her home appeared to be right in the path of the Battle. But Mrs. Davis refused to leave her home ; nevertheless at the earnest urging of her brother she went with her children into a dirt cellar near the house, after burying the pewter platters and other ware, no sooner having finished which they heard the fife and drum of the soldiers. Mrs. Davis took with her into the cellar a piggin of mush for the children. Little Aaron was put in his cradle and set against the inside of the cellar door to keep it closed. Before long a cannon ball thundered past the cellar door. Mrs. Davis thinking she was as safe out of there as in there went with her children out of the cellar into the house. She found that British cannon had been placed around the barn, for a short time in the morning. Two Hessians were ran-sacking the house, and frightened the little four year old Janet. Mrs. Davis fearlessly upbraided them especially for trying to carry away some of the baby's clothes. They were hastened in their departure by the British bringing in one of their wounded officers for care, and in their hurry out jumped over the half of the old fashioned door. The wounded officer remained in the home a long while and was faithfully cared for. He taught Mrs. Davis to make an ointment for the healing of flesh wounds, with this formula: Take a quantity of caul fat of hogs, and let it simmer slowly on the back of the stove until it is all dissolved. To one portion of the fat add half as much melted rosin and beeswax. This was known in the family afterwards as "Pense's Salve" taking its name from that of the wounded officer.

During the times of the Battle, families in Old Tennent congregation and others in the vicinity suffered at the hands of the British, who, it is said, burnt the homes of Dr. Thomas Henderson, Benjamin Covenhoven, George Walker, Hannah Solomon, Benjamin VanCleve, David Covenhoven, and Garret Vanderveer, and destroyed the home of John Benham, and others besides. (Ellis). In contrast to this while some suffered in the loss of their homes, others were honored in the use of their homes, for it is told that Moses Laird, at Englishtown, sumptuously entertained Gen. Washington on the night before the Battle, in a house which was afterwards owned by Old Tennent for a time and used as a parsonage. (See in Genealogical Notes in Appendix under Laird family).

From a farm very near by the church Samuel Craig with his brothers James and David went into the Battle, and coming home on Monday found some of the American soldiers cutting the grass in one of his fields presumably for their horses. Turning to him they said "Comrade, this is pretty hard lines," "No," said Mr. Craig, "take all you can get." Also of this same Samuel Craig and his brother it is told in an ancestral tradition that they were cutting buckwheat on his farm about a half mile to the west of the church, in September following the Battle. Hearing their dogs barking excitedly in the woods they went over to investigate the cause, and beheld a gruesome spectacle. Leaning against a tree and supported by a thick growth of briars was the dead body of a Hessian with his musket standing by him. It was supposed that he had been wounded in the Battle and strayed away in the woods; or had lost his way, and being overcome with the excessive heat had drunk profusely of water in the brook near by, and thus had died, a sad and lonely instance of the dreadful events of war.

There is an interesting tradition connected with the old John Craig farm-house on the farm now owned by Samuel Craig Cowart and Enoch L. Cowart, the location of which is shown on the map of the Battle Ground in this chapter. John Craig was in the American Army on the day of the battle, and left his wife and his one child Amelia and two slaves at the old farm-house. As soon as Mrs. Craig heard the British were likely to join battle with the American forces near the old farm, she packed her household goods in two wagons and with her child and two slaves rode toward Upper Freehold in the direction from which the British Army had come, thus expecting to avoid molestation. Before leaving the farm-house she took her silver, and placing it in a kettle, sunk it in the open well. She then took the buckets and chain which hung on the old fashioned sweep and hid them in the hay mow in the barn. The British shortly afterwards reached the farm-house and occupied it as a hospital. They took bed cording from the beds and hung an iron kettle upon the sweep, and after exhausting the water in the well found the silver at the bottom. The iron kettle is now in possession of Mr. Samuel C. Cowart, of Freehold ; who is a great grandson of John Craig. This farm has been in the continuous possession of Mr. Cowart and his maternal ancestors for two hundred years. The house is located about one mile west of Freehold, near Hartshorne's mill. A number of British soldiers were buried back of the house. Lord Sterling's artillery was placed on the high piece of ground on the westerly side of the farm, and there is a tradition that two cannon of the British were sunk in the meadow in the retreat from the Battle.

Referring to the map, page 105, the farm house located near to where Gen. Washington bivouacked for the night, subsequently became the home of Jacob Herbert : and the farm house, located near and on the east side of the hedgerow, became the home of Ezekiel Gordon, which he purchased in 1804 from Thomas Lloyd and an added portion from Jonathan Rhea in 1806.

Some local points of interest connected with the Battle may be mentioned as follows :—Gen. Clinton's headquarters were in what is now Mr. William Moreau's farm house, on the Freehold and Smithburg turnpike, just on the outskirts and on the south side of Freehold.—In the rear of St. Peter's Episcopal church, northwest corner of Main and Throckmorton Sts., Freehold, a number of soldiers killed in the Battle were buried ; and the church building was used as a hospital by the British.—The residence of Gen. David Forman, sometimes called "Black David" from his dark complexion and to distinguish him from sheriff David, and who was one of the strongest and boldest supporters of the cause of American Independence in Monmouth County, is now owned and occupied by James B. Vredenburgh, and is on the southerly side of Freehold.—The original Monmouth Court House was built in 1715, and the present one in 1874 a little in the rear of the original site. On this spot in June 1774 was held the first Revolutionary meeting in New Jersey. The Court House was used as a hospital by the British, who on retreating left in it 5 officers and 40 soldiers to be cared for by the American army.—The John Craig house, adjoining and northeast of the Court House, is still part of the building now occupied as stores and law offices. It was used as a hospital for British soldiers during the Battle; and here "The Washington Star," the first paper published in Freehold, was issued in 1814.

Many relics have been gathered up from the battle-field by people of the vicinity, highly prized material mementoes of a very vigorous strife. They are found in the torrrent-washed places, and where the spade and the plow turn up the soil discovering the old musket, the rusty cannon ball, and the corroded bullet. Safely preserved, these relics will increase in pecuniary, because of intrinsic and historic, value. Such relics are still occasionally being found.

Copy of the Seal of the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

On June 27, 1891 the New Jersey Society Sons of the American Revolution held a meeting and banquet at Freehold, and drove out to Old Tennent to see the old house and grounds. They presented the church with a large handsome flag, which is carefully treasured, and on certain days is raised up on its flag pole in the cemetery. One of the days is the anniversary of the Battle, when it is unfurled and magnificently waves in the free breezes of brave Monmouth.

In generous regard of the Revolutionary patriots and in recognition of Old Tennent being a witness to the memorable Battle of Monmouth, a beautiful mural tablet was placed on the exterior of the church Oct. 15, 1901, by the Monmouth Chapter of the New Jersey Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Made of solid bronze, and embossed with an expression of loving remembrance and loyal patriotism, it becomes a handsome badge to be worn by the old church that has survived the grand battle and the brave men that fought in it. This tablet reads:

IN GRATEFUL REMEMBRANCE
OF PATRIOTS WHO, ON SABBATH JUNE 28, 1778, GAINED THE VICTORY WHICH WAS THE TURNING POINT OF THE WAR FOR INDEPENDENCE, AND TO MARK A MEMORABLE SPOT ON THE BATTLEFIELD OF MONMOUTH.
THIS TABLET IS PLACED BY MONMOUTH CHAPTER, DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION,
SEPTEMBER 26, 1901.

Also, on May 3, 1904, the same Monmouth Chapter presented Old Tennent with a handsome valance, or drapery, of maroon rep, fastening it around the sounding-board and around the pulpit desk.

CHAPTER IX.

REV. JOHN WOODHULL, D. D. 1778–1824.

After Wm. Tennent's death the pulpit of Old Freehold was vacant for about a year and a half. The Presbytery of New Brunswick appointed to supply the church Revs. John Warford, Jeremiah Halsey, Thos. Smith, Philip Stockton, Chas. McKnight, and Geo. Faitoute : but this was only for a limited number of Sabbaths. The congregation raised money to pay the supplies, and Robert Rhea had charge of dispensing it. The people, it seemed, would have another Tennent, for the next month after their pastor's death they decided to make out a call to Rev. Wm. McKay Tennent, then in New England, to become their "settled minister." But evidently such a relation was not effected, as the records of Presbytery will prove. However, God was graciously guiding the church to the selection of a suitable man, and to one who proved himself a worthy and capable successor to the celebrated Wm. Tennent : this was the Rev. John Woodhull called to the church in 1778. The exact date of his settlement is difficult to fix : it is not given in the minutes of the Presbytery of New Brunswick. But those Minutes read for Oct. 20, 1778, "A Petition was brought in from the Congn. of Freehold for leave to prosecute a Call before the New Castle Pby in favour of the Rev. John Woodhull one of their Members. The Pby chearfully grant the prayer of the petition & do earnestly recommend the aforesaid Congregation to the notice of the Pby of New Castle and of Mr. Woodhull in particular as an important branch of the Church of Christ where a faithful Minister of the Gospel will have as fair a prospect of usefulness & comfort as in any vacancy within our knowledge." Again, at "Allenston August 4 1779, * * * The Rev. John Woodhull a Member of N. Castle Pby being present was desired to sit as Correspondent & he took his seat accordingly." Then a note between two meetings of Presbytery reads, "N. B. The Presbyy. met at Bedminster (Lamington) according to adjournment" (namely, 4th Tuesday in April 1780)—"but the Minutes of it are lost. It was opened by Mr. Woodhull." * * * * "Mr. John Woodhull late from the Pbyy. of New Castle haveing accepted the Call from Freehold joined the Presbytery." Dr. Woodhull's tombstone reads that he "in 1779 removed to this congregatian, which he served with great diligence and success for 45 years." The church trustees recorded in their book Nov. 1824 "The Reverend John Woodhull departed this life aged 80 years, 46½ the faithful pastor of this congregation." Dr. Woodhull himself, in a memorandum of texts from which he preached in Freehold, says "April 18, 1779, Acts 10: 29-33. I ask you therefore for what intent ye have sent for me etc— The first sermon after I came as their Minister."

His grand-daughter Miss Anna M. Woodhull, late of Freehold, N. J., and his great grandson Thenford Woodhull, Atty., of Brooklyn, N. Y. furnish the following facts: John Woodhull was the second son of John Woodhull, a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the Colony, and Elizabeth, daughter of Wm. Henry Smith, of St. George's Manor; and was born at Miller's Place, Suffolk-county, Long Island, Jan. 26, 1744. His father was the second son of Richard, grandson of Richard Wodhull, who was born at Thenford, Northamptonshire, England, Sep. 13, 1620; came to America about 1648 and settled at Setauket, Long Island. This Richard, the immigrant, was descended from Fulk, a younger son of Nicholas, seventeenth Baron Wodhul; the first being Walter, on whom the barony of Wahul was conferred, after the Conquest, A. D. 1066, and the last, Anthony, who died without male issue, in 1541.

Dr. Woodhull was prepared for college in a Grammar-school, under the care of Rev. Caleb Smith, his maternal uncle, at Newark Mountains, now Orange, N. J. He was impressed with gospel truth when about sixteen years of age, and in the beginning of his college course manifested an established piety. He graduated at Princeton College 1766, and then went to study theology under Rev. John Blair at Fagg's Manor, Pa. As a young preacher he was accepted with more than usual popularity. Several calls from churches were tendered him, but duty led him to accept the one from the Leacock congregation, Lancaster Co., Pa., where he was ordained and installed Aug. 1, 1770. The Leacock church had been regularly organized 1741. In 1772 Dr. Woodhull married Sarah, only child of George Spofford, of Philadelphia, and step-daughter of the Rev. Gilbert Tennent. They had five sons and one daughter: one son died in infancy in 1776, one son became a minister, two physicians, and one a merchant.

Dr. Woodhull was an ardent and loyal patriot. Early in the Revolution, all the able-bodied men of the Leacock congregation went into the field, and Dr. Woodhull their pastor accompanied them as their Chaplain. It is a tradition, that, while they were absent, his wife used to gather the remnant of the congregation in her parlor, on Sunday evenings, and read to them his letters from the seat of war. A number of Dr. Woodhull's letters, written while in camp with the army, have been preserved. This is one to his wife;—

"Pirth Amboy Augst, 27, 76.

My Dear Sally

I receivd 2 Letters from you last Evening, am glad that you [are] getting better and that the Boys do well. Yesterday we had orders to march for Newark,— but upon applycation Genl. Robert Dean promised that if we would make up our quoto for the flying Camp the rest might go home — upon which we had all most compleated our part, when we understood from Genl Mercer, that none should be alowed to go untill they had Stayed 6 weeks, so that I suppose we shall march for Newark to Day, or to morrow —There has landed A large Body of the Enemy upon Long Island, believe the most of their army, some say 15 and some above 20 Thousand men, our Rifle men are Dayly fighting them, & have killed a number, Day before yesterday we had lost none— how it is since that cannot tell, the Cannon roar very much this morning. Suppose they are warmly at it — May God grant us the Victory!

I am now bravely, had a turn of the Chollick a few Days ago, the onely Illness I have had since I left you—Keep up your Spirits—I hope to be at home in about Three weeks from this time.—

May the Lord be with you. My Love to my son the girls, Neighbors, and espetially to my Sally— Remember me to the Boys tell them I am pleased with the account you give of them, as to Plowing &c do as you see best— am in great hast least I loose my opportunity. J. Woodhull."

Col. Wm. C. Alexander said that Dr. Woodhull was in the Battle of Monmouth, and, at the fall of a cannoneer, assisted in serving the gun. In after years his social conversation abounded in interesting reminiscences of the memorable war for Independence. Among the church papers is a fine specimen (copied) of Dr. Woodhull's sermons; it is a patriotic discourse delivered on a Thanksgiving Day, November 1789. It is stated that Dr. Woodhull preached the funeral sermon of the brave Capt. Joshua Huddy from the court-house steps in Freehold before an immense audience. Would that he had written a book of all the recollections of his long life. He was a man of tall form and graceful manners, intelligent countenance, dignified bearing, fine powers of conversation, a genial, interesting, well bred gentleman. (Sprague Vol. III.) In 1780 he was made a trustee in the College at Princeton, and in 1798 he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Yale College. Of him his son wrote, "The same year of his settlement (1779) he built a house on an acre of ground leased of the congregation for the purpose of establishing a school." From this grammar school went out many young men to usefulness in life, and some to positions of great honor and distinction. He was also an instructor of young men in their studies for the gospel ministry, until the opening of the Princeton Theological Seminary in 1812, when he would no longer perform such service; he was an original trustee in that institution.

In physical health Dr. Woodhull was vigorous, for which he exercised judicious care. A letter he addressed to his session and congregation explains his absence from his pulpit on a certain Sabbath. He had been troubled with a distress in his ear that badly affected his hearing; but he had gained some relief, and so he wrote, "I am not sick—and have hesitated much about going to Church this day—but concluded on the whole that in a case so delicate which involved my future comfort and usefulness, it was best to run no risk. * * *

Let sermon be appointed at 12 o'clock next Sabbath.—I hope to be with you. Pray for me, that my hearing may be so restored as not to prevent my usefulness." He was a popular but scriptural preacher. For the word of God he had a true reverence, and in the interest of its circulation he was one of the founders of the Monmouth Co. Bible Society. He was the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of New Brunswick from Oct. 1781 to April 1801. In May 1791 at Philadelphia he was chosen Moderator of the General Assembly, and the following year he opened the Assembly with a sermon from II Tim. 4: 1, 2. Col. John Covenhoven, Dr. Woodhull's elder, attended the Assembly in 1796, and possibly in 1795 also, as a regularly appointed commissioner, and was thus probably the first of all the Freehold elders to be a commissioner to the highest court of the church.

When Dr. Woodhull came to Old Tennent it had 92 members in its communion, six of these were elders: and the pew holdings were much the same as in the plan for 1754 &c. with of course some changes. (See Plan of Pews 1790.) The congregation was often in arrears of salary to him, but he was very patient and easy: and finally in March 1817 he bought a lot on the north eastermost part of the parsonage farm, of 21.40 acres for $30.05 per acre, and paid for it by giving a receipt for so much of arrears in his salary. In April 1815 the Trustees had resolved "that in future all the accounts of the Congregation or the Trustees with their Pastor or any other person or persons shall be kept and recorded in dollars and cents money of the United States." There were no Sabbath-schools in the congregation during Dr. Woodhull's pastorate, but it was his custom to catechize the children of his charge two times a year; and in cases where they had been studied he asked for the scriptural references as proofs to the catechism answers. Some lists of names of these catechizings are still preserved. And he faithfully and effectually expounded the doctrine of infant baptism, as appears from the following list, for seven consecutive years, of infants that were baptized,—33 in 1803, 32 in 1804, 39 in 1805, 45 in 1806, 62 in 1807, 58 in 1808, 48 in 1809, or 317 in seven years; and the communicants in the church at this time numbered from 250 to 300. This manifested a good growing life in the church. Dr. Woodhull was fond of the young people, and they of him, so that a happy memory remained concerning him long after his death, among those who had seen and known him personally.

In his temporal and financial affairs Dr. Woodhull was shrewd and careful. He possessed fine business qualifications. It is said that he became very wealthy, and it is thought that he owned about 50,000 acres of land in different localities in New Jersey, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Maryland. It is told of him that when his only daughter, Sarah, was married, he gave her a dower of $80,000. His death came suddenly, Nov. 22, 1824, in the 81st year of his age. At his funeral three days later the Rev. Isaac V. Brown preached a sermon from the text Rev. 2 : 10, which was requested for publication by the session, through Nathaniel S. Rue, clerk, and printed in pamphlet form. His grave was made about fifty feet to the south of the middle door of the church, and is surmounted by a marble monument. His wife died Oct. 12, 1827 aged 77 years, and her grave was made alongside his.

Concerning Dr. Woodhull traditions are still told as pleasant remembrances, as is frequently the case in regard to a minister of such a long pastorate. An amusing story is told of him in connection with the superstition of some that Old Tennent cemetery was haunted by a ghost. At a late hour in the night as Dr. Woodhull was returning from marrying a couple he noticed two dark looking objects towering near the church. Thinking of the reputed ghost he determined to see for himself, so tying his horse he entered the gateway whip in hand, cracking it as he went along ; and when he approached the spot where Col. Monckton's grave is made he found some sleeping Indians with two piles of baskets near by them. Also it is told of him that in his later years he once sat on a table in a house while he preached a funeral sermon, presumably because he was feeble, and because sitting on a table would enable him to see the people better than when sitting down in a chair. His text on this occasion was Heb. 4 : 9.

The formula habitually used by Dr. Woodhull as "Grace before Meat" was written out evidently at the request of one of his children who possibly wished to adopt it, and is as follows,—

"Father of Mercies! We thank Thee that our bodies are once more fed. We adore Thee for the gift of Thy Son, and for the way of salvation through Him. Continue Thy goodness, and feed our souls with the Bread of Life, and to Thy holy name be the praise! Amen."

SEPARATE INCORPORATION.

In 1785 steps were taken to have the church incorporated separately from the Upper Freehold (Allentown) and Shrewsbury churches, and under the government of the state. On Wednesday, April 6, 1785, the members of the session and the congregation met, and after electing Gen. David Forman as trustee for the church in the room of Robert Rhea deceased, they decided to petition the Legislature for a "separate Act of Incorporation" and engaged Thos. Henderson, M. D. to draw up said petition, and appointed Dr. Woodhull to notify the other congregations: also at this meeting seven men were elected as trustees to be named in the petition for the new charter. The next year Aug. 7, 1786, the congregation met again, under the new law that had been passed concerning incorporation for religious societies, and elected the same seven men except Peter Forman who had died; Col. John Covenhoven was elected in his stead. These trustees for the new charter were Jacob Wikoff, Thomas Henderson, M. D., David Forman, son of Jonathan, Kenneth Anderson, Junr., Gen. David Forman, Col. John Covenhoven, and John A. Scudder, M. D. On March 13, 1787 these trustees subscribed themselves under the new corporate title that had been chosen "The Trustees of the first Presbyterian Congregation in Freehold in the County of Monmouth." The form of their Trustees' oath was:

> "We the Subscribers do solemnly profess and swear that we do not hold ourselves bound to bear Allegiance to the King of Great Britain. So help us God.
> We the Subscribers do solemnly profess and swear that we do and will bear true Faith and Allegiance to the Government of this State as established under the authority of the people. So help us God.
> We the Subscribers do solemnly profess and swear that we will execute the trust reposed in us, as Trustees of the first Presbyterian Congregation in Freehold during our continuance in office with Fidelity and to the best of our Understandings. So help us God."

Six of the trustees took oath before Thomas Henderson, M. D., Justice of the Peace ; and Thomas Henderson took oath before John Covenhoven, Justice. The certificate is "Recorded in the Clerks office of Monmouth County in book B x pages 26-7 the 13th day of April 1789. J. Rhea. Clk." The seal after the autograph of these seven trustees subscribing under their new title, has the imprint of a device of two birds standing face to face under what appears to be a leaf, which is suggestive of the new seal that the trustees that same day adopted. (See in Chap. Ist).

More than seventy years later this corporate name was changed again, by an act passed by the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, and approved by the Governor March 16, 1859, to the name "The First Presbyterian Church of the County of Monmouth." This act was not to take effect until it had been submitted to the congregation and approved by them, and a certificate thereof, signed by the President of the Board of Trustees, should be filed in the office of the Secretary of State of New Jersey. It was approved almost unanimously by the congregation. But the certificate, through some inadvertence, was not filed until several years afterwards, when through a business transaction arising in connection with some money to be transferred to the church the neglect was discovered, and the need of its remedy made apparent. Report was then made to the legal authorities and the corporate title of the church was recorded ; and also, all deeds given by the trustees under this name since 1859 were made true and effectual. This was completed in 1882, and thus the above named title is the present legal name of Old Tennent.

CHAPTER X.

REV. JOB FOSTER HALSEY, D. D. 1826–1828.

After the death of Dr. Woodhull a year and a half elapsed before the congregation again had a settled pastor; when a call was given to Job Foster Halsey, a young man twenty-six years of age, and just completing his studies in Princeton Seminary. The salary promised in the call was $700 annually. In arranging for those who should vote for a pastor at this time the congregation, among others, passed the following resolution, "Resolved, that no married lady vote unless hur husband be present with hur & agree that she may vote for him, unless she is a subscriber & paid for herself." Mr. Halsey, young in years and experience, was a contrast to the preceeding pastor; but during his short ministry in Old Tennent he proved himself an earnest and energetic successor to the old and able servant of the church. He was born at Schenectady, N. Y., July 12, 1800. His parents, names were Luther and Abigail. At nineteen years of age he was converted; and the same year, 1819, he graduated from Union College in the town of his birth, under the presidency of the famous Dr. Eliphalet Nott. In 1820 he was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of North River. He entered Princeton Theological Seminary in 1823, where he studied for three years. June 14, 1826 he was ordained by the Presbytery of New Brunswick in session in the Old Tennent church, and installed its pastor. In December of that year he was married to Elizabeth Parker Brinley. His pastorate was one of the shortest in Old Tennent's list, continuing for one year and nine months, when it closed March 5, 1828. Afterwards he served in important positions as agent American Bible Society, as a teacher, and also as a pastor in different churches. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Lafayette College 1860. He died March 24, 1882 at Norristown, Pa., where he had been pastor for twenty five years.

When Mr. Halsey became pastor in Old Tennent there were over two hundred names on the communicant roll of the church. Among the oldest members at that time were Elizabeth English united in 1767, and Eleanor C. Forman united in 1776. During his pastorate more than ninety people were added to the communion, forty of these joining on one occasion. This record reveals a healthy activity in spiritual things in the church, and gave evidence of the faithful sowing of seed by Dr. Woodhull, as well as of zealous effort on the part of the young pastor Halsey.

A seminary student (J. W. M.), from Princeton visited Mr. Halsey in the summer of 1827, and many years afterwards wrote of him thus; "He was in the habit of keeping his pockets filled with verses of Scripture, which were printed on blue pasteboard in that day, for Sabbath-schools, and distributing single verses to people whom he met. He called them 'small shot'—good for driving away black-birds." It is told of Mr. Halsey that he was a stringent supporter of Sabbath observance, that he did not want his people to do any cooking on that day, not even to set the tea-kettle to boil. An amusing story is still current about Mr. Halsey's courtship and marriage. It is told that he preached on a certain Sabbath in the town of his bride-to-be, and was entertained at her mother's home where were two or three daughters. Being much pleased with one of these young women he began corresponding afterwards with her, and his suit was accepted. On his next visit to the home he was surprised to find that he had been corresponding with a different one of the sisters than he had intended (evidently having been mistaken in the name when he began the letter writing). However, Mr. Halsey accepted the correspondent for his wife, and it is said that he considered this marriage an arrangement of Providence.

Mr. Halsey has preserved an interesting story of the early times of the church in a letter he wrote to the editor of "The Monmouth Democrat" in 1873, and that is now published in Salter's "History of Monmouth and Ocean Counties" p. 215. In this letter "Mr. Carr" is evidently Walter Ker. Mr. Halsey writes : —

"In the early history of the Presbyterian Church in Monmouth county, N. J., a special meeting was held to pray that the Lord would send them a minister, and at that meeting a Mr. Carr was selected to go to the Log College (now Hartsville, Pa.), where the father of the Tennents preached and taught. Though it was at harvest time, so eager was Mr. Carr to execute his mission that he started the very next day, When he had made known the object of his visit, he could get none of the sons to consent to go. But as he left to return home he said : 'So sure am I that I have come on the Lord's errand, and that our prayers will be favorably answered, that I shall not reach home before you will send for me and assure me that I have not taken this journey in vain,' and so bid them farewell.

And sure enough, he had not gone on his way more than a few miles before a messenger overtook him, calling him back, and assured him that Rev. John Tennent would return with him as their minister, which he did. He lived and labored among them less than two years, and was succeeded by his brother Rev. William Tennent, who labored at Freehold forty-eight years, and is buried in the aisle of the church.

I said that Mr. Carr went on his mission to Neyhamings, Pa., leaving his harvest unreaped. When the farmers had hurriedly gathered in theirs, feeling that he had gone on their business as well as his own—that he was the church's servant—they turned out and cut his grain for him, and Mr. Carr, on his return, found it put up in shocks in the field. A sudden and long rain compelled him to leave it standing so, and so it happened that when the next season for sowing arrived the best seed grain was Mr. Carr's, as his neighbors had gathered in theirs before it was thoroughly ripened, and many applied to him for seed.

Such was the tradition told me more than half a century ago by some of my aged elders, who themselves had been gathered into the church under the ministry of Rev. William Tennent. J. F. Halsey."

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

About the year 1827 a Sunday-school was started in the church, and Mrs. Halsey, wife of the pastor, was its first superintendent. This was the beginning of a branch of church work that has proved of inestimable benefit to Old Tennent down to the present time. Those who have served as superintendents of the Sunday-school in the church are :

Mrs. Job F. Halsey, Nathaniel S. Rue, William G. Denise, James Rue, R. Perrine Craig, Joseph Combs, Elijah Reid, Luther D. Bugbee, William H. Reid, and George L. DuBois. The Sunday-school services were conducted at first in the old Session house on Sunday afternoon. Afterwards they were held on Sunday morning in the new Session house. And finally it became the custom to convene the Sunday-school in the church building in connection with morning sanctuary service. Beside the one in the church, Sunday-schools have been conducted for many years in various district school-houses on Sunday afternoon, and much good has been effected in this way through the widely extended congregation.

For many years it had been the custom to hold two preaching services in the church on Sunday, with about a half hour intermission for the partaking of some refreshments. As late as 1819 the congregation decided to hold two services on Sunday from the middle of April to the middle of September, and only one sermon on each Sunday throughout the remainder of the year "except on sacramental occasions." This practice of having two sermons and services close together was well suited to the conditions of a newly settled country, where church privileges were rare, and some of the people driving many miles to and from service. It was not specially needed in long settled communities, and it had its disadvantages in more ways than one. Every age suits itself to convenient and advantageous progress, and thus this practice of holding two sermon services near together was finally abandoned in the churches. But it was not because of a disposition to lessen labor on the part of the pastor nor attendance on the part of the people, for, since this change, sanctuary services have tended rather to increase in number than to diminish. About the time of Dr. Woodhull's death this old custom was discontinued in Old Tennent; possibly when Mr. Halsey became pastor, or certainly so during Mr. Roy's ministry. Right here may be told an ancestral story:—Rachel Burrowes, daughter of John and Hope, born in 1751 in an old colonial homestead at Middletown Point (now Matawan), used to come up with her parents to services in Old Tennent; they would bring lunch and stay the whole day to both services. On one occasion Rachel, as a little girl, became restless in the service, and finally her mother reproving her said "I will not bring you again to church." After the service, walking down the hill with her mother, she turned round and made a profound courtesy toward the church building and said "Good-by, cousin meetin-house, I never expect to see you again." This vein of humor in the little girl expressed itself in her through a long life; and indeed she sat for many years in the services of the old church for she became the second wife of Thomas Henderson, M. D.

PERRINEVILLE CHURCH.

The old New Brunswick Presbytery appears to have been watchful of promising places for the establishing of churches, and of supplying destitute districts with the means of grace. An interesting item occurs in its records under date April 28, 1802: "The committee appointed to enquire into the State of the frontier Settlements Reported that there is a considerable extent of country on the Sea coast, between 80 & an 100 miles in length & about 20 in breadth very destitute of the means of grace: There are some villages considerably inhabited & tolerably productive, but generally the country is of a thin Soil & thinly inhabited. Their religious instruction hath been chiefly from the Methodists, who we believe have been useful among them." Obviously this refers to the southeastern portions of the State. Perrineville was an outstation of the older churches that early became an important point. Preaching services were conducted there possibly as early as 1777. Dr. Woodhull manifested special interest in this work, and secured regular preaching services at Perrineville by Rev. Joseph Clark, who had been a theological student under his care, and in 1784 was ordained as an evangelist. Mr. Clark became pastor at Allentown June 1788, having preached there regularly for a considerable time previous. After this there was an arrangement by which Perrineville was regularly supplied with preaching by the pastors of Old Tennent, Cranbury, and Allentown. This continued until 1826, when on June 5, of that year, the Perrineville church was organized, Rev. Symmes C. Henry acting as the committee. The church took the name of "The Second Presbyterian Church of Upper Freehold." This name was changed by an act of the Legislature in 1847 to the name of "The First Church of Millstone." Rev. Wm. Henry Woodhull, grandson of Rev. John Woodhull, was the first pastor at Perrineville, being installed there Sep. 6, 1826, and continuing in the office for more than five years. There were thirteen original members in the church.

CHAPTER XI.

REV. ROBERT ROY. 1829–1832.

After Mr. Halsey left the congregation they were without a settled pastor for about a year : and yet souls were added to the church. Twenty-two united with the communion in the autumn of 1828. It is possible that Rev. Robert Roy had been preaching in the church previous to that autumn, for the congregation voted to give him a call, July 14, 1828, at an annual salary of $700. He was installed pastor in Old Tennent Feb. 18, 1829. He was born about 1792, and entered Princeton Theological Seminary in 1820, where he studied for three years. Afterwards for a time he was a missionary in Va. He came from the Presbytery of Hudson to the Pby. of New Brunswick. In 1829 Mr. Roy purchased nine and a half acres of ground from Joseph H. Sutfin (et al), which is the same plot of ground on which Mrs. A. P. Cobb's house now stands. On this he built a home at his own charges, and here he lived during his pastorate : and here also he died. After his death this was the home of his widow for many years. Mr. Roy was not of robust health. Within two years after his settlement he made a journey to the South, seeking repair of his throat and lungs. From St. Augustine, Jan. 1831, he wrote a letter to his elders in the session of Old Tennent, addressing it to John Baird, one of the oldest elders at that time. This letter (still preserved) is full of expressions of interest and attachment to his charge. On his return he endeavored to preach, but it was with a weak voice, which was not much above a whisper during the last of his pulpit services. He died at his home March 15, 1832. Rev. Dr. Archibald Alexander preached the sermon at his funeral, and he was buried a few feet from the door of the church, being the fifth pastor laid to rest in the cemeteries of Old Tennent. Mr. Roy was a very sociable and amiable man, exceedingly pleasant in conversation and company, and kind to all. He was very much liked by the people of his charge, and was happily remembered among them. Mr. Roy married Sarah Trimble, of Orange County, New York. An adopted daughter's name was Sarah Jane who married a Dr. Kemble.

HOWEL CHURCH.

While Mr. Roy was pastor a Presbyterian church was formed at Howel, N. J., which may be considered an offshoot from Old Tennent. The organization took place Nov. 1, 1831, and was effected by Rev. Eli F. Cooley, pastor of the First Church of Trenton, N. J., the Rev. Robert Roy also being present. There were eight original members, three of whom came by certificate from Old Tennent. These were Amos Shaw and his wife Caroline, and Thomas Gulick, all now buried in Old Tennent cemetery. The other five members came by profession of faith. Amos Shaw and Thomas Gulick were elected and ordained ruling elders. This church existed about seven years, and then was dissolved by an act of Presbytery, and its members were directed to unite with the church in Freehold village, which they accordingly did April 1839. Yet preaching services were held at this place for some time afterwards, since as late as 1848 personal notes, made by Amos Shaw, record the fact that Revs. J. F. Halsey, L. H. Van Doren, and D. V. McLean preached there at intervals during that year.

STOVES IN THE CHURCH.

In the comforts and conveniences of the sanctuary services for the early worshippers in Old Tennent, necessity was a law as regarded some things; so also was stern and rugged conscience. The latter of these was possibly the reason that no stoves were used in the church for many years, neither was there any fire-place. But this was in accordance with the custom and opinion of the times, as some church people of those early days thought that the introduction of stoves into the churches was "an invention of Satan." The Old Tennent building, in its erection, could easily have been arranged to be heated; or it could have been fitted up for this sooner than it was. It has been said that the Tennent fathers of those days gave as their reason for not having any fire in the church, that they had determined not to be lukewarm, but to be either cold or hot. This may appear somewhat facetious, and yet nevertheless it suggests the existence of a rugged sense of self-sacrifice in religion. For some time it was the custom of the women worshipers to keep themselves warm by means of a "foot-warmer," which was a tin-lined box with a pan of live coals in it, covered over with some ashes. Stoves were introduced into Old Tennent church somewhere about 1800, and even then some of the church members were opposed to their being put in: the opposition and objection to the stoves was so strong that some members are said to have gone out of their pews and sat in other seats as far from the stoves as they could get, so as not to feel their warmth any more than possible. It is known from the records that stoves were in the church by 1815. They stood in the aisle that runs the whole length of the church; one near to the juncture of this aisle with that running north and south on the east side, and the other correspondingly on the west side. The smoke pipes led up over the gallery, and passed out at the windows on the east and west gable ends of the church. The present arrangement is different.

In this broad aisle, running the whole length of the church, four pews were added in 1815, one at the end of the wall pews on the east side of the church, and a similar one on the west side of the church; also one on each side of the middle entrance-aisle at its juncture with the long aisle. These pews were sold to the highest bidders, viz., the one on the east end to Jacob Baker for $27.00, the one on the west end to Samuel Forman for $26.50, the pew on the east side of the middle aisle to Dr. Woodhull for $48.50, and that on the west side to Moses Sproule for $48.50. Some years afterward the two pews opening on the middle aisle were removed in order to give more space in the long aisle in front of the "Elders' square." Moses Sproule was an Ensign in the American army during the Revolution. He became a member of the Society of the Cincinnati May 24, 1784. He married Miss Mary Laird as his first wife, and her sister Susanna Laird as his second wife. It is said that he possessed a number of colored slaves, and that he lived in Englishtown and there conducted a store of general merchandise. While in the vicinity of Freehold Gen. Washington presided at a masonic meeting, and Gilbert Applegate still preserves the Masonic apron used by Moses Sproule on that occasion. Moses Sproule died 1820.

CHAPTER XII.

REV. DANIEL VEECH MCLEAN, D. D. 1832–1836.

In 1832 the congregation unanimously decided to make out a call to Rev. I. C. Converse ; but evidently this relation was not effected, for a few months later, in August, they made out a call to Rev. D. V. McLean, and he followed Mr. Roy in another short pastorate. He was born at Dunlap's Creek, Fayette Co., Pa., Nov. 24, 1801, and was the brother of Judge Amzi C. McLean. When about twenty-one years of age he united with the Presbyterian church at Athens, Ohio. In 1824 he graduated at the University of Ohio, and subsequently for a time was a teacher in Chambersburg, Pa. He studied for two years in Princeton Theological Seminary, and was ordained as an evangelist by the Presbytery of Miami, June 29, 1831. At Somerville, N. J., Feb. 1, 1830, he was married to Miss Evelina B. Linn. Although he acted as Stated Supply for a church in Lebanon, Ohio, for a short period after his ordination, his first installation was in Old Tennent, Nov. 16, 1832. Dr. McLean is said to have preached for his first time in Old Tennent on a week day in the summer of 1832, a day set apart for fasting and prayer on account of cholera then raging, the text for his sermon being Joel 2 : 13-14. During the four years of his pastorate additions were made to the communion ; but the meagre records of those years, that are extant, show no specially large ingatherings. The largest number of enrolled members during that time was two hundred and seventy. But attention is noticeably called to the liberality of the congregation by the large increase of gifts to missions as reported in the Minutes of the General Assembly ; and this liberality appears to have been steadily generous through all of Dr. McLean's pastorate. The largest amount, reported during these four years, as given to the missionary fund, was $178 in 1833. This may be contrasted with the church's contribution to the Missionary fund of $20 in 1812, and $29.50 in 1825. Whatever other compensation was given Dr. McLean as salary for his pastoral services, the amount of money paid him annually appears to have been $600. He resided in the old parsonage, and was probably the last of the Tennent pastors to occupy it.

REV. D. V. McLEAN, D. D.

FREEHOLD VILLAGE CHURCH.

In 1836 Dr. McLean resigned his charge, and Presbytery dissolved the pastoral relation Nov. 8 of that year. Previous to this, in March 1835, a few members of Old Tennent church and congregation resolved to build a house of worship in the village of Freehold, with no special intention at that time of forming themselves into a separate church, "but rather to provide for themselves and families more convenient facilities for holding religious service." Accordingly on June 10, 1835, the corner stone of a brick building was laid. Two years and one week later it was dedicated, having been completed at a cost of about $4000. Feb. 21, 1838, a committee composed of Rev. Eli F. Cooley and Benjamin H. Rice, D. D., of the Presbytery of New Brunswick, organized this church with thirty-two members, all of whom presented letters from Old Tennent. The first elders were Samuel Forman, M. D. (previously an elder in Old Tennent), and William T. Sutphin. The corporate name adopted for this church was "The Village Church at Freehold." On the roll of the churches of Presbytery this name was changed in April 1873, to "The First Church of Freehold," which has sometimes caused confusion from the fact of its similarity to the early name of Old Tennent. The present corporate name of the church in Freehold town is "The First Presbyterian Church of Freehold, N. J.

Dr. McLean having supplied the pulpit of this young organization for some time, was finally installed its pastor Nov. 1, 1838, which position he filled with efficiency for twelve years. He was a man of considerable energy, of fine preaching abilities, and of business capacity. In 1848 he received the honorary title of Doctor of Divinity from Lafayette College. Three years later this college called him to her Presidency, which office he filled from 1851 to 1857. Dr. McLean was a Director in Princeton Theological Seminary from 1848 to 1860. In his later life he again entered the work of the pastorate, and in this service he died Nov. 23, 1869, at Red Bank, N. J. He died of ulceration of the stomach, in full possession of his mental powers, and in his dying hours confirmed and illustrated the promise of the Master that he would never leave nor forsake those who put their trust in him. His wife died in Winfield, W. Va., 83 years of age. The graves of both are in Old Tennent church yard.

Married, by Rev. D. V. McLean on Sep. 21, 1836, Garret B. Conover and Teresa Reid : on the same day also Joseph Combs and Matilda Woodhull.

In 1835 the congregation "Resolved that the outside of the church be painted red. After this resolution was passed, some further discussion took place, respecting the Colour, whereupon it was agreed that the committee be authorized to paint the out side white, provided the exspence between red and white be made up without charge to the congregation." It can still be remembered that the church was red on three sides and the front was white. Possibly there was a time when the church was painted in red on all four sides.

CHAPTER XIII.

REV. JAMES CLARK, D. D. 1837–1839.

Exactly one year after Dr. McLean left the Old Tennent pulpit, Rev. James Clark was installed pastor of the church, Nov. 8, 1837. He was born in the city of Philadelphia March 9, 1812. He studied in the University of Pennsylvania and in the Princeton Theological Seminary with honor and capacity; and he extended his studies for some time in France and Germany, manifesting considerable linguistic powers. Polished and cultured in all his speech, whether written or spoken, he was also an earnest Christian and a strong supporter of the missionary cause. He was ordained by the Presbytery of New Brunswick in session at Old Tennent on the same day in which he was installed pastor of the church. He remained in this his first charge for about two years, until Oct. 2, 1839. After this he was pastor of several churches, and for a time President of Washington College, Pa. During the latter part of his life he was a resident of Philadelphia, and without pastoral charge. He was honored with the title of Doctor of Divinity by Jefferson College in 1850. His death occurred Nov. 1, 1892, in the 81st year of his age. In the spring of 1837 Mr. Clark married Julia Woodhull, second daughter of John T. Woodhull, M. D., a ruling elder in Old Tennent. During his pastorate he lived in the home of Mrs. Robert Roy, boarding with her. Mrs. Clark died at Richmond, Lower Mount Bethel, Pa., Dec. 10, 1839, in her 24th year, and was buried there. Mr. Clark afterwards married Sarah Ann Randolph, daughter of Francis Randolph and Phebe Crane his wife, and sister to Bennington Randolph. In the spring of 1839 Old Tennent reported to Presbytery;—added on examination 10, on certificate 3; total number of members 236; adults baptized 5, infants baptized 5; contributions to Home Missions $61; contributions to Foreign Missions $61.

During the incumbency of Dr. McLean the old parsonage with the farm land attached was sold, as mentioned in Chap. III. Near the close of Mr. Clark's ministry, the congregation purchased a house and lot in Englishtown for a parsonage. This property was bought of Margaret Perrine, April 18, 1839, for the sum of $2,100. It contained four acres of land. Subsequently, May 1, 1841, more land was bought, which appears to have been added to the parsonage, since it was a lot of land "situate lying and being near the village of Englishtown in Freehold." It contained ten and one one-hundredth acres, and was obtained of Dr. J. Smith English, guardian of Cornelia Ann Clayton (minor) at $24.05 per acre. These two lots of land were sold by the congregation March 15, 1850, to Juliet Conover for $2050. This parsonage house afterwards passed through the hands of several owners. It has since been remodelled and considerably enlarged, and was the home for many years of the late John H. Laird. It is now owned and occupied by William E. Mount.

OLD TENNENT'S PRESBYTERIAL CONNECTIONS.

Old Tennent has been connected with several different Presbyteries, some of which have been famous in the history of the Presbyterian Church in America. Obviously Old Tennent was first connected with the Presbytery of Philadelphia, and appears to have been the first of all the churches of New Jersey to belong to that parent of all the American Presbyteries. The first extant record of the meeting of that Presbytery relates to the ordination of Mr. John Boyd. The Synod of Philadelphia was formed in 1716. That Synod established the Presbytery of East Jersey in 1733, by dividing the Presbytery of Philadelphia. The manner in which this record reads, together with the fact that Old Tennent (Freehold) was located in the district called "East Jersey," seems to imply that the church was included in the organization of that Presbytery; and in some instances after this in the records Rev. Wm. Tennent, Jr., is spoken of as a member of East Jersey Presbytery. Then in 1738 the Synod of Philadelphia formed the Presbytery of New York by uniting the remnants of the Presbytery of Long Island with the Presbytery of East Jersey, of which Old Tennent was then a member; and therefore the church became connected with New York. Two days later, on May 26, 1738, at the same session, the Synod erected the Presbytery of New Brunswick, and included Old Tennent within its bounds. Of that Presbytery of New Brunswick Rev. Wm. Tennent, Jr., was one of the five original members that came from the Presbytery of New York. He with his elder, Robert Cumming, was present at its first meeting in New Brunswick Aug. 8, 1738. Rev. Gilbert Tennent opened the Presbytery at this its first meeting with a sermon on the text John 21 : 15. Its third meeting was held at Old Tennent (Freehold) Sep. 7, 1738, and John Henderson was the elder present to represent the church. After one hundred and twenty-one years in this connection Old Tennent made another change. The Synod of New Jersey in Oct. 1859, erected the Presbytery of Monmouth, and named Old Tennent as one of its twelve original churches. This Presbytery was wholly formed out of the Pby. of New Brunswick, and in 1870 at the Reunion became the legal successor to the Presbytery of Burlington of thirteen churches, and at the same time received five more from the Pby. of New Brunswick and one, Lakewood, from the Pby. of Newark. The first meeting of the Presbytery of Monmouth was held in Old Tennent church Jan. 11, 1860, when Rev. Charles F. Worrell preached the opening sermon from Eph. 2 : 8. At that meeting elder James Rue represented the Old Tennent church, and the pastor, Rev. Donald McLaren, was made the first stated Clerk of the Presbytery. Thus summing up Old Tennent's Presbyterial connections they are as follows :—

1. From the first records to 1733 with Pby. of Philadelphia.
2. From 1733 to 1738 with Pby. of East Jersey.
3. From 1738 to 1738 (2 days only) with Pby. of New York.
4. From 1738 to 1859 with Pby. of New Brunswick.
5. From 1859 to present time with Pby. of Monmouth.

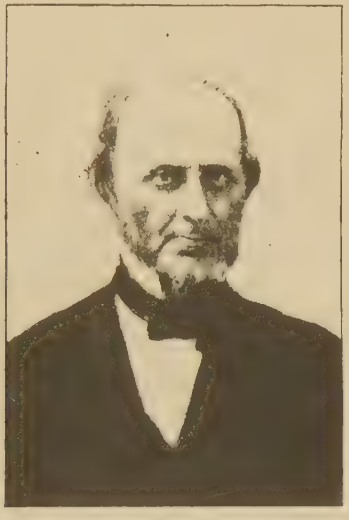
During the discussions and difficulties in the Presbyterian Church throughout the country in the years 1837 and '38, which finally resulted in the division of Old and New School, there is apparently nothing in the records to show that Rev. James Clark (who was pastor in Old Tennent at that time), did for himself or for his congregation manifest any other desire than to support the principles of the Old School branch of the Church. He, and his elder William I. Thompson, at the meeting of the Presbytery of New Brunswick in Oct. 1838, doubtless voted in the affirmative (for the vote was unanimous) on the adoption of the resolution "That this Presbytery hereby declares its cordial adherence to the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, on the basis of the Acts of 1837 and 1838, of the General Assemblies, for the reformation and pacification of the Church." In this connection Old Tennent remained through all the period of division, until the happy Reunion of the two Branches in November 1869 at Pittsburgh, Pa.

About 1840, or previously, it was the custom to have the floors of Old Tennent church "sanded" three times a year, just before the three annual communion services.

CHAPTER XIV.

REV. LUTHER HALSEY VAN DOREN. 1840–1856.

The tenth pastor of Old Tennent was the Rev. L. H. Van Doren. He was the child of eminently pious parents, his father being a most godly minister, and his mother a devout woman, a sister of Rev. Job F. Halsey, a former pastor of Old Tennent. Mr. Van Doren was one in a family of fourteen children, of whom it was said "all received the adoption of sons and daughters of the Lord." He was born at Hopewell, Orange Co., New York, March 14, 1808, and at the early age of twelve years made a public profession of faith in Christ. In 1831 he graduated at Princeton College. Afterwards he studied for orders in the Episcopal Church, under Bishop R. B. Smith of Kentucky. But later, he decided to enter the Presbyterian Church. In 1834 he was ordained by the Presbytery of Columbia, Mo., and soon after began preaching in St. Louis, where he organized what afterwards became a large and flourishing church. Old Tennent called him to her service, offering him an annual compensation of $700 with the use of the parsonage house and lot in Englishtown. On June 17, 1840, he was installed pastor of the old church, and continued in this relation for about half a generation. During his ministry at Tennent the work of the Lord greatly prospered in the church. More than one revival greatly added to the membership of the communion. Conspicuous among these times of refreshing was the season of 1848, when on April 2, 110 persons united with Old Tennent communion. That year's statistical report shows that 115 persons had been added to the church during the foregoing year, all but 3 of whom were on confession of faith ; while the whole number of communicants was 433. Two years later, 1850, the total membership was 481, doubtless the largest number of communicants the church ever had in any one year. Most of the revival meetings of 1848, which continued for about seven weeks, were held in the old school house at Englishtown, and about 250 persons arose for prayers. Old Tennent about that time appears to have had what was called "the Lecture room" in that village. William M. Paxton, who was at that time a young man not quite twenty-four years of age and a student in Princeton



REV LUTHER H. VAN DOREN.

Theological Seminary, frequently preached in those meetings with great acceptance ; and because of his youth he was called "The Boy Preacher." He has now for some years been professor in homiletics in the same seminary in which he studied.

During the former part of Mr. Van Doren's pastorate he resided in the parsonage at Englishtown of which mention has been made. He was the first pastor to occupy this parsonage, at least for any considerable length of time ; and he was the last one. Afterwards Mr. Van Doren moved to a farm, his own property, situated about half way between Englishtown and Tennent. There he lived for some years. He was twice married ; first to Miss Susan Wynkoop, of Bucks Co., Pa., and second, in 1840, to Miss Lydia Ann Carnahan, daughter of President Carnahan of Princeton College. After Mr. Van Doren's ministry closed at Old Tennent, July 5, 1856, he served several churches in different places. His death occurred Oct. 5, 1876 at Middletown, N. J.

About 1850 a clock was placed in the church room, and also at the same time window blinds were set in, possibly those on each side of the pulpit. In the latter part of Mr. Van Doren's pastorate propositions were made at various congregational meetings to alter and remodel the pulpit, pews, and gallery of the church, to lower the pulpit three steps, to rebuild the church edifice with or without using the old frame, and to erect a new church edifice on the sight of the old church. At times some of these propositions appeared to meet with some approval. But either because of a strong opposition throughout the congregation against making a change in the old house, or from failure to secure funds for rebuilding, or from both these reasons combined with others no change was made, and the old edifice remains essentially the same as in the days of Wm. Tennent. After the discussion of these propositions was settled the congregation went to work and repaired and painted the church building, which is one of the means by which it has been preserved to this day.

In 1844 funds were being gathered, by the Presbytery of New Brunswick, among the people of Old Tennent for the permanent endowment of Princeton Seminary, and a subscription paper (still preserved) shows the results as follows: —"We, the subscribers, agree to pay the sums opposite our names, to aid in the permanent endowment of the Theological Seminary at Princeton. The subscriptions are payable in 3 mos., or according to the directions of the subscribers; and if not paid at the time specified, it is agreed that they bear interest at 6 pr. ct. The funds appear to have been gathered by a committee, and the paper will speak for itself, giving some idea of the people's beneficence: but long before this Old Tennent had shown a generous interest to help young men prepare for the ministry.

JAMESBURG CHURCH.

And now again Old Tennent was connected with and contributed to the formation of other churches. In the early part of the nineteenth century the Methodists held services in the school house near to where Cornelius Mount subsequently lived. Also they held regular services at John Hoffman's, between Englishtown and Jamesburg. But earnest though they were, they "failed to hold or fully occupy" the field, for ministers of other denominations began to supply the district with preaching, notably among which were the Presbyterians. Pastors from Cranbury and from Tennent, with now and then others, held occasional services in Jamesburg. Subsequently these services became more regular through different supplies, until June 6, 1854, when the Jamesburg Presbyterian church was organized by a committee from the Presbytery of New Brunswick, consisting of Revs. Symmes C. Henry, J. W. Blythe, L. H. Van Doren, and S. D. Alexander. Of the eleven charter members only one came from Old Tennent, and this was John B. Johnson, a ruling elder in the old church at that time. He and John C. Vandeveer were elected elders of the Jamesburg church. But in less than one month afterward, July 2, 1854, Mr. Johnson was dismissed back to Old Tennent, having been borrowed, as was said, for the purpose of completing the Jamesburg organization at that time. Rev. J. Halstead Carroll was the first pastor of the Jamesburg church.

MANALAPAN CHURCH.

Manalapan is a district that has been long settled, and for many years was mostly included in the bounds of Old Tennent congregation. In April 1856 between two and three hundred persons of Manalapan and vicinity, forty-seven of whom were members of Presbyterian churches, petitioned the Presbytery of New Brunswick to organize a church in that neighborhood to be known as "The Manalapan Church." Presbytery granted the request and appointed a committee on organization: Rev. Symmes C. Henry, D. D., chairman, Rev. S. D. Alexander, and Rev. J. M. Rogers, with elders Bennington F. Randolph and Elias Dye. The church edifice having been begun in 1855 was in due time completed, and on July 31, 1856, it was dedicated, Dr. S. C. Henry preaching the sermon from the text Ezra 6 : 16. On the same day, immediately after this service, the committee appointed by Presbytery organized the church with 48 members, all of whom presented letters of dismission from other churches, 34 from Perrineville, 9 from Old Tennent, and the remainder from the first church of Cranbury and the village church of Freehold. William P. Forman, John J. Ely, John W. Vanschoick, and Gilbert S. Reid were elected and installed ruling elders, all of whom had been elders in the Perrineville church (First church of Millstone). Rev. John Leslie Kehoo was the first pastor of the Manalapan church. "Manalapan" is an old Indian name and is said to mean "good corn land," which is a true description of its farms.

CHAPTER XV.

REV. DONALD MCLAREN, D. D. 1857–1862.

A few months after the close of Mr. Van Doren's term of service the church called Rev. Joseph G. Symmes to its pastorate. This call was dated Nov. 25, 1856. Mr. Symmes, then preaching in Madison, Indiana, did not see his way clear to accept the call, but just one generation later his second son, as a sort of belated substitute for his father, was installed pastor of the church.

Rev. Donald McLaren followed Mr. Van Doren as pastor in Old Tennent. He was born in Caledonia, N. Y., March 7, 1834. His father, Rev. Donald C. McLaren, D. D., was a prominent member of the Associate Reformed Church, of which Church he was the last Moderator, as such participating in that union with the Associate Church which resulted in the formation of the United Presbyterian Church.. Mr. McLaren graduated from Union College, Schenectady, in the class of 1853, and from Princeton Theological Seminary in the class of 1857. It was a very interesting coincidence that three members of the Seminary class of 1857 should have been settled at nearly the same time, and in closely related adjoining churches in Monmouth : Rev. Frank Chandler in the Freehold Village church, Rev. John L. Kehoo in the new church at Manalapan, and Mr. McLaren at Old Tennent. The introduction of the latter to his future pastorate was indirectly due to his friend Mr. Chandler, who had accepted a call to the church in Freehold early in the winter previous to his graduation from the Seminary, and it was arranged that he should provide supplies for his pulpit until Spring. Mr. McLaren preached as one of these supplies, and later, upon the suggestion of Mrs. D. Clark Perrine one of the members of the church in Freehold, was invited to preach in Old Tennent. It happened that the letter from Rev. Jos. G. Symmes declining the call to Old Tennent, was handed to Mr. McLaren, upon the occasion of his visit, to be read from the pulpit, and the hearts of the people seemed at once to turn towards the youthful Princeton student. Not many weeks after, before his graduation from the Seminary, he received and accepted a call to Old Tennent, which promised him a salary of $1000. He had previously been licensed to preach by the Associate Reformed Presbytery of Caledonia. Mr. McLaren was ordained to the ministry and installed as pastor of the Old Tennent church by the Pby. of New Brunswick July 1, 1857 : the ordination sermon was preached by his father from the text Dan. 12 : 3. On July —, 1858, Mr. McLaren was married in Princeton to Miss Bessie Stockton Green, daughter of Prof. Jacob Green one of the founders of the Jefferson Medical School of Philadelphia, and grand-daughter of Rev. Dr. Ashbel Green, one of the presidents of Princeton College. Of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. McLaren, all of whom are living (1904), a son and a daughter were born in Tennent parsonage. This son, Donald C., the namesake of his grandfather, was ordained in Old Tennent church Jan. 19, 1886, by the Pby. of Monmouth meeting there : the sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. A. A. Hodge, and the charge to the young missionary, who was to go out and labor in Brazil, was given by his father.

One of the notable events of Mr. McLaren's pastorate in Old Tennent was the building of a church edifice in Englishtown. The most of the people in that village were members of the Tennent church, and many being without means of conveyance, and so rarely able to attend the mother church, it had been the custom for many years for the pastors to hold afternoon or evening services, sometimes in the Englishtown school house, but more frequently in the Methodist church, the use of which was always courteously granted to the Presbyterians. The matter of erecting a Presbyterian church had often been considered, but there had been difficulties in the way of an agreement upon a site ; these disappeared through the instrumentality of Dr. Polhemus who secured an eligible plot in the center of the village. The project awakened deep interest in the village and throughout the surrounding country. The people contributed generously and joyfully to the work. The pastor joined with others in personally soliciting the most of the subscriptions. The building cost about $4000. Although a separate Board of Trustees was formed to hold the property, there was no intention whatever at that time to organize a new church. This was the development of later years.

In the autumn of 1861 the health of Mr. McLaren having been seriously impaired, he tendered the resignation of his pastoral charge. At a large congregational meeting called to act upon this resignation, the people asked that it be withdrawn and voted to grant the pastor a rest for six months, continuing his salary and providing by special subscriptions for the supply of the pulpit. During a large portion of the time the pastor was absent the pulpit was supplied by Rev. A. P. Cobb, who ultimately became Mr. McLaren's successor. At the end of the six months' vacation Mr. McLaren was so far restored that he resumed his work. However after another half year of arduous labor, his health failed a second time, and his pastoral relation was dissolved Nov. 5, 1862. His ministrations at Old Tennent were crowned with blessings. Steadily year by year numbers were added to the church and the congregation built up. The goodly number of infant baptisms each year gave promise of ingatherings for the future.

The introduction by the Session of a scheme of Systematic Benevolence through district collectors largely increased the Missionary contributions. When Mr. McLaren left, the communicants numbered 351.

Mr. McLaren was commissioned as Chaplain in the United States Navy March 10, 1863. After many years service at the Naval Academy and other shore stations and with the fleets in different parts of the world, having reached the age fixed by law, he was in 1896 placed upon the Retired List of the Navy Wooster University, Ohio, conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1880.

On May 20, 1858, some time after Mrs. Roy's death, the congregation purchased of the heirs of Rev. Robert Roy, through Bennington F. Randolph (one of the Masters of the Court of Chancery) what had been the "Roy Parsonage." It contained nine and one-half acres of land with a house thereon, and the price paid was $2,050. Extensive repairs were made on this property, bringing the whole cost up to $4,334.90. This parsonage Dr. McLaren occupied during his pastorate at Old Tennent. He is still (1904) living, and kindly wrote the largest part of this chapter on his ministry.

SINGING AND MUSIC.

There is no record of the fact, yet nevertheless it is most probably true that there was a precentor in the early days who led the congregation in singing, and lined out the hymns and psalms according to the Scottish custom. It is an ancestral tradition that Peter Forman "led the singing in the church for some years after it was first used for the public worship." (Forman Records p. 25).

On June 26, 1797, "twas Motioned & Carryed that Jonathan Formon Esquire And Wm. Machesny Be appointed as Clercks In Conguction With Thomas Coock Esquire & David Sutphin In Reading & Singing Such Psalms as they Shall Se Proper Or Are Directed to be Sang by the Pastor Or Proper officers of Sd. Church." And on April 10, 1799, the congregation resolved "That whereas for some time past the Clerks of the Congregation have been directed to sing the first psalm on the introduction of public worship without reading the line, they be directed in future to have the line of the first psalm read and to sing the second psalm without reading." From this it might appear that all hymns sung in the church were called "psalms," or that the congregation in those days sang only psalms.

In a congregational meeting held May 28, 1805, it was "Resolved that It be requested that the Tunes which make part of the Public worship be sang without the use of the pitch pipe. Resolved that it is the sence of this meeting that all Psalms which shall be sung during Public worship shall be raised or carried from the desk or square. Resolved that the Psalms intertroducing, sacred worship, Is recommending to be sang by reading the line."

Again, April 20, 1824, the congregation "Resolved, that William Sutphen, John T. Woodhull, John W. Maxwell, N. S. Rue, Hugh McChesny be appointed Clerks, to raise & Carry the sacred musick in the church, and that the said Clerks use their own disscretion weather to sit in the square or in the front pews in the gallery." Later than this, it is known that there were three men who acted as precentors. They stood in the lower pulpit of the square, gave the pitch and led the singing. These men were John T. Woodhull, M. D., Nathaniel S. Rue, and David Sutphen ; Dr. Woodhull leading, and the other two assisting.

After this a choir of singers was formed during the ministry of Mr. Van Doren. This choir was organized and led by Dr. John T. Woodhull ; and it stood in the gallery opposite the pulpit. Toward the close of Dr. Woodhull's service as chorister Joseph C. Conover was appointed to assist him in 1846, probably about the time the choir was formed.

Still later than this Edward Redfield, a professor of music, was engaged by the congregation to lead the choir for a year, and teach a singing school for six months. This singing school was held on Saturday evenings in the church building. Mr. Redfield led the choir during church services with a violin, and the choir stood in the south gallery opposite the pulpit.

Probably the next step in the history of church music in Old Tennent was the leading of the choir by C. Augustus Craig. He was first elected chorister in 1848 with Enoch Cowart assistant. Augustus and his brother James used violins, and were accompanied with a violoncello, a clarionet and a flute. There were about twenty singers in this choir of men and women, and it was still stationed in the gallery. Others also were appointed chorister at different times ; John Van Doren 1851, James Craig 1856, Peter Clayton 1858, Peter R. Bergen 1860 with J. M. Voorhees and E. L. Cowart assistants. In Mr. Bergen's choir, his wife, and Mrs. Kate H. (Forman) Clayton, Mrs. Hannah (Hartshorne) Abrams, Mrs. Mary (Hartshorne) Conover, and Hon. Wm. T. Hoffman were some of the singers. But for many years Augustus and James Craig were the leaders of music and singing in the church.

About 1856 a melodeon was purchased by the congregation, of the Estey & Green manufacture. C. Augustus Craig was the chorister, and his brother, James B., was the first to play this instrument in the leading of the church music. This modest melodeon was the first musical instrument of the organ character that the church possessed: though previously it had purchased a violoncello and a clarionet for the use of the choir orchestra. The melodeon was placed in the gallery. About 1872 a Mason & Hamlin pedal organ with two manuals was purchased. C. Augustus Craig was the first to use this as an organist, and the organ was set in the gallery, but about 1878 it was moved to the lower floor into the square in front of the pulpit.

The last step in the history of music in Old Tennent was made in 1890, when a pipe organ was built by M. P. Moller, of Hagerstown, Md., under order of the congregation, and set on the west side of the pulpit in a recess built for it. This was made a one manual organ with five octaves, eight full registers, and 442 pipes. It was used in the church service for the first time, on Sunday, Dec. 14, 1890. J. Chalmers Rue was the first to use this organ as an organist in leading the choir.

Watts' Hymn Book was used by the church in the early part of the nineteenth century. About the time Dr. John T. Woodhull formed the choir in the church, the hymn book entitled "Psalms and Hymns," published by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, was introduced and used about thirty years until 1875, when the congregation began to use a book containing both hymns and tunes, and entitled "Hymns and Songs of Praise," and this book is still (1904) in use in the church.

There have been a number who sang in the choir and some who were organist at different times, whose names have not been mentioned in the above sketch. Simply the chief features in the story of Old Tennent's church singing and music have here been given.

During the pastorate of Dr. McLaren the old historic parsonage was taken down, mention of which has been made in Chap. III, but some further details may here be added. As a dwelling place it was last used as a tenant house, at least the kitchen portion of the building which was of later erection than the main part. As has been said, during the last years of its standing the old house became very much dilapidated. It was put to various purposes, being used once as a hay barn on the farm; and also at another time as a shop for making chairs. While Wm. Potter was owner of the farm the old portion of the parsonage was taken down May 1860 (a more exact date than is stated in Chap. III) for the sake of using the lumber in the house before it should be spoiled by further exposure. Gilbert Applegate, who lived at that time on the farm, assisted in taking down the building. His son David once found a cannon ball imbedded in the cellar-way of the house. Subsequently the kitchen part of the house was moved up near the barns and used as a barn-shed. Some of the framework of the old parsonage barn still stands in the frame of the present main barn on the farm. A few of the sticks of timbers from the old parsonage house may still (1904) be seen in the mow floor of one of the barns: most of these timbers are supposed to be of Jersey pine, which is a noticeable hint as to the enduring qualities of that variety of lumber.

Canes, as mementos, have been made from lumber out of the old parsonage, and are now treasured in widely separated places like the influences of the godly home life in that house. The frame of the old building was evidently in such a state of preservation that it might well have been repaired, of which it was worthy. It is to be regretted that the church, when they sold the farm, had not reserved the old house with the lot around it, and kept it in repair; or that it had not been purchased by a company like the Monument Association, for it would have proved an exceedingly interesting spot, to visitors on the battlefield, as a witness to the struggle of that memorable day. Joseph Breakley is now the owner of this old parsonage farm.

CHAPTER XVI.

REV. ARCHIBALD PARRITT COBB. 1863–1881.

The twelfth pastor of Old Tennent was Rev. Archibald P. Cobb, a man of plain habits, active mind, and earnest heart. Parsippany, N. J., was the place of his birth, Nov. 9, 1821. His parents were Henry Cobb and Maria Baldwin (maiden name). His father was a farmer. The Christian life of his godly mother, who presented all her children for baptism in their youth, manifestly marked the character of his mature years. At thirteen years of age he went to work in a store at Madison, N. J., and afterwards in a dry-goods store in Newark. Subsequently he held a position in the wholesale dry-goods store of H. B. Claflin & Co , New York City. He was converted in the twenty-second year of his age, and united with the church of his mother's early life, the First Presbyterian of Newark, N. J. Immediately he decided to study for the ministry. Returning home he prepared for college under the tutelage of Rev. John Ford, and entered Princeton 1847 in the Sophomore class. As a scholar he stood in the foremost rank, being one of the Junior Orators in 1849 and graduating with the highest honors of his class in 1850. In the autumn of that year he entered the Theological Seminary at Princeton, and continued his studies in that institution for two years. Having it then in mind that he would enter upon Foreign Mission work, he spent the third year of his course at Union Seminary, New York City, that he might attend medical lectures in connection with his theological studies. He was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Newark, April 20, 1853. From 1853 to '54 he was a tutor in mathematics in Princeton College, and at the same time he acted as Stated Supply to the Witherspoon Street church (colored) in Princeton. April 19, 1854, he was ordained as an evangelist by the Pby. of Newark. His first pastorate was in the Southwark Mission church, Philadelphia, being installed there Dec. 23, 1855. Here he remained for six years in successful labors in the gospel : then he withdrew from the active pastorate, and for two years was without charge on account of impaired health. His last and longest pastorate was in

REV ARCHIBALD P. COBB.

Old Tennent, where he was installed pastor Aug. 8. 1863, and continued thus until his death Feb. 26, 1881. He died at his home, of rheumatism of the heart. Among his last words were "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." At his funeral service a large concourse of friends and parishioners gathered in his spacious dwelling house, and his body was buried in the cemetery of Old Tennent. A granite boulder, smoothed on one side, and inscribed with his name and dates of birth and death, surmounts his grave. His session, with whom he had been many years happily associated, adopted, among others, the following resolution "That we record with reverence and sincere affection, our admiration of his eminent talents and learning, his fervid eloquence and great earnestness, his consecration to the cause of Christ and our good, his labors most abundant in season and out of season, his powerful pulpit utterances, his kindness to the poor, his charity and faithfulness toward all." In this same high esteem the Historian of the Pby. of Monmouth writing a biographical sketch of Mr. Cobb said "Here (at Tennent) he gave himself to the work of preaching the Gospel with a zeal seldom equalled, never excelled. * * * His friends said he did too much ; his people say 'we never asked him to do so much ;' he himself felt he never could do enough." (J. G. S.) Such tributes are unusual, and all the more so because so very truthful. Mr. Cobb married Miss Marianna C. Brown, daughter of Robert J. Brown of New York. She with two daughters survived him.

Oct. 23, 1867, Mr. Cobb and his wife purchased of the congregation what was known as the "Roy Parsonage," mentioned before in previous chapter. On this property he gave a mortgage to the congregation in the sum of $3,000. But the congregation allowed Mr. Cobb to hold this amount free of interest as long as he remained their pastor, presumably in lieu of the use of a parsonage. After his death his heirs paid this mortgage to the trustees of the church. This "Roy Parsonage" house Mr. Cobb finely remodelled and enlarged. But it had scarcely been finished and handsomely furnished, when taking fire it was burned to the ground, on a Sunday afternoon July 25, 1869. Besides the great loss that came to Mr. Cobb by this fire, the church also suffered the irreparable loss of its sessional records, which lamentably subtracts from the writing of a more informing and complete history of the church, and possibly from giving full and accurate lists of communicants and of marriages. Afterwards Mr.

Cobb and his wife erected a larger house near the same spot, and in this house he lived until his death. Presumably as an encouragement for him to rebuild, and an inducement for him to remain as their pastor the congregation on Aug. 25, 1869, unanimously passed the following, "Resolved that the three thousand dollar Mortgage belonging to the Tennent Church, now on the property known as the 'Old Parsonage,' now occupied by James B. Rogers, be given to Rev. A. P. Cobb, at such a time as he may have begun to build a house for his residence, as pastor of said church within the limits of said congregation." Nothing ever drew Mr. Cobb away from this people, though at one time he received an enticing call from another congregation, prominent in position and offering a large salary.

Mr. Cobb was a man of excellent parts, and of indefatigable labors. He possessed splendid gifts in preaching, and sometimes seemed almost inspired. During the Sabbath day, and through all the week following, the number of services he attended and conducted, and the long list of pastoral calls he made, were enough to appall and exhaust most men ; except one like him, who apparently possessed an abundant store of nervous energy and a strong physical constitution. An idea of the size and condition of the Old Tennent congregation about this time may be obtained from a record made by Mr. Cobb in the Minutes of session. This record was the result of a careful visitation in 1870, after the loss of the old records by fire, and with the design of finding "exact names of church members, what children have been baptized, what number of families visited by the pastor and identified in general with his pastoral care." It is as follows : "Entire number in the congregation 1660. Adults 983. Children and Youths 677. Families 412. Church Members 390. Baptized children and Youths 267. Those who should present letters of admission to church membership 27. Those who should be encouraged to profess faith in Christ 23. Children of Parents professing which were not baptized 70. Children not baptized of Parents who should profess their faith in Christ (i e) be counselled to do so 30. Members of our church in Englishtown village 74. Baptized Children in Englishtown 55. Members of our church in Freehold 17. Baptized children there 5." The spiritual results of Mr. Cobb's ministry in Old Tennent cannot be measured nor counted. The records of the ingatherings are beyond the usual in a rural church. While he was pastor 501 persons united with the communion, of whom 388 were on confession of their faith. There was not a single year of his pastorate in which there were no accessions to the church. The lowest number of any one year was 6 and the highest 142. This blessed revival time occurred in 1876, which year the membership of the church numbered 480, the largest number of members during the incumbency of Mr. Cobb, and within one of the largest number the church ever had in one year during its history.

Mr. Cobb, being a man of fine musical taste and ability, a great lover of song and an excellent singer, labored for the best development of praise in his congregation. He made a searching study of the different hymn books with notes then published for use in congregational singing, and decided in favor of the one entitled "Hymns and Songs of Praise." This book was introduced into the church to take the place of the old hymn book in 1875 ; and the school houses in which Mr. Cobb preached were also furnished with this book. It was his custom to conduct evening singing services in Englishtown, when the tunes of the church hymn-book were practiced. These singing services were largely attended and enthusiastically conducted.

While at all times the preaching of Mr. Cobb was energetic and attractive, some of his sermons were more prominent than others in the minds and memories of his hearers. His sermon on the life, character, and death of Rev. Wm. Tennent, Jr., preached in the church in 1877, a sermon on the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Monmouth, preached in the church to a large gathering of people on a Sunday morning in June 1878, also a sermon on a comparison between Alexander the Great and Paul the Apostle preached in Freehold, and a sermon on the subject of Temperance preached in Englishtown a few months before his death, were among the most thrilling, impressive, and memorable of his Tennent pastorate.

God's gracious providence to the congregation of Old Tennent was manifested in the preservation of their historic sanctuary from a threatened devastation in the summer of 1878. On Thursday, Aug. 1 of that year the church was struck by lightning at nine o'clock in the evening, and set on fire. Through the prompt efforts of Lemuel Bedle and a few of the near neighbors, the building was preserved from destruction. The session in behalf of the congregation adopted resolutions of thanks and commendation to Lemuel Bedle, John Snyder, Luther D. Bugbee, John R. Sutphen and others "for their instant attention and zeal in arresting the burning." It seemed a providential provision that R. Perrine Craig, the sexton, had on that very evening placed a barrel under one of the corner leader-pipes of the church for the purpose of collecting water for the use of those desiring to water flowers in their grave plots. The water collected in that barrel from the same thunder shower that brought the lightning stroke contributed largely if not made it a possibility to the extinguishing of the flames. The people of Old Tennent deserve credit for their constant and careful repairing of the old sanctuary; without which care it would long since have crumbled to the ground. Among all the times of repairing probably none has been more extensive or expensive than that in the summer of 1869. At that time papers were carried through the congregation by four men, Wm. Perrine, John W. Craig, George Quackenbush, and R. Perrine Craig, soliciting contributions "for the purpose of Painting, Upholstering and carpenting the Tennent Church." The people gave generously, the subscriptions showing sums of $2, $10, $25, $30, $50 per name. A considerable sum was collected, and pastor Cobb and Mrs. Cobb added a large contribution. At that time two pews were taken out in front on each side of the middle aisle; the floors of the aisles were raised about three inches to a level of the floors of the pews; the seats were raised up about four inches; the interior was painted and the pews grained in walnut; cushions were put into the pews; and carpets were laid on the aisles and in the square. Besides this, the exterior was given two coats of paint. The outside was worn nearly bare of paint, and the shingles were very dry, so that it required about 1200 lbs. of English white lead to give the exterior these two coats. The whole cost was about $1800. Each year added to its history endears the old building and yard to the church people, adds to its value as a sacred heritage, and increases its interest to visitors. It has suffered somewhat from vandal hands, so much so indeed that the church people in 1867 resolved to give notice of caution against disfiguring the church seats in the gallery; and to procure signs warning persons who visit the church not to mutilate it by tearing off pieces of shingles from the enclosure. To this old building and its high narrow pulpit Mr. Cobb became more and more attached, loving it as an endeared home. In its preservation he ever took a keen interest, and also in the improvement of the surrounding grounds. The church people, and those of neighboring communities, cherished the memory of Mr. Cobb long and beloved; which fact together with his successful labors and earnest faithfulness combines to emphasize what once was said of him that he was not unlike his illustrious predecessor of a century before, the famous Wm. Tennent, Jr.

ENGLISHTOWN CHURCH.

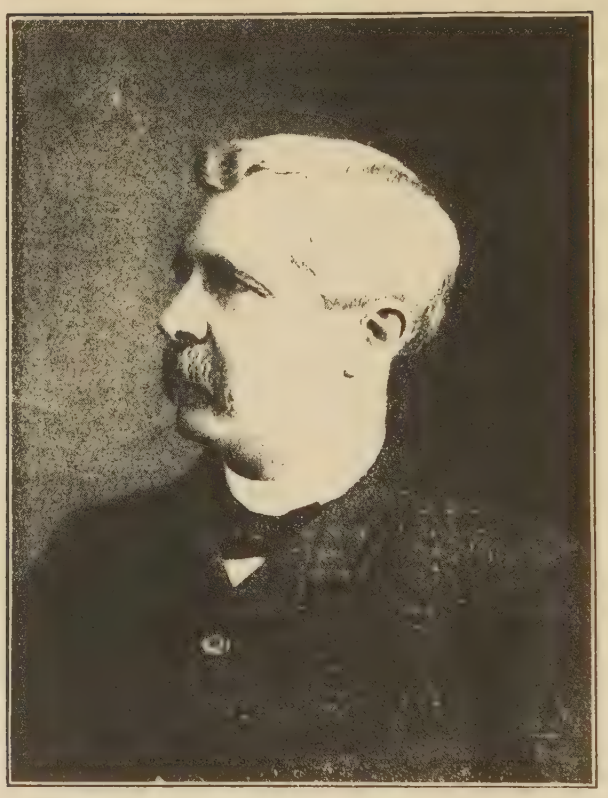
After Mr. Cobb had been at Tennent for thirteen years, a considerable portion of the congregation was formed into a separate church at Englishtown. Preaching services had been maintained in this place for some years in connection with Old Tennent, and a building had been erected in which the meetings were held. In 1876 a petition for the organization of a church was presented to the Presbytery of Monmouth by residents of Englishtown and vicinity. After deliberation on the matter, through a committee appointed to visit Englishtown, Presbytery granted the request, and accordingly a Presbyterian church was organized there, Thursday, Dec. 14, 1876. Of the committee on organization, there were present, Rev. Benj. S. Everitt, Moderator of the Presbytery at that time and chairman of the committee, Rev. J. M. Anderson, and Rev. Rufus Taylor, D. D., with elders Ezekiel Silvers and Wm. R. Murphy. Fifty-seven members from Old Tennent and one from the First church of Cranbury, N. J., were enrolled as first members in the new organization. Four elders were chosen and ordained, Charles H. VanDerveer, Andrew S. Sickles, Matthew Rue, Jr., and Wm. C. Lefferts : and three deacons were also chosen and ordained, John M. Dey, Taylor S. Clayton, and Symmes H. Dey. Soon after its organization the church secured the services of Rev. Donald McLaren, a former pastor of Old Tennent. Mr. McLaren had recently returned from a naval cruise in Chinese waters and while waiting orders from the Government was residing in Princeton. He was not called upon to resume his duties as a Chaplain for more than a year, and during this period he supplied the pulpit of the new church at Englishtown. Thus it will be noticed that the history of the formation and early life of the church at Englishtown is very similar to that of "The Village Church at Freehold." Concerning the Englishtown church building see p. 143.

CHAPTER XVII.

REV. GEORGE GARDNER SMITH. 1881–1885.

On May 30, 1881, the congregation extended a call to Rev. Geo. G. Smith, a native of Pennsylvania, born at Pittsburg, Nov. 22, 1838. In the call $1,000 was promised him as a salary, and house rent free. Mr. Smith graduated at Williams College, Mass., 1861, and at Western Theological Seminary 1867. He was ordained by the Presbytery of Carlisle 1868. His installation at Old Tennent took place June 27, 1881 ; in which service his uncle, Rev. Job F. Halsey, a former pastor of the church, gave him his charge. Mr. Smith continued pastor at Old Tennent until April 1, 1885. One of the most beneficial accomplishments of his ministry at Tennent was the organizing and establishing of a Woman's Missionary Society in the church. It was organized Oct. 8, 1881, "to promote the spirit of Christian benevolence among its own members, and throughout the congregation and to give and to work in aid of various fitting objects of Missionary enterprise, and especially of the Boards of the Presbyterian Church." The first woman president of the Society was Mrs. Redford J. Gulick. This Society is still in flourishing operation, meeting twice each month from October to April in different homes of the families of the congregation. It has accomplished much good in the church, and is this day an efficient means toward increasing Old Tennent's benevolences. During the summer months this Society devotes its collected funds to the aid of its own church.

The money which Mr. Cobb's estate returned to the trustees of the church after his death was used in the purchase of the home of James Rue, who had died a few years previously and was an elder in the church. The date of purchase was October 22, 1881, and the amount paid for the property was $2,643.50. This house is situated about one mile south of the church on a beautiful eminence 131 feet above mean sea level, and it has four acres of ground attached. This has been the parsonage of the church from the time of its purchase, where all the pastors since that time have resided, Mr Smith being the first to occupy it.



REV. GEORGE G. SMITH.

Between fifty and sixty persons united with the communion of the church during the pastorate of Mr. Smith, and when he left the church its membership numbered 295. Mr. Smith still lives, and his home is in Pittsburg, Pa. In 1903 he published a book in the press of D. Appleton & Co., New York, with the title "Spencer Kellogg Brown, His Life in Kansas and his Death as a Spy." It is a book of intense interest and historic instruction relating to the times of the Civil War.

CHAPTER XVIII.

REV. ROBERT CRAWFORD HALLOCK, PH. D., D. D. 1885–1889.

The congregation made out a call to Robert C. Hallock, Sep. 3, 1885, with an annual compensation of $1,000 and free use of parsonage and lot. Mr. Hallock was born at Holliday's Cove, West Virginia, Nov. 9, 1857. He graduated at Princeton College 1882, and also at Princeton Theological Seminary 1885. He was ordained by the Presbytery of Monmouth Oct. 16, 1885, in session in the Old Tennent church, and the same day installed its pastor. Like a number of preceding pastors his first charge was in Old Tennent. There he remained for four years, until Nov. 19, 1889, when he removed to become pastor of the Presbyterian church at Southampton, Long Island. Mr. Hallock, during his pastorate, published a paper in the interest of the church, chiefly for congregational reading. At the first it was issued monthly, and afterwards every week. The paper was named "The Old Tennent." It was largely subscribed to by the church people, was greatly enjoyed, and was the means of doing much good throughout the congregation.

The preaching of Mr. Hallock was spirited and much liked by his people. His pastorate, though quiet and short, was blessed with happy results ; between seventy and eighty persons united with the church during the four years of his ministry in it, and the church's gifts to Home and Foreign Missions increased. In 1888 Mr. Hallock received the well-earned degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of New York. He still lives, and is now pastor of the Presbyterian church at Clinton, N. Y., where he was installed Jan. 20, 1897.

HARVEST HOME.

Regularly for a number of years the congregation has annually held what is called a "Harvest Home." The first one held by the church was on June 23, 1868 ; and largely since that time they have been held every year. The first one was particularly a strawberry festival, but later they became of a more general character. It is a rural entertainment consisting of a bountiful supper, with ice cream and confectionery, and music throughout the evening by a cornet band. Large tents are spread on the church green, under the white oaks ; and there the supper tables, and refreshment stands, and carriages with happy people coming in at the close of the afternoon, present a festive and attractive scene. Always an evening is selected that is near to full moonlight. The attendance on these occasions has lately been increasing every year, and friends meet on that evening from many surrounding towns. The effort generally results in a comfortable financial success. In 1902 the gross receipts were $984 and the net proceeds were $570, and on that evening 1162 persons were provided with supper. These figures are the highest that yet have been reached in the history of this festival thus far. The whole entertainment is conducted on a very simple plan which is steadily adhered to, and the gathering has been made a pleasant and sociable affair by the patronage of the many interested friends of Old Tennent.

CHAPTER XIX.

REV. FRANK ROSEBROOK SYMMES. 1890—

The present and fifteenth pastor of the church was installed Feb. 18, 1890, by the Presbytery of Monmouth, and in this office he still continues. He was born in Madison, Indiana, Oct. 24, 1856 : graduated at Princeton College 1881, and at Princeton Theological Seminary in 1886 : ordained by the Presbytery of West Jersey May 13, 1886, and at the same time installed pastor of the old Fairfield church at Fairton, N. J. That church is one of the oldest Presbyterian organizations in the State, being established about 1690 mostly by people from Connecticut, Long Island, and East Jersey. It is familiarly known as the "Old Stone Church" referring to the old building that is still standing, and it is known in the early records as the church of "Cohanzy." Its most famous pastor was Rev. Ethan Osborn, happily known as "Father Osborn," whose efficient service in the church continued from 1789 to 1844.

A Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was formed in Old Tennent in 1890. On Oct. 17 of that year the organization was completed in the adoption of the Constitution and By-Laws which had been drawn up by a committee previously appointed. The officers of the Society had been elected Oct. 9, and these first officers were George L. DuBois, President ; Miss Mamie V. Rue, Vice-President ; Miss S. Jennie Reid, Recording Secretary ; W. Harvey Reid, Treasurer ; and Augustus Reid, Corresponding Secretary. The organization started in October with fifteen active members, and by the close of the following December this number had increased to thirty-three. The custom of this society has been to hold their prayer meeting in the church on every second Sunday evening.

During the autumn of 1892 a fire-proof safe was purchased from The Lytle Safe & Lock Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio. It was procured through a generous deal of Daniel S. Aumack. In this safe the records and papers of the church are preserved : and to this collection historical materials concerning Old Tennent, have continually been added, and more are earnestly solicited as they may be discovered from time to time in the old desks, closets, and attics of friends of the church.

Since 1890 repairs have been made on the old church : the steep angled roof has been covered with the permanent slate on both sides of the combing over the old shingles, making doubly sure against snow, and wind, and rain ; new Ostermoor cushions have been put into the pews ; and the edifice has been repainted within and without, and the pews grained in oak. Besides the recess on the north side of the church for the pipe organ, mentioned before, a vestibule portico has been placed before the middle front door.

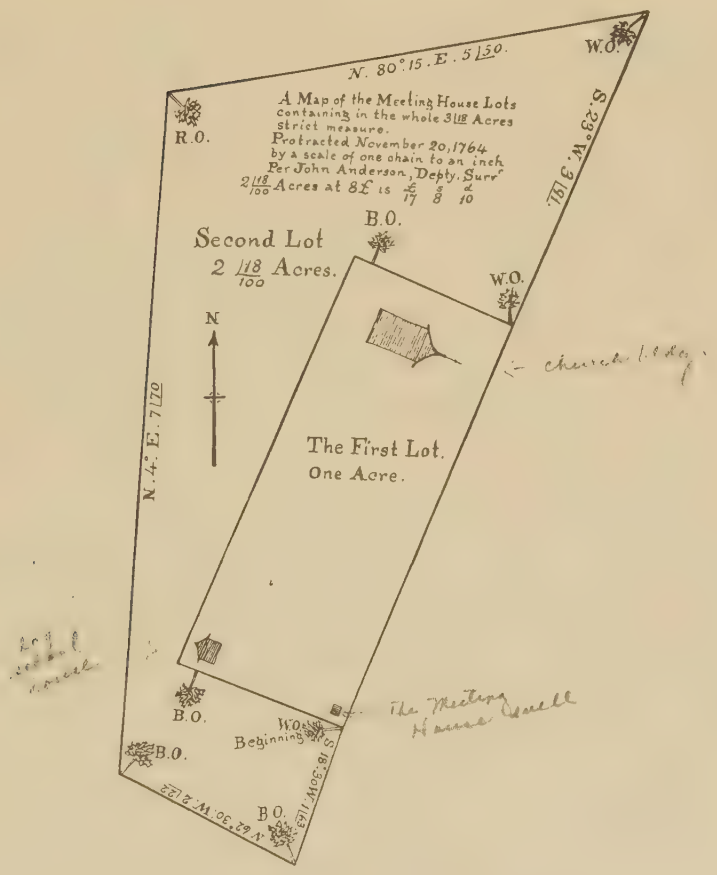
For two hundred years a sturdy religion has been preached in Old Tennent, its people would have nothing else. Doctrines of strong meat and not of milk have been constantly set forth, molding the mind and establishing the heart. The Westminster system has been taught, and the youth grounded in its principles. But best of all, Jesus has been faithfully preached in his love and power to save sinful men, and give them a hope of the life that is everlasting.

CHAPTER XX.

THE OLD TENNENT CEMETERY, 1731—

Soon after the first sanctuary was built on White Hill, a cemetery began to form around it. Even at the first there was abundant room for burials considering that the first lot of ground was one acre in extent, and even though the ground was doubtlessly covered with oaks. But long after the second and present church was built on this acre some of the most prominent families in the congregation continued to bury their dead in the Old Scots yard, though evidently they attended service at White Hill. This perhaps was owing to the fact that they early had family grave plots there, and that they cherished sacred memories of their fathers' rugged church in the wilderness. The date of death marking the earliest tomb-stone in Old Tennent yard is Oct. 27, 1744, over the grave of John Mattison who died in his 23rd year. Possibly there were burials in the yard previous to this, and like many others since, the graves have become obliterated or cannot be identified. In 1852 there were 164 graves unidentified, and 1091 that were known or marked by headstones. There are grave stones marking burials of the dead for almost every year from 1744 down to the present. The diagram given here of the early burial and church ground of Old Tennent on White Hill was taken from an old map. The figure on the north end of the first acre shows the church building; that in the southwest corner is evidently meant for the log school house; and that in the southeast corner indicates "the Meeting House Well" located on that spot. The letters at the corners obviously refer to the sort of oak that marked the line. The fact of this ground being covered with oak trees possibly explains the name "White Hill," perhaps meaning "White oak Hill." As time went on more land was added to the original lot. The trustees of Old Tennent, or those acting as trustees at that time, purchased from Wm. Ker one acre of land, the original site on which the church now stands. The deed for this plot of ground was dated May 1, 1731, and the price paid was "One Shilling Current Money of the province." Dec. 1, 1764, two and eighteen hundredths acres were purchased from Jonathan Rhea at £17.. 8.. 10.



Plan of the Early Lots of Old Tennent Cemetery.

John Anderson, Depty. Surveyor, protracted a map of the church ground at this time. (In the print here given it must be noticed that the scale of the drawing has been reduced when the picture plate was made). Again, Oct. 11, 1803, one and ten hundredths acres, in a wedged shape plot on the west side of the yard, were purchased from Lewis Perrine, for the sum of $29.34. The same year a map of the church yard as it then lay was drawn by John L. Anderson, Deputy Surveyor. On May 3, 1841, one and nine hundredths acres were bought of John I. Conover for $43.60. Again, May 10, 1849, fifty-nine hundredths of an acre were purchased from William Mc Chesney for $38.35. On Oct. 25, 1867, the largest purchase of ground was made, bought of Miss Anna Mary Gordon for $1,600 containing 9.05 acres. Dec. 18, 1868, the trustees of the church bought of John M. Perrine 1.70 acres for $340. These probably embrace most if not all the purchases of land that were made. About one year subsequent to this 4.13 acres on the north end of the yard were sold to Ellison E. Clinton for $400. This parcel of ground was sold out of that purchased from Miss Anna Mary Gordon who used to live with her brother, Matthew Rue Gordon, on the hill opposite to the church, where the flag pole now stands. Matthew was a shoemaker, as was also his father John who lived in that house before him and who had leather vats down by the old cider house. Henry Perrine lived there before John Gordon and had the cider house down at the north end of his place where is now the road bridge over the Hartshorne brook.

The present church grounds are very ample, and offer wide room for desirable burial plots to those wishing to secure them. The trees in the burying ground proper have most all been cleared away, only one of the old white oaks is still standing up near the church, "the oak having the large limb." The well that used to stand about a hundred yards to the south of the church has been closed up and the ground over it occupied by the grave yard. The old school house that used to stand on the first acre is gone, and also the second one built near to it afterwards, and the horse shed which is said to have been on the ground near the school house. In April, 1859, the congregation resolved at their annual meeting that the Session House Public School District should be allowed a location on the ground of the church on which to build a new school house ; while the School District was to allow the congregation to use the new house from time to time as a sort of compensation for the occupancy of the ground. This school house was placed further from the church than the first one. It took fire and was burned to the ground on Thursday, Feb. 13, 1902 : school was in session at the time the fire started. The school house was rebuilt outside the bounds of the church yard. Roadways and paths have been marked out in the cemetery convenient to all parts. In 1854 the congregation resolved "That a bier be provided for carrying the dead from the hearse at the gate to the grave." This is no longer needed, and is preserved simply as a relic.

In connection with Old Tennent cemetery some reference must be made to three men who especially have performed long and valuable service in its interest. Hugh McChesney was sexton for about forty-five years: William, his son, assisted him at the last. He was a blacksmith, and lived in the house near the present northeast corner of the cemetery, where Alexander Trotter now (1904) lives. Previously a Mr. Freeman lived at that place and kept a hotel. Robert Perrine Craig was another sexton, who served for twenty-one years, in which time he performed in the cemetery about 800 burials. He was constantly active in every branch of church work, as well as in caring for the old burying ground. He was a farmer during most of his life. His father was Charles Craig, son of Samuel, and belonged to the family long known in the history of the church. His mother was Mary Perrine, a godly woman, who died in 1836 leaving a family of young children. Mr. Craig never married, but lived with his father until his father's death in 1882 when the home, a farm near by the church, was broken up. Mr. Craig was a constant companion of his pastors, and his memory and conversation were replete with reminiscences of the history and families of the church. He supplied much for the writing of this book. He died Feb. 14, 1904, in his 80th year, and was buried at Old Tennent. Another man that has done valuable service for Old Tennent cemetery is Abraham Bogart Ammerman, born at Harlingen, Somerset Co., N. J., Oct. 22, 1802, son of John P. Ammerman and his wife Margaret Collings. On Nov. 25, 1826, he married Cornelia Ann Conover, daughter of Samuel and Eunice (née Jewell) Conover. They had nine children, only two of whom grew to adult years. Mr. Ammerman played the bass viol, and sometimes the violin in the choir in the gallery of Old Tennent. He was a tailor by trade, and also an excellent land surveyor. About middle life he entered the Baptist church and became a licentiate preacher in that denomination. He died July 5, 1867, of paralysis, at Freehold, N. J., and was buried there in Maplewood cemetery. Under the direction of the congregation in 1852 he began a map of the old part of the cemetery showing the location of all the graves at that time. Mr. Ammerman also made a list of the names, as far as known, of all persons buried in the old yard giving the age and date of death, when it could be stated, and indicating whether or not a stone marks the graves. He was assisted in this work by Hugh McChesney, the old sexton, who was most thoroughly acquainted with the facts, names, and locations of the graves. But, as mentioned above, some of the graves could not be identified, and evidently some were obliterated and therefore may never be known.

Of those who have served in the sextonship of Old Tennent cemetery it may here be said that Samuel Jaqush was appointed sexton 1813. Hugh McChesney was appointed 1816 and served probably continuously until 1863. His son Wm. McChesney was appointed sexton 1863. Matthew Rue Gordon was sexton from 1864 until 1867. C. Augustus Craig acted as sexton in 1867 to '68. R. Perrine Craig was sexton from 1868 to 1889: John B. Snyder from 1889 to 1891: E. Thompson Conover from 1891 to 1903: and Ephraim Laird was appointed sexton 1903.

In former years a public highway (carriage road) ran on the west and north of the church grounds, between what is now the old and the new parts of the cemetery. But in response to an application made by Robert E. Craig and others to the Court, it was ordered that this piece of road should be vacated and closed to the public in April 1867. The road, from which the vacated piece was cut off, was opened into the Manalapan and Patton's Corner turnpike further to the north dividing the Gordon property. The portion of the cemetery known as "The New Part" embraces the ground purchased from Miss Gordon, and covers between four and five acres lying between the line of the old highway and where the new highway now is. In 1868 the trustees were authorized by the congregation to move the horse-sheds to a more desirable location. These sheds at that time stood close along the public road on the west side of the church grounds. Accordingly they were removed to the opposite side of the church yard, on the low ground running along the east side, the work being done by Rezeau Brown. At the same time the grounds of the church were graded and improved. A carriage road was laid out in front of the sanctuary so that since that time, though not before, carriages can be driven up to the very door of the church.

These burial grounds are being repaired and improved from time to time. A custom has long prevailed for the men of the congregation once a year to gather in the yard, and mow and rake it. Besides this the sexton, with the trustees, is continually repairing it, and takes special care of such plots whose owners make a private arrangement with him. The grounds are increasing in beauty and value, and in historic interest and sacred memories. A large proportion of Old Tennent's members have been laid in this tranquil resting place; and many persons make journeys to this God's acre in memory of and in sorrow over departed friends. It is indeed a sacred spot, hallowed in many minds, and endeared to many hearts. From different and distant places the children of this church are being brought for burial among the scenes of their youth in this rural grave-yard. A large silent city of the dead is extending its white and gray stones over these peaceful acres. And we of the living are shortly expecting to come to the undisturbed repose in this sepulchre of our fathers.

Old Tennent has been the grateful recipient of a number of legacies, from time to time in her history, by her faithful and generous friends; and these funds have greatly assisted in her continued support and in maintaining her financial credit down to this very day. It would be a happy condition for the old church if it could receive a number of endowment legacies to form a sort of fund for the permanent preservation of the building and support of its worship.

[After the above list the only record of communicants that Old Tennent now possesses may be indicated by a study, in the Baptismal Register, of the names of adults that were baptized and of the names of parents who had children baptized.]

A small Memorandum book, kept by Dr. Woodhull at the beginning of his pastorate, was happily discovered and obtained some years ago. Rev. Frank Chandler, D. D. found this book in the possession of an aged junk-dealer, whom he visited and with whom he conversed in his extreme illness. The junk-dealer had purchased it in the vicinity of Freehold among a lot of old papers, and doubtless recognizing its value had preserved it. In April 1881 action was taken by the Presbytery of Monmouth to procure the book from the junk-dealer, and then by that Presbytery it was presented to the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia.. The same quick observation and prompt action by us all might often result in recovering many important historical materials. This memorandum book reads as follows :

"A list of Communicants in ye first Presbyterian Church in Freehold, began Octor. 2nd, 1779.

And now again study must be made of the Baptismal Register, and mark the names of adults baptized and the names of parents who had children baptized.

After this we have a list, apparently made out in 1826, happily secured by Rev. Allen H. Brown, a successful and indefatigable student in church history. He obtained this list of Henry Shaw, Long Branch, N. J., and deposited it in the vaults of the Library of Princeton Theological Seminary. The original book was the sessional record and register of the Presbyterian church at Howel, N. J., and in some way it contained this list of Old Tennent's communicants. A column of figures is alongside the list marking the ordinal numbers of the names; these figures are here omittted in order to economize space and avoid confusion.

"List of the members of the 1st Presbyterian church Freehold, N. J., when the Rev. J. F. Halsey was ordained Pastor June 14, 1826."

[Here is given first the names of 17 elders; but these are omitted now because not all were elders in 1826, and because their names are all included in the complete list of Elders. See Appendix.]

After this for some years Old Tennent has no regular list of its communicants, except here and there as names and dates have been secured from members themselves:—until after the disastrous fire that destroyed the parsonage home and Sessional Records July 25, 1869, when Rev. A. P. Cobb in 1870 made out a list of all that were members at that time: and since then the record is complete down to the present. The author (F. R. S.) has gathered a few names and dates whose record was lost or not known, and has endeavored to arrange all in order. But this list is partially approximate, manifestly imperfect, and certainly incomplete, albeit it cost considerable toil to arrange it even as it is

MARRIAGE RECORDS IN OLD TENNENT.

It is to be regretted that Old Tennent has no complete list of Marriages by the pastors, only some scattered records as they appear in connection with the Baptismal Register and elsewhere as incidental notes. Of course after the sad fire in 1869 the new record lists begin, and the list of Marriages by Old Tennent pastors is complete from that date to the present. See pages 131, and 204 on through Baptism List.

LIST OF BAPTISMS.

Early Baptismal Records in Old Tennent Church, Mostly During the Pastorate of Rev. William Tennent, Jr.

Note.—The pages of this old Record are so soiled, broken and worn with age that in some cases it is impossible to distinguish the full dates and names. Some unhappy references in the original record have been omitted in this printed list. The records are mostly in the handwriting of John Henderson, clerk of the congregation.

Lord's Day, October 5, 1735, was Baptized Jacob, Rebeca and ——— Children of Benjamin Applegate.

Lord's Day, August 8, 1736, was Baptized Elizabeth and Hannah, Daughters of Thomas Applegate, (the Son of John).

Lord's Day, November 27, was Baptized Lydia, Daughter of Zebulon Applegate.

Lord's Day, Sept. 18, 1763, was Baptized Amie a Negro Woman of Wm. Williamson's, Son of A———, on profession of her Faith.

Thomas Adams had bap. Joseph, Jan. 21, 1731; James, Sep. 24, 1732.

Mr. Anderson's son John was bap. Aug. 28, 1748.

John Anderson, Esq'r had bap. Helena, Jan. 28, 1733; Kenneth, Nov. 7, ——4; Ursilla, July 11, ——; Elizabeth, July 4, ——; James, July 6, ——; Kenneth—the first Kenneth being Deceased, July 4, ——; Ursilla, June 3, ——; Lewis, Sep. 27, ——; Margaret, Oct. 13, 1751.

William Allen had bap. Sarah, Jan. 8, ——4; Janet, Apr. 1, ——6.

David Adams. Margaret, Said David's Wife made open profession of Faith Apr. 28, 1734, and had bap. Hannah, Sarah, David, Children of Said David & Margaret Adams; James, May 2, 1736.

Daniel Allen, Dec. 15, 1734, Baptized upon open Profession of his Faith.

William Addudel had bap. William, Aug. 22, 1736; Isbela—Baptized at a Society, Oct. 6, 1737; John Murray, a Child he took to bring up, March 19, 1738.

William Annesley had bap. Thomas, Mar 20, 1737; —— —— July 16, 1738; William & Rebeca, Twins, Sep. 2, 1744.

Zebulon Applegate had bap. Zebulon, June 2, 1754; Nathaniel, May 23, 1756.

LIST OF BURIALS IN OLD TOPANEMUS CEMETERY.

This cemetery is situated about 4 miles north of Old Tennent. Here was located in its early days St. Peter's Episcopal Church, which was afterwards in 1738 taken down, removed to Freehold village, and re-erected on the site it now occupies. Rev. Geo. Keith, at first a Scotch Presbyterian, afterward a Quaker, and subsequently an Episcopalian; was among the first to conduct services in Old Topanemus. . The list of burials here given was copied out from the gravestones by F. R. Symmes.

In these Burial records w.=wife, wd.=widow, s.=son, d.=daughter, and a woman's family name in brackets means her maiden name.

LIST OF BURIALS IN OLD SCOTS CEMETERY.

[This list was made from inscriptions on the head-stones by F. R. Symmes. There is a large number of graves in Old Scots yard without any inscribed stones, but only those with inscriptions are here recorded. This cemetery is located about one mile south of Wickatunk depot, Central R. R. of N. J., or about five miles north of Old Tennent church.]

In these Burial records w.=wife, wd.=widow, s. =son, d.=daughter and a woman's family name in brackets means her maiden name.

LIST OF BURIALS IN OLD TENNENT CEMETERY.

The following is a list of burials made in Old Tennent yard up to 1852. It is taken from the catalogue made by Abraham Ammerman in his survey of the old portion of the cemetery 1852, when he was obviously assisted by Hugh McChesney the sexton.

This record, in the main, gives the names of burials according to their location in the yard. A few of the names have been added by sextons subsequent to 1867.

w.=wife. wd.=widow. s.=son. d.=daughter. A name enclosed in ( )=maiden name.

Beginning at the old West gate by the North gate post, cataloguing the graves from South to North, and the ranges of graves from West to East.

LIST OF BURIALS IN THE OLD PRESBYTERIAN GRAVEYARD AT MIDDLETOWN, N. J.

Middletown was one of the earliest settlements in Monmouth Co., pioneers coming there in 1664. The early church of that place was a sort of Independent church, and Capt. John Bowne, who died in 1683 4, seems to have been the first minister or preacher in the town. He was the son of Wm. Bowne, and about 1680 he donated the ground of the Presbyterian graveyard in the northeast corner of lot No. 15. It is difficult to fix the exact date of the erection of the church building in Middleton, but it was probably previous to 1700. As Scotch families came into the vicinity, the church began to take on the form of Presbyterian, and in the succeeding years preaching services were held there probably by Revs. John Boyd and Joseph Morgan, and possibly by Revs. Samuel Blair and the Tennents, until as late as about 1734, after which the building was not so much used by the Scotch Presbyterians. The Baptists had been associated with the Presbyterians at the first until they early formed their own distinctive church; and the Dutch were associated with them in the later years of services in the old building. These and further facts about the church and town are set forth in an interesting paper on the subject prepared by James Steen, of Eatontown, and read before the Monmouth County Historical Society.

Middletown also has cemeteries belonging to the Baptist, Reformed, and Episcopal churches, besides a number of private burial plots. The old Presbyterian burying ground is now about a quarter of an acre in extent, and, though it contains about 40 headstones, it probably also has many graves now obliterated. The following records were copied from the headstones by F. R. Symmes.

LIST OF BURIALS IN THE OLD MOUNT PLEASANT GRAVEYARD, FRENEAU, N. J.

About 1734 a Presbyterian church building was erected at Mount Pleasant, near Matawan, close by what is now Freneau R. R. depot. This, to some degree, may have been like the church at Middletown in containing worshippers of different denominations: but the Presbyterian predominated. It was in this church, it is said, that Rev. Charles McKnight was preaching when the British took him prisoner and put him into the prison-ship. Tradition states that the British used the old building as a stable for their artillery horses after the Battle of Monmouth, that when they went out to march on their way they burned it, and that afterward the Presbyterians built another edifice there. The burial ground at this place is now about one acre in area. The following records of this Mt. Pleasant cemetery were copied from the gravestones by F. R. Symmes.

ROYAL CHARTER OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES OF MONMOUTH COUNTY.

GRANTED FEB. 21, 1750.

(L. S.) GEORGE THE SECOND by the grace of God of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith &c To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas the advancement of true religion and virtue is absolutely necessary for the promotion of the peace, order, and prosperity of the State; And Whereas it is the duty of all Christian princes and governors by the law of God to do all they can for the encouragement thereof; And Whereas sundry of our loving subjects inhabiting within the County of Monmouth within our Colony of New Jersey in behalf of themselves and others being of the Presbyterian Persuasion by their humble petition presented to our trusty and well beloved Jonathan Belcher, Esq. our Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over our Province of New Jersey &c Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the same &c in Council showing That the petitioners and those of the same persuasion in the same County are very numerous and consist of several churches and congregations that the most advantageous support of religion amongst them necessarily requires that some persons among them should be incorporated as Trustees for the community that they may take grants of lands and chattels, thereby to enable the petitioners to erect and repair public buildings for the worship of God, and school houses and alms houses and for the maintainance of the ministry and poor of their churches and other offices of piety and charity, and that the same Trustees may have power to let and grant the same under a public seal for the uses aforesaid, and that the same Trustees may plead and be impleaded in any suit touching the premises and have perpetual succession: That also the known loyalty of the petitioners and the Presbyterians in general to us their firm affection to our person and government and the Protestant succession in our royal house gave the petitioners hopes of all reasonable indulgence and favor within the same colony where the religious rights of mankind are so happily preserved and where our equal grace and bounty to all our Protestant faithful subjects however differing in opinion about lesser matters has hitherto been so sensibly felt and enjoyed, the said petitioners therefore most humbly prayed our grant of an Incorporation to the petitioners by the name of THE TRUSTEES OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF MONMOUTH COUNTY with all such powers capacities and privileges as might be effectual in law for the purposes aforesaid, and that John Little, Jun., Christopher Longstreet, Jonathan Forman, Esq., John Anderson, Esq., James Robinson, John Henderson, Stephen Pangburn, Esq., Robert Imlay, and Tobias Polhemus might be the first Trustees, which petition signed with the names of a large number of our faithful and loving subjects belonging to the Presbyterian churches and inhabiting within the said county, we being willing to grant KNOW YE that we of our especial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion have willed, ordained, constituted, given and granted, and by these presents for us our heirs and successors do will, ordain, constitute, give and grant, that John Little, Jun., Christopher Longstreet, Jonathan Forman, Esq., John Anderson, Esq., James Robinson, John Henderson, Stephen Pangburn, Esq., Robert Imlay, and Tobias Polhemus from henceforth and their successors forever thereafter shall be and remain one body politic and corporate in re facto and nomine by the name of The Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County and them and their successors by the name of The Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County one body corporate and in re facto and nomine really and fully, we do for us our heirs and successors erect, make, ordain, constitute, declare, and create by these presents and that by that name they shall and may have perpetual succession, and also that they and their successors by the name of The Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County be and forever hereafter shall be persons able in law to purchase, take, hold, receive, and enjoy any messuages, houses, buildings, lands, tenements, rents, possessions, and other hereditaments and real estate in fee and forever or for term of life or lives or years or in any other manner so as the same exceed not at any one time the yearly value of seven hundred and fifty pounds sterling per annum beyond and above all charges and reprises the statute of mortmain or any other law to the contrary notwithstanding and also goods, chattles, and all other things of what kind or quality soever : and also that they and their successors by the name of The Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County shall and may give, grant, demise, assign, sell, or otherwise dispose of all or any of the messuages, houses, buildings, lands, tenements, rents, possessions, and any other hereditaments and real estate and all their goods, chattles, and other things aforesaid as to them shall seem meet at their own will and pleasure : and also that they and their successors by the name of The Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County be and forever thereafter shall be persons able in law and capable to sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended in all courts and places before us our heirs and successors and before us and any of the judges and justices, officers and ministers of us our heirs and successors in all and all manner of actions, suits, complaints, pleas, causes, matters, and demands whatsoever and of what kind or nature soever in as full and ample manner and form as any of our other liege subjects of our said province being persons able and capable in law can or may sue and be sued, implead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended, by any lawful ways and means whatsoever : and also that the said Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County for the time being and their successors shall and may forever hereafter have and use a common seal with such device or devices as they shall think proper for sealing all and singular deeds, grants, conveyances, contracts, bonds, articles of agreement, assignments, powers, authorities and all and singular their affairs and things touching or concerning the said corporation : and by virtue of these our letters patent it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County and their successors for the time being as they shall see cause to brake, change, and new make the same seal, or any other common seal or seals when and as often as to them it shall seem convenient which Trustees by these presents appointed as aforesaid shall continue and remain the Trustee of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County with all the powers and authorities aforesaid until the first Tuesday in October next to come and until other Trustees be duly elected and chosen in their places in such manner as herein after is directed; and we do further of our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion for us our heirs and successors will, ordain, give and grant that the minister, elders, and deacons of the several particular Presbyterian churches and congregations within the said county of Monmouth may and shall meet and assemble together at Freehold in the said county on the first Tuesday in October next after the date of these our letters patent, and afterward at such time and times place and places within the said county as to them or the major part of them and their successors and the major part of their successors shall seem meet and convenient forever hereafter and then and there by plurality of voices or votes by ballot then meet, elect and choose out of the inhabitants of said county nine Trustees of the said Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County which persons so hereafter to be elected and chosen Trustees as aforesaid shall be declared by indentures under the hand and seals of the majority of the electors then present and shall have all the powers and authorities of the above named Trustees given by these our letters patent and all and every such person and persons so to be newly chosen and appointed Trustees as aforesaid shall serve in their respective offices until other fit persons be in the same manner chosen and appointed in their respective rooms; and we do further will and ordain, give and grant that the Trustees of the said Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County and their successors for the time being shall from time to time have power to choose their President out of the Trustees for the time being who shall have the custody of the public seal or seals of the said incorporation and all books, charters, deeds, and writings any way relating to the said corporation and shall have power from time to time and at all times hereafter as occasion shall require to call a meeting of the said Trustees at such place within said county as he shall think most convenient for the execution of all or any of the power hereby given and granted, and in case of sickness, absence or death of the President all the powers by these presents granted to the President shall remain in the eldest or senior Trustee upon record until the recovery or return of the President or until a new President be chosen as aforesaid: and we do further will, ordain, give and grant that all and every act and order of five of the Trustees but not of any lesser number) consented and agreed to at such meeting of the Trustees as aforesaid shall be good, valid, and effectual to all intents and purposes as if the whole number of the said Trustees had consented and agreed thereto: and we do further will and ordain that all the acts of the said Trustees or any five of them shall from time to time be fairly entered into a book or books to be kept for that purpose by the President of the Trustees for the time being which book or books together with the seal or seals of the said corporation and all charters, deeds, and writings whatsoever any way belonging to the said corporation shall be delivered over by the former President to the President of the said Trustees newly elected for the time being as such President shall hereafter from time to time successively be chosen: And we do further will, ordain, give, and grant that if at any time hereafter the number of the Trustees shall be diminished in the intervals of their election by the death or absence of any of the said Trustees that then it shall and may be lawful for any one minister and two elders of any particular Presbyterian church within the said county to call a meeting of the ministers, elders, and deacons of the several particular churches and congregations within the said county giving notice of the time thereof by writing under their hand to the ministers of the said several churches at least seven days before the time of such meeting which meeting shall be held at Freehold within the said county who may then and there by plurality of voices or votes then meet, elect, and choose out of the inhabitants of the said county so many Trustees for the said Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County as shall make up the number of nine Trustees living and inhabiting within the said county which person so to be elected and chosen shall be declared by indentures under the hands and seals of the majority of the electors then present to be chosen and elected in the place and room of such of the said Trustees as are then dead or absent, and all and every such person or persons so newly chosen and appointed as aforesaid shall have all the powers and authorities of the above named Trustees given by these our letters patent and shall serve in their respective offices until other fit persons be chosen and appointed in their respective rooms: and we do further of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion for us our heirs and successors by these presents give and grant unto the said Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Monmouth County and their successors forever that they and their successors all and singular the rights, privileges, powers and capacities and authorities herein before mentioned or intended to be hereby granted shall and may forever hereafter have, hold, enjoy, and use without the impediment of us our heirs and successors or any of the justices, sheriffs, escheators, coroners, bailiffs, or other officers or ministers whatsoever of us our heirs or successors and that these our letters being entered upon record in our Secretary's office of New Jersey and the record and the enrollment and either of them and all and everything therein contained from time to time and at all times hereafter be and shall be firm, valid, good, sufficient, and effectual in law towards and against us our heirs and successors according to the true intent and meaning hereof and in and through all things shall be construed, taken, and expounded most beningly and in favor and for the most and greatest advantage, profit, and benefit of the Trustees of the said Presbyterian Church of the said County of Monmouth and their successors forever as well in all courts or elsewhere notwithstanding any defect, default, or imperfection may be found therein or any other cause or things whatsoever. IN TESTIMONY whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent and the great seal of our said province to be hereunto affixed and the same to be entered of record in our Secretary's office in our said province of New Jersey in one of the books of records there remaining. Witness our trusty and well beloved Jonathan Belcher, Esq., our Captain General and Governor in chief of our said province of New Jersey Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the same &c by and with the advice and consent of our Council of our said province at Burlington the twenty-first day of February in the twenty-third year of our reign.

J. BELCHER.

I have perused and considered the within draught of the charter of incorporation and approve the same finding nothing therein contained but what is consistent with the honor and interest of the Crown.

TITLE FOR A PEW IN OLD TENNENT.

[A sample, accurately copied from a paper in the Historical Record Collections of the Church.]

"For and in consideration of the sum of Eleven Pounds Ten Shillings New York Currency to me in hand paid by Major James Creige of the County of Monmouth, I give unto the said James Creige full Right and Title of a Pew in the Presbyterian Meeting-house in Freehold in the County of Monmouth aforesd., which said Pew I purchas'd of the Trustees by Orders of my Mother, for her use, and my own. Witness my hand at New Brunswick this 4th Day of October in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight hundred & four. 1804.

Witness: Lewis Forman.

AN ACROSTIC.

Composed, and now humbly dedicated unto the Congregation of the first Presbyterian Church of the township of Freehold, in remembrance of their former Pastor, the Rev. William Tennant, By one of the Oldest Members of that Church.

When all our hopes of life were fled,
In the dark mansions of the dead;
Light yet through faith to us arise,
Look, he is gone above the skies.
In praising God with Saints above,
All full of joy and sincere love;
Mourn now no more for our dear friend,
Turn here and view his happy end:
Ever while here, belov'd was he,
Never more faithful man could be;
Noble in life, to death resign'd
And died a friend to all mankind;
Never forget his righteous ways,
Turn now to God, and add your praise.

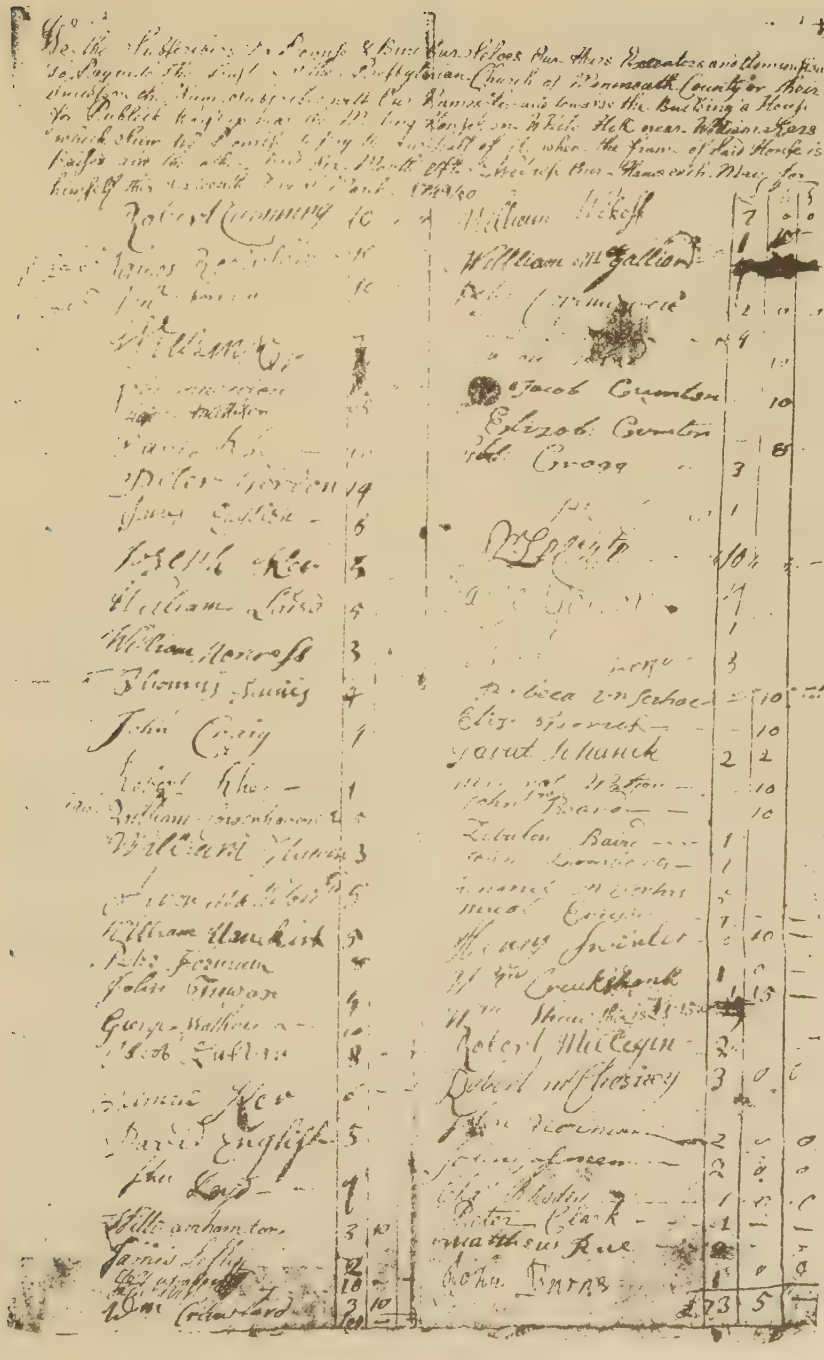
AUTOGRAPHS.

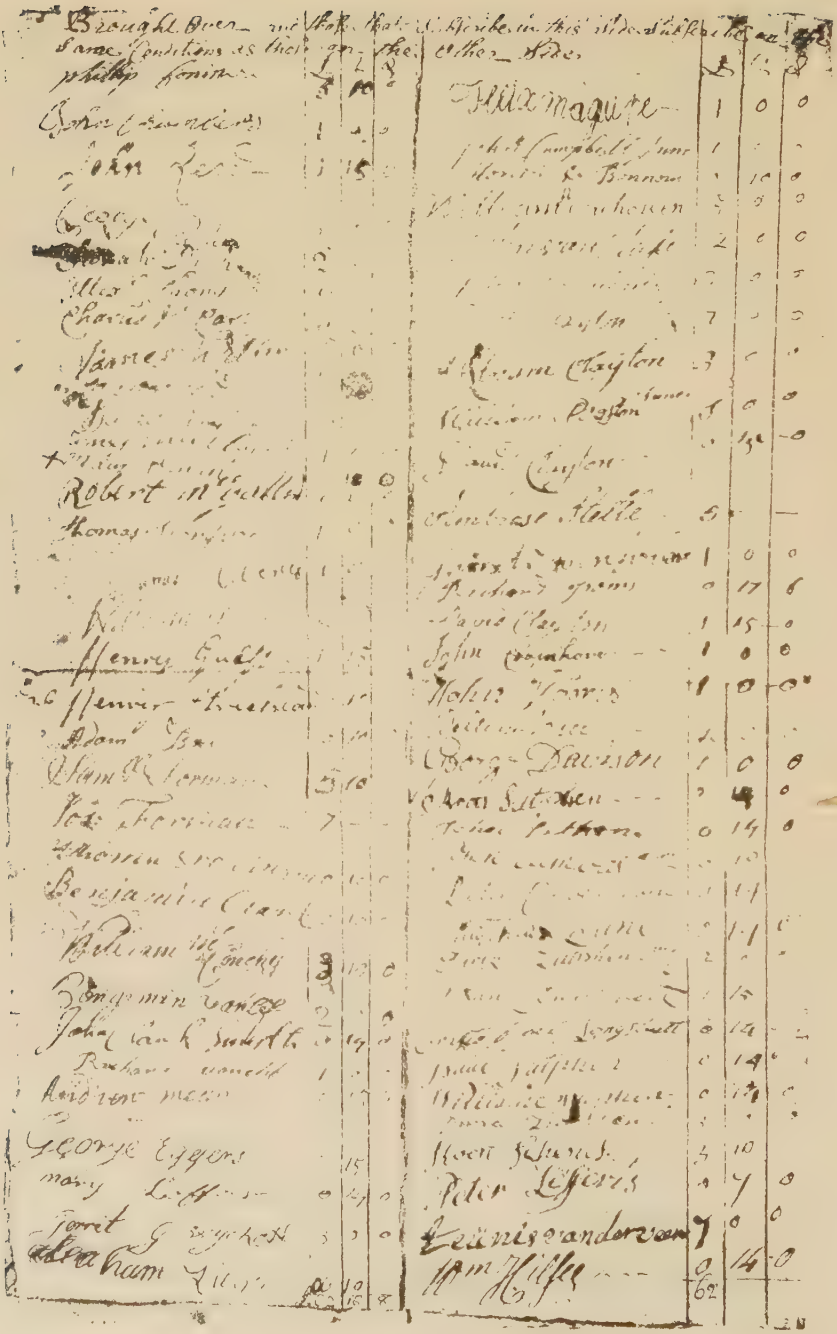
Autographs are interesting and suggestive studies, and furnish corroborative aids to the careful and accurate genealogist. Over 200 photographic facsimiles are given on the following pages.

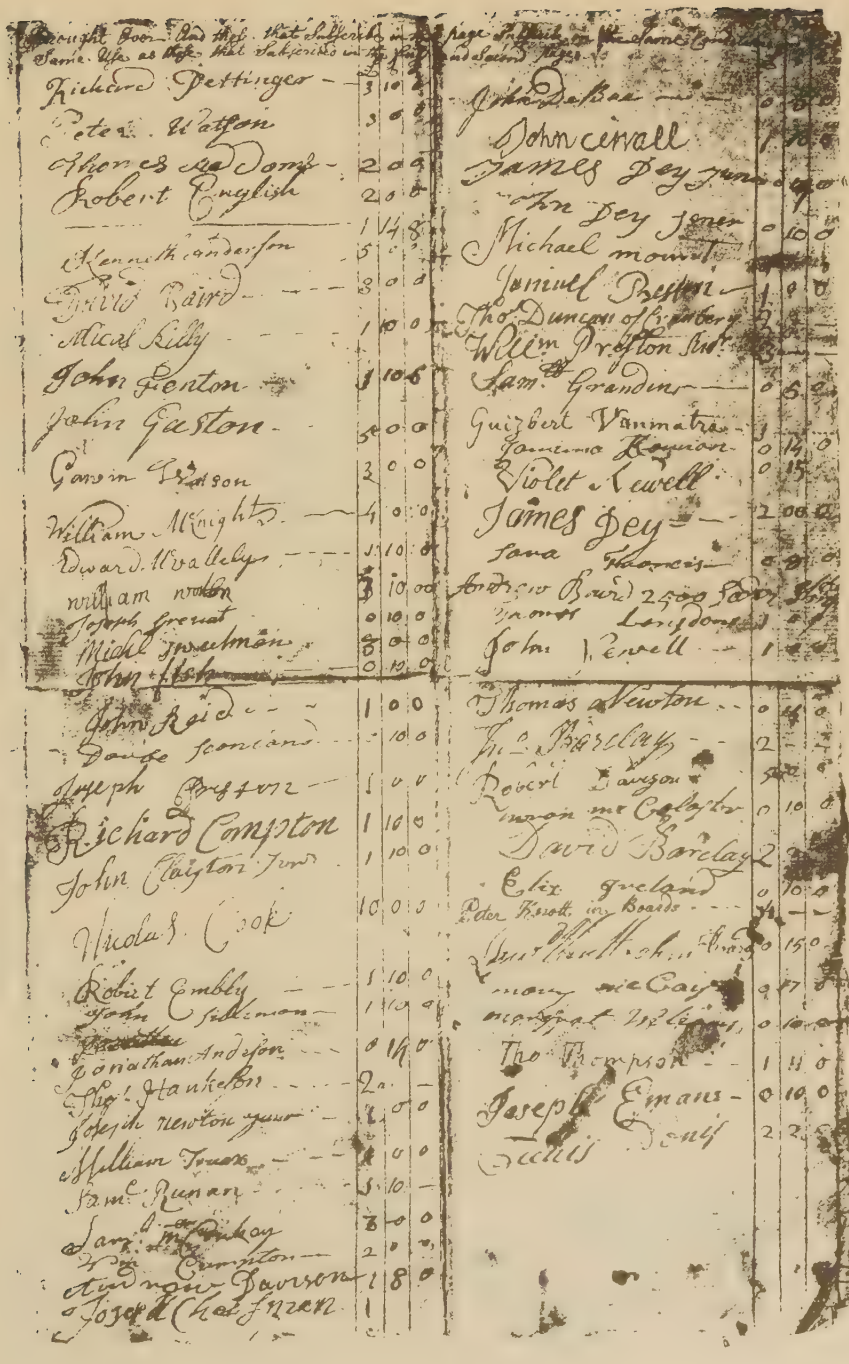
The first, second, and third plates are reproductions from the three pages of the subscription paper used in gathering the funds to build the present Old Tennent edifice. The 3 photographs, from which these 3 plates were made, were taken by L. R. Cheeseman. For further facts, in studying these 3 plates, see pages 46 and 178.

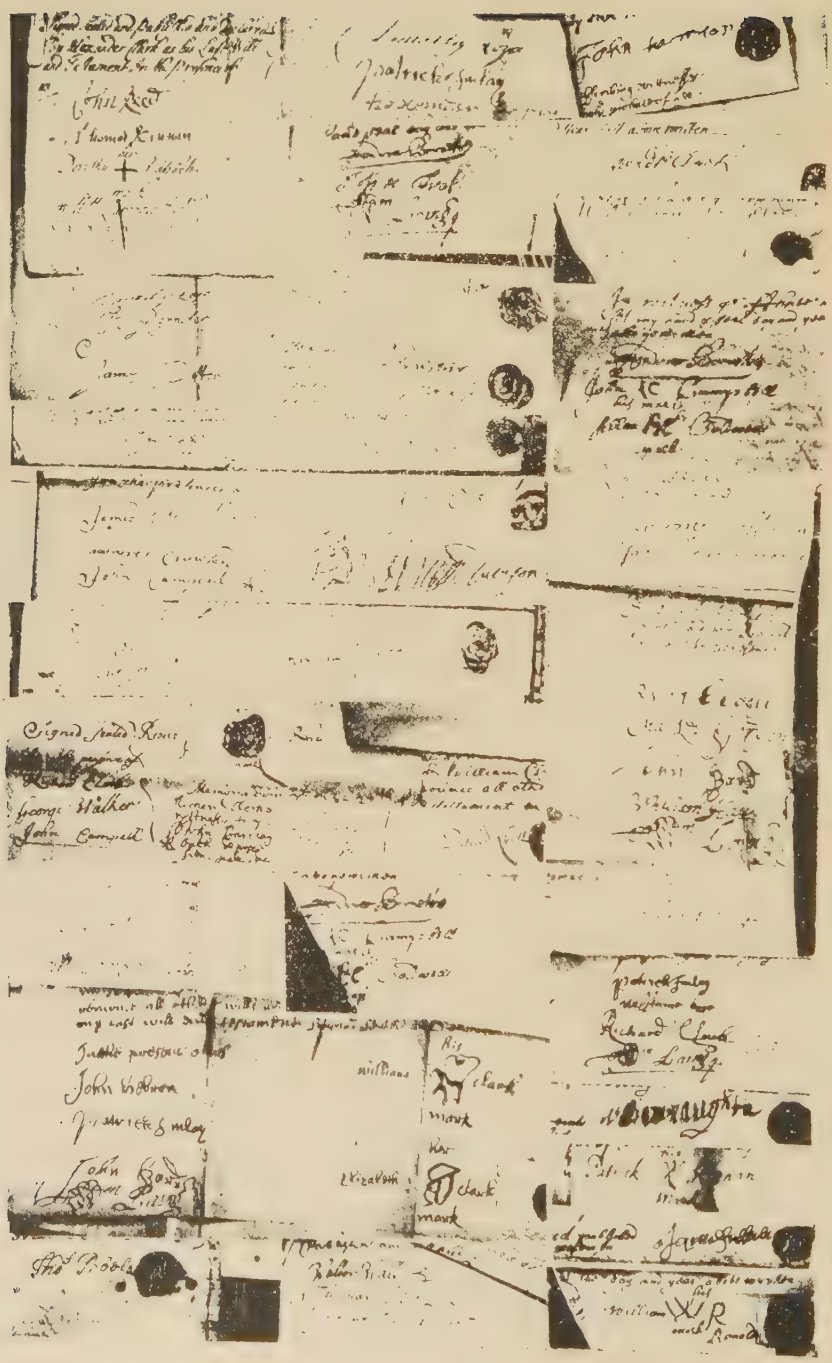
The fourth plate here given presents the autographs of some early Scotch settlers in Monmouth Co. These were collected by James Steen, Eatontown, N. J., who had them photographed from original documents, chiefly wills, on file in the office of the Secretary of State, Trenton, N. J., and this list shows autographs made between the years 1700 and 1720. The patchwork arrangement was put together by F. R. Symmes.

The student should use a reading glass in studying these plates of autographs.









DECLARATION OF TRUST.

[In the chapter on "The Old Parsonage" reference is made to the efforts of the congregation to secure the parsonage farm in legal and continual possession. The old record book of the congregation (still preserved) gives an extended and complete account of this matter written in John Henderson's hand. The record, as copied out and here presented, begins at the point immediately following the statement of the purchase of the farm for £500 (see on page 53). It will be noticed here that many of the words and parts of words are missing; they could not be read because of the stained, worn and broken condition of the pages in the old record book. This copy was carefully made and compared by F. R. Symmes.]

"And John Henderson Drew the Articles of Sale and was Desired to Draw the Deed in Convenient Time which he Did & put Mr. Formans & Mr. Craigs Name — the Deed & left a Blank to put in two other persons Names —— of Mr. Cummings & Mr. Rhe's because Sd. Cumming & Rhe were —— & he tho't it improper for them to make Instruments of —— & be parties in Both But when they Met to Sign —— —— Henderson's Reasons could prevail nothing But the Deed was —— the above Named four & the full Consideration of five —— pounds put in. Against which the Sd. Henderson protested —— All the people of the Congregation Gave their Bills to the —— purchars' for the Sums by them promised for purchassing Sd. Pla— Except Sd. Henderson for the Reasons protested & Sd. purcha— Gave Bond to Sd. Cowenhoven for Sd. £500."

"Second Tuesday in March 1735-6 The above Purchars and Some —— at the House of John Fenton to Consider & See whether the —— Due would make the next payment & when they took —— found none from Sd. Henderson then Demanding his —— —— & gave him liberty (without interruption which he nev— —— to give them: Shewed how the Method they had taken ——— the whole Design of the Purchase & that If he ——— Plantation Secured according to the Intention of the Congregation who paid their Money and the Use they Designed it for viz. for a Continual Parsonage for a Presbyterian Minister he was as Ready as any to pay his Share, but if that was not done as he could not See they were likely to do it by the methods they followed he Still adhered to his former protest. After further Opening the Matter the Majority were Convinced by his Reasons & imediately Complyed & he being quickly going to New York Gave him Money to give to Mr. Smith the Lawyer there for his Direction & Assistance how to Secure the Sd. Plantation for the Use Designed which accordingly he did and laid the whole matter before Sd. Mr. Smith & Gave him the Money who undertook the Same who accordingly Sent a Letter to Mr. Tennent with Instrument of Sale & Trust therein Inclosed which Letter & Instruments' are as followeth viz. Rev. Sir—

New York 31th March 1736.

I Send herewith the Deed to the Trustees & their Declaration of the trust which I have Contrived in the best manner —ould to guard it against the advantages that have heretofore — n taken. I don't See how in this way the end proposed can be —ed unless the Elders & Deacons in whose Hands the Secret —— is Lodged Should be so unfaithful as to betray that Confidence —ch hereby is reposed in them, but this I hope there will never be any —son to fear. The Reading of the Declaration of the trust —ill Shew the design of it & it may be from theme Collected that the —state in Law will descend to the Surviving Trustees & his —eirs & that the power & Authority to Appoint the Uses of —— trust will ultimately centre in the Serviving Elder or —— Deacon & his Heirs wherefore it will be proper when the —t is in Such hands or by the Death of the Trustees like— to fall into Such hands as will not be convenient that the —ing Elders & Deacons Do appoint a Conveyance to New —— & then that the New Trustees make a New Declaration —ers & Deacons for the time being, and thus the Estate —— be perpetuated in private Hands Consistant with the —— —n, with only the inconveniency of a new Deed or two —— —e in an Age which any ordinary Scribe may Draw from —— —ith Sent & in this Method the necessity of an inco— Incorporation may be avoided which is Notwithstanding —— method of Conveying Such Estates to Such uses if ——— at any time hereafter obtained.

For the Present I advise that the Session get a Book & — — their Deeds in it with the Substance of this Letter & that —— read & understood by Every member, that So when there Shall —— need the Directions herein given may be observed. The Con— of this Scheme has took up a good deal of my time but —— understood & Applied will I doubt not, Effectually answer —— the ends proposed. I have not made You any party to the pre— Writings herewith Sent because you and the Succes— nisters must have your Deeds for the Terms of your Minis— from the trustees & their Successors according to the appoint-- of the Elders & Deacons & their Successors in perpetua— who are as they ought to be the Spring that must put eve— wheel in Motion. I hope my Service in this particu-- will be acceptable to all concerned & am

To the Revd. Revd. Sir your Very Humble Serv—
Mr. Wm. Tennent at Freehold. Wm. Smith.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

These Notes are not complete genealogies, but rather collections gathered from different sources, and put together in this form for use and assistance in genealogical studies. Notes, either brief or extended, will herein be found concerning about 60 different families, and the student will observe that they can be compared and connected by reason of the intermarriage of families, and frequently hints will be suggested in still other genealogical lines. The author has endeavored to make these records perspicuous by setting them in the shape they are and uniform throughout; and he has exercised much care in arranging, copying, and proof reading them in order to be accurate: and yet errors and anachronisms may possibly have occurred by inadvertence, or lack of exact information as in all compilations of like character. It must be noticed that in almost every instance the authority is given for the record presented, and to all of these for their generous aid the compiler is sincerely grateful. By consulting the various lists of Baptisms, Burials &c, in the Appendix much further genealogical matter may be obtained. The autographs of some of the persons mentioned in these Notes may be studied on p. 381, 382, 383, 384

The abbreviations herein used may be explained as follows: b.=born, d.=died, md.=married, unmd.=unmarried, s.=son, dau.=daughter, w.=wife, wd.=widow, bur.=buried, bap.=baptized, chldr.=children, a man's name in brackets=paternal ancestor, a woman's family name in brackets=her maiden name. A line across the page from edge to edge indicates that the foregoing record is completed. When enumerating the children of an individual family their names for the most part are set in capital letters in order to ensure precision.

WALTER KER'S DESCENDANTS.

From a research by D. Van Derveer Perrine, Freehold, N. J.

Robert Rhea, the settler, "Bought headland in 1688 of John Keighn. In 1691 he had land from the Proprietors May 26, 1691 he had land from the noted George Keith who then lived in Philadelphia & in 1693 the Proprietors confirmed the title." Subsequently he is frequently named in ancient records & in some deeds he is called a carpenter. "The ancient Rhea farm since called the Kerr or Carr farm, & owned in late years by D. D. Denise is situated a short distance southwest of Freehold on the Hightstown road. On this farm the main part of the Battle of Monmouth took place, and here the old family burying ground is situated." (Salter's History &c). Note: Carr (not Kerr) was the tenant on the family. Robert d. Jan. 18, 1719 & was bur. in the family plot. His will in Sec. of State office, Trenton, Book A p. 119 was made Apr. 10, 1718, a memorandum taken May 27, 1719 & recorded June 20, 1719 & gives the name of his w. and children as follows; w. In connection with the above Notes an ancestral tradition may here be given as told by R. Perrine Craig, of Tennent ;—Garret Denise lived near the Old Tennent church on what was known in 1902 as the Ephraim Laird farm. He was a farmer and also a coffin-maker. It is told of him that he was once at James Bowne's home, whose mother was very ill and not expected to live. Charles Craig in the evening had come in from a long ride in the rain to Amwell, N. J. after a second physician who was a son of Mrs. Bowne. As Mr. Craig sat by the fire drying his clothes, Mr. Denise, who did not feel very well, complained of distress in his head and said to Mr. Craig "I think I had better go home and get to work on the coffin for Mrs. Bowne, for it will keep me up most all night to make it : and I think I can guess at about what size it must be." He went home and made the coffin for Mrs. Bowne, who, to the surprise of all, did not die but recovered and lived for some years afterward. But in the strange dispensations of human life, Mr. Denise had no sooner made the coffin than he was taken sick and died of yellow fever within a few days, and Mr. Charles Craig assisted to lay him in the coffin he had unconsciously made for himself.

The following is a paper prepared by Rev. John H. Wyckoff of India (Brother to Rev. Garret Wyckoff of Holmdel, N. J.) and read Oct. 19, 1905 on Wyckoff Hill at the Wyckoff Reunion.

The common ancestor of the Wyckoff family in this country was Pieter Claesen, literally Pieter the son of Claes, who came from Holland in 1636. We have not clear evidence as to who Pieter's father was except that his name was Claes Cornelissen—Claes the son of Cornelius—and that he settled at Flatlands, L. I., soon after his arrival in the above year. The majority of the Dutch at that time used no surname. A man simply took his father's Christian name. Thus Cornelius, the son of Claes, was called Claes Cornelissen; and Pieter, the son of Claes, become Pieter Claesen. As there were several other emigrants bearing the name of Claes and Cornelius, it has been found impossible as yet to identify the original immigrant, or trace him back to the old country. We have therefore to start with his son Pieter, who was nine years of age when he landed at New Amsterdam. This we know to be correct as we have his own statement that he was of that age, in his oath of allegiance to the British King. Pieter's father, like nearly all the emigrants of that time was probably a farmer. Whether he had property is not known. Pieter, however, must have been a young man of energy and thrift, for in a few years he became the wealthiest man in Flatlands, and 1655, at the age of 28, superintended the bouery and cattle of Governor Peter Stuyvesant. The entry in the colonial record, dated July 10, 1655 reads: "Peter Claesen agreed to fodder and winter, according to custom, all the cattle which Petrus Stuyvesant has at present in his bowery at Amersfoot (the Dutch name for Flatlands); also to sow all the land that is fit for sowing, provided that he deduct from the rent the grain sown thereon. For said service the sum of 325 gr; to leave the manure of his own and the general's in the bowery."

He was Magistrate of Flatlands for the years 1655, 1656, 1658, 1662, 1663 and in February 1664. He was likewise one of the representatives of the convention held at Midwout (now Flatbush) for the purpose of sending a delegation to Holland to lay before the States general and West India com-company the distressed state of the country. He was also one of the patentees in the town charters of 1667 and 1686. He married, about 1649 Gretie, daughter of Hendrick Van Ness and on November 27, 1650, his first child, a daughter, was baptised in the old Collegiate church, New York, as that was then the only church organization, the church at Flatlands not being organized until 1654. His second child, a daughter, was also baptised in New York, Judith Bayard, wife of the Governor, being one of the witnesses. All the other children, one daughter and seven sons, in all ten were baptised at Flatlands, of which church he was one of the charter members, and under which he is said to be buried. Unfortunately the early records of this church have been lost.

All of the ten children married into families that have entered largely into the history of the church and state of this country. We need only mention the names. (1) The eldest, Annetje, married Roelif Martensen Schenck, and for her numerous descendants consult the Schenck genealogy. (2) Mayken (Maria,) became the wife of William Williamson, and was the mother of all the New York and New Brunswick Williamsons, as the record of the Williamson Dutch branch, by James A. Williamson will show. (3) Geertie, the third daughter, married Christoffer Jansen Romeyn, a family which has given several distinguished ministers to our church. (4) Claes, the eldest son, took for his wife Sarah, daughter of Peter Montfort, and was the progenitor of the Wyckoffs who make up so much of the history of the West Branch in Pennsylvania, and also in Hunterdon county, New Jersey. (5) Cornelius married Gertrude, daughter of Simon VanArsdale, and is the ancestor of many of the Wyckoffs of Long Island not only, but of those who bear that name in New Brunswick and Middlebush, New Jersey (6) Hendrick, having no children, adopted his nephew Johannes Williamson, on condition that he took the surname of Wyckoff, and through him became the ancester of the Newtown Wyckoffs. (7) Garrett, married Catherine Nevius, of whom we shall speak later. (8) Martin, married Hannah Williamson. (9) Pieter, married Willemtje Schenck, (10) Jan B., Feb. 16, 1665, married Neltie, daughter of William Kouwenhoven.

Shortly after the cession of New York to the English in 1664 Pieter Cleasen adopted the surname of Wyckoff. The word in Dutch is a double one—Wyk-hof. Wyk means a place of refuge, and also the ward of a city. The primary signification, was a home or dwelling place. The word is almost identical with the Greek oikos—house, and has probably the same origin. Thus Bruynswick, meant originally Brown's house. Hof means a court, and appears in the name Hoffman, meaning in English, courtier. Wyk hof doubtless meant primarily household courtier, in distinction from those who were further removed from the chief court of the realm. It is to be regretted, we think, that the Dutch spelling of the name Wykhof was not retained, for the name is now spelled in English in at least six different ways: Wyckoff, Wykoff, Wicoff, Wikoff, Wickoff, and strange to say, one branch spells it Wycough. Strange, I say, and yet not so strange, for when the various branches left Long Island and separated they were still using the Dutch language. Afterwards when they began to adopt the English, they spelt the name without consultation with the other branches, and Wycough probably comes as near to the original Dutch as Wyckoff. The three branches of the family that settled in Monmouth county, New Jersey, of which our own is one, adopted the spelling Wikoff, while the Long Island and Somerset county branches, chose Wyckoff. Our father spelt the name Wikoff until about 1802, when he changed to Wyckoff, a wise change in our estimation, for there is no doubt but that the form Wyckoff will prevail, and we advise all the Wyckoffs, who are not hindered by legal limitations, to adopt that mode of spelling.

Our immediate ancestor was Garret, more correctly Gerritt, the seventh child and fourth son of Pieter Claeson. He took the oath of allegiance in 1687, and was married about 1691, to Catharine daughter of Johannes Nevius, the common ancestor of the Nevius family in this country. His name appears on the assessment roll of Flatlands in 1693, showing him to be possessed in his own right of considerable property. In 1699, he was one of five who purchased 1,000 acres of land at Marlboro, Monmouth county, and possibly intended to settle there with his brothers Peter and John, but he never left the island, having died comparatively young. His will is dated October 9, 1704, an abstract of which is as follows:—"In the name of God Amen, this 9th day of October, 1704. Be it known that I Garret Wyckoff, of Flatlands in Kings county, on the Island of Nassau, being at present very sick and weak, I leave to my loving wife Catharine, all estate of houses and lands during her life, and 12 acres of land within the limits of Gravesend. But if she remarry then an inventory is to be made, and my eldest son Peter shall have half the houses and lands when he is of age, and the other half after my wife's decease, and he is to pay to the other children, namely Gretie, Adriane, Amke, Marytie, and Jonica £450. I give to my son Peter a silver tankard, and my plows and harrows, and all the tackling to a farm, the testator makes provision for an expected child. I make my loving friends and brothers, Claes Wyckoff, Hendrick Wyckoff, Peter Wyckoff, Garret Stoothof, and Peter Nevius, my executors, and they shall sell a 12 acre lot of land, lying at Ambrose Island located in the town of Gravesend."

The "unborn child" mentioned in the will is of particular interest to us, for it was he who became our ancestor and about whose grave we gather to-day. He was born at the end of 1704, and his father lived till he was two years old, as the will was not proved until July 12, 1707. He was named Garrett for his father, and grew up without a father to counsel him. In 1728 he married Altie Garretson, and followed his two uncles—Peter and John—to Monmouth county, New Jersey, probably occupying the land that his father had purchased in 1699. His uncle Peter had settled at Middletown, and was an elder in the Brick church of Marlboro in 1709.

John, the other brother, married Nellie Cowenhoven. He sold his land at Flatlands to Cornelius Coert Van Voorhees, deed dated May 14, 1702, and emigrated to Marlboro, where he was a church officer in the early years of that church. His son William married Angenitge VanDoren, and was grandfather of Colonel William Wyckoff, whose wife was Hannah Scudder, daughter of Colonel Nathaniel Scudder and aunt of Dr. John Scudder, pioneer missionary of the Reformed church in India. Their son Nathanael Scudder Wyckoff was one of the principal land owners in Manalapan township. Another son of William Wyckoff and Angenietji VanDoren, was Peter Wyckoff, grandfather to the famous Chevalier Henry Wyckoff, once editor of the Democratic Review. The late Colonel Wyckoff, who fell at the head of his company at the recent battle of Santiago was a descendant of this branch.

To return to our own branch, Garret G. Wyckoff and Altie Garretson, had sons (1.) Garrett, baptized October 31, 1730; (2.) Samuel, baptized October 19, 1732; (3.) Peter, baptized March 31, 1734.

His daughters were: Catharine, married Benjamin Conover. Idah, married David Conover. Alice, married Jacob VanDerveer. Garret Wikoff married a second time, Aeltie Lefferts, and had one son, Auke, who was colonel of the Third Regiment Monmouth County Militia. His will, which is dated September 1, 1765, mentions Garret as his eldest son, who in accordance with the custom of the times received his father's silver cup, and the sum of £5 in addition to the other children's portions. To Catharine the eldest daughter, was deeded the large Dutch Bible. The remainder of the estate was divided equally among the seven children. The signature to the will is in the Dutch form viz: Gerrit Wijkhof, and the will is on file in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, N. J.

Garret the eldest son, remained on the homestead, and reared a large family. He was the father of Garret Wikoff, a patriot in the Revolution, and for a time a prisoner of war. He was also the great grandfather of Rev. Benjamin DuBois Wyckoff, whose son Prof. Walter Wyckoff, is the author of the well known book—The Workers.

Peter, the third son, married Alice Longstreet, and was guide to Washington at the Battle of Monmouth. He was a major in the army and was the great grandfather of Dr. James H. Wikoff of Princeton, ex-President Cleveland's physician. Auke, the half-brother, born 1748, entered the army at an early age and in 1778 was made Lieutenant Colonel. On June 9, 1779 he was taken prisoner. He married Sarah Schenck, and lived until 1820.

Samuel, the second son, (our great-grandfather), married Gertrude Shipman, and settled near Allentown, N. J. He was one of the charter members of the Allentown Presbyterian church, and for many years a ruling elder. He had children: (1.) Garret, born 1762, our grandfather; (2.) Jacob, who married Alice Green; (3.) Samuel, who removed to Middletown, Ohio; (4.) Olive, married John Hendrickson; (5.) Catharine, married William Croxon; (6.) Mary, who married Thomas Sexton. Garret, the oldest son, was only 16 years old at the time of the Battle of Monmouth, but he took an active part in the war, and had many a thrilling incident to relate about the stirring events of that period.

To the above Notes a tradition may be added as told by Mr. D. V. Perrine, of Freehold:—The Dutch settlers of Monmouth Co., and their descendants, were noted for hospitality, which received marked instances of reward during the hardships of the American Revolution. A pedler before the Revolution would at nightfall stop for shelter at one of these Dutch farm houses, whether more frequently at the home of Garret Wickoff or at the Vanderveer homestead between Marlboro and Tennent church is not now remembered. At any rate Garret Wickoff and Sergt. Tunis Vanderveer, two neighbors, had been captured and placed in that notorious Sugar House used by the British as a prison. The pedler, whom they had entertained so hospitably had become a British soldier, and while on guard took special notice of these two prisoners, and asked one of them if he had not seen them before, and if he did not remember a pedler who used to travel in their neighborhood. They said "yes." He replied "I am that pedler, and I am grateful to you, and I will see you have enough to eat, and I will look after you both." He kept his promise: and while others were dying of starvation and filth, these two lived through their hardships, were released about the same time, started for home together, and the place is still (1904) pointed out where they separated for their homes, the one to the Vanderveer and the other to the Wickoff homestead, where they were received by their families and neighbors who had mourned for them as dead.

From researches made and published 1885 by Wm. P. Forman, late of Manalapan, N. J., and Ex-judge of Monmouth Common Pleas: with some notes added.

Some say that the Forman Family of Monmouth Co. was descended from Robert Forman an Englishman who came to America and d. in 1691 on Long Island (see page 19.)

Others believe that the Mon. Co. family of Formans descended from John Foreman, Covenanter, who came to America 1685 and settled about one and one half miles to the southeast from what is now called Freehold (town): and the neighborhood became known as "Forman Neighborhood" and "Forman square." Judge Forman inclined to this latter opinion.

From a heraldic scroll made by the late Samuel M. Schanck, Counsellor-at-Law and loaned for this book by his son E. Grandin Schanck, Hightstown, N. J. Mr. Schanck prepared the scroll with much care, and had finely painted on it pictures of the various escutcheons belonging to the Schenck family, the illustrations and descriptions of which are not here given. See in the German works on Heraldry or Coats-of-Arms in the Astor Library, N. Y.

Schencke is the name of a very ancient family who were spread over all Germany. In the reign of Charlamagne there was a knight Edgar, surnamed the Schencke, about A. D. 798; his wife's name was Fredegunde, b. in the region of the Moselle. The family descendants of this Knight, most especially in Suabia, Switzerland, Selesia, and Holland, were greatly renowned and possessed of large wealth. In Holland the family of the Schencks is found in the person of Colvede Witte, Baron van Toutenburg, who was killed in the battle of Clodius against the Dane in A. D. 878. Some of the Schencks were in the tournaments during the latter part of the Middle Ages. In 1234 Christianus the 2nd s. of Reynier & Aleyda Schenck became the first of the house of Schenck van Nydeck. From 1346 down to the present time the records continue unbroken of the family of Henrich Schenck van Nydeck md. to Aelied Rayde; of their 3 chldr. Henrich md. Aleide van Goen van Keldenbrock; of their 3 chldr. Diederick md. Adelheit van Bruen; of their 11 chldr. Derick md Alheid Custers; of their 8 chldr. Derick md. Maria van Galen; their s. Derick md. Anna van Berlaer; of their 5 chldr. Peter md. Johanna van Scherpenzeel; of their 2 chldr Martin Schenck is thought by Col. Vander Dussen, Netherlands Army, to have come to the Nieu Netherlands with his three chldr. in 1650, arriving at New Amsterdam, probably on the ship "de Valckener," Wilheim Thomassen Captain, which sailed from Holland in March, arriving June 28. Martin Schenck's 3 chldr. were named Roelof, Jan, Anetje.

Roelof Martense Schenck settled at Nieu Amersfort afterwards called Flatlands, on Nassau Island afterwards called Long Island, and was prominent where he lived and one of the 6 or 7 wealthiest men on the Island; in 1687 his name appears on the list among those who took the oath of allegiance to the English Government which he subscribed between the 26th & 30th of September; he md. 1st at Flatlands L. I. in 1660 Neeltje Geretsen van Couwenhoven, md. 2nd 1675 Anetje Peterse Wyckoff, md. 3rd Nov. 19, 1688 Katrina Cruiger; he had 10 chldr. one of whom was named Gerret.

Gerret moved to Pleasant Valley near Holmdel, Mon. Co., N. J. about 1696. For his time he was possessed of great worldly estate and of religious character and standing: from 1721 to 1726 he was a member of the Provincial Assembly of N. J.; he had a family coat-of-arms up on a pannel in one of the doors of his dwelling, copies of which still exist; and what was then very rare was in his will styled "gentleman"; he was also a commissioned officer in the Provincial Militia: in 1737 he and his cousin purchased of John Penn a tract of 6500 acres of land at Penns Neck near Princeton N. J. on which several of his children settled: he had 11 chldr. all except Antje b. at Pleasant Valley; Koert Gerretse was one of his sons.

Koert Gerretse Schenck b. 1702 d. June 2, 1771 at Marlboro md. at Freehold Mary Peterse van Couwenhoven b. in N. J. 1700 d. at Marlboro May 17, 1787: he settled on a large and at that time a poor farm near Marlboro. Here marl was first brought to light, and through its use this farm now comprises two of the most beautiful and productive. By his intelligence and industry he raised and educated his large family giving his s. William a collegiate education at Princeton College. In 1727 he was a deacon, and in 1747 & 1764 elder in the Reformed Church: he had Garret, William, & Koert & 5 other children. Wm was b. Oct. 13, 1740 studied theology with Rev. Wm. Garret Schenck (s. Koert) b. at Marlboro bap. Dec. 12, 1725 md. Oct. 19, 1744 Neeltje van Voorhees dau. Hendrick: Garret lived on a good farm about a mile west of Marlboro, known as the Topinamus farm, a stream of that name having its source upon it; there was the church of that name & its graveyard where it is thought he is bur. His s. Honce also lived on that farm, & it has since been owned by John B. Conover whose father Hendrick E. and grand-father Elias owned it successively. Garret & Neeltje had 8 chldr. Koert, Garret md. Anna Vankirk & moved to Ohio, Honce md. Cabancha Conover, Jane, Sarah, Nelly, Polly & Ann. After Garret's death his w. Neeltje md. Benjamin Harris & had 4 chldr. Abram, Isaac, Benjamin, Peggy, prominent in Burlington Co.

Koert Schanck (s. Garret) b. May 27, 1751 d. Dec. 25, 1837 md. Sarah Voorhees b. June 23, 1757 grand daughter of Gertrude Schuyler; she inherited a farm at or near New Brunswick, N. J. where her family, who were of high standing, resided. Koert was a patriot of the Revolution and fought in the battle of Germantown under Gen. Forman; he lived and carried on the business of tanning and currying and harness and shoemaking, his s. Peter being a partner in the business, where his youngest s Koert subsequently lived. Koert & Sarah had 12 chldr. Peter Voorhees, Abram Schuyler, Garret, Gertrude, John, Elenor, Catharine, Ephraim, Elenor (2nd), Mary, William, Koert.

From a genealogical statement prepared by Paul Woodhull Mount of New York City. (Compare p. 443.)

The Mount family is supposed to be of French origin, the original name, LeMont, becoming anglicized after some of the family settled in England at the time of the invasion by William the Conqueror. In England the family is found in counties Surrey and Berks.

In Revolutionary times, the Mounts, with two or three exceptions, were ardent patriots, at least twenty members of the family having served in the Continental Army, and of these some gave up their lives for "the cause"

The family was strongly identified with the early history of Old Tennent church, the names of many of its members being found in the baptismal, burial, and communicant lists of the church, and as contributing to the erection of the edifice. In the neighboring First Presbyterian church of Cranbury three generations of the family were elders.

Some of the original Mount family stock now reside in Monmouth, Middlesex, and Mercer Counties; some settled at an early date in Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana, and there are also prominent families of the name in Lousiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Arkansas, and on the Pacific coast, all of whom had their origin in New Jersey.

Members of this family have married into many of the leading families, past and present, in the counties of Monmouth, Middlesex, and Mercer, including the following: Applegate, Barclay, Bayles, Bergen, Britton, Brokaw, Burtis, Compton, Combs, Cook, Covenhoven, Cox, Craig, Coward, Dey, Ely, Emmons, Forman, Gordon, Hartshorne, Hendrickson, Herbert, Holmes, Hutchinson, Job, LaRue, Lawrence, Longstreet, McKee, Moore, Newell, Perrine, Reed, Rhea, Schenck, Silver, Slack, Smith, Stillwell, Stout, Taylor, Tice, Throckmorton, Tilton, Truex, Vannest, VanCleve, VanWykel, Veghte, Voorhies, Wikoff, Wilson, Woodhull. The family ramifications have extended so widely that no attempt has here been made to give all the branches.

From researches furnished by William B. Mount, Philadelphia, Pa. 4224 Spruce St., who requests more information from members of this family. (Compare p. 443.)

The first of the name to settle in New Jersey was George Mount, one of the original purchasers of Middletown, Monmouth Co., from the Indians in 1665. George Mount bought land jointly with Benjamin Borden, who came from Rhode Island, so it is probable that he also came from the same locality. George Mount was one of the founders of the First Baptist church of Middletown in 1667. He was also deputy to the first General Assembly, held at Portland Point, 1668.

George Mount d. 1705 md. Katherine ——— & had at least 3 chldr:

MATTHIAS. RICHARD. KATHERINE.

Matthias Mount of Middletown, s. George, d. 1695 md. Mary ——— and had chldr:

MATTHIAS. THOMAS.

Richard Mount of Middletown, s. George also owned land on Cranbury Creek, Middlesex Co. He d. 1715 md. Rebecca ——— & had chldr:

RICHARD. GEORGE. Probably JOHN was also his son: the will of this John Mount is dated 1772, he mentions chldr. John, Catherine, Phebe, Alice; grandchild: Cloe, daughter of John and grandchild; Joseph, son of Matthias, deceased.

Matthias Mount (Matthias, George) of whom little is known, excepting that mention is made of him in the will of his grand-father George Mount. It is probable that he either md. a Presbyterian or became a member of the Presbyterian church, for the names of 3 men, supposedly his sons, were prominent in the history of the early Presbyterian churches of Tennent and Cranbury: these were:

MATTHIAS. HUMPHREY. NESBIT.

Thomas Mount of Shrewsbury (Matthias, George) had 4 chldr:

SAMUEL who moved to New York and became the ancestor of the Mounts in that city. He md. Margaret dau. of Adam Dobbs & had 5 chldr. Adam, Joseph, Frances, Thomas, & William. MARY b. May 31, 1715 d. Nov. 24, 1800 md. Joseph Cox: she was the mother of Brigadier General James Cox of the Revolutionary Army, and great grand-mother of Samuel Sullivan Cox (known as "Sunset Cox") who was a member of Congress, and United States minister to Turkey. JAMES who had at least 2 daus. Patience & Letitia. JOHN who had chldr. John & Timothy.

Matthias Mount of Cranbury (Matthias, Matthias, George) b. 1706 d. 1791 was ruling elder in 1st Pres. church of Cranbury for nearly 50 years: md. Ann ——— b. 1719 d. 1792, both bur. in 1st ch. cemetery at Cranbury: had chldr:

RACHEL bap. in Old Ten. JOHN bap in Old Ten. HUMPHREY bap. July 13, 1746 in 1st ch. Cranbury. THOMAS. ANN. Probably JOSEPH.

Humphrey Mount of Middlesex Co., N. J. (Matthias, Matthias, George) still living in 1752, had 4 chldr. bap. in Old Ten. ch:

BRITTON 1731. DORCAS 1734. MARY 1736. WILLIAM 1739.

Nesbit Mount of Middlesex Co., N. J (Matthias, Matthias, George) d. 1757 md 1744 Mary Hay, & left 5 chldr:

Two of whom MARY and ANNA were bap. 1747 in 1st ch. of Cranbury.

John Mount of Cranbury (Matthias, Matthias, Matthias, George) b. Apr. 12, 1743, was ruling elder in 1st ch. Cranbury from Oct. 14, 1802 until his death 1804, md. 1st 1764 Hannah Freeman, md. 2nd Anne Toms. His children were:

ANNE b. 1771. JOHN b. 1786. JAMES. HANNAH md. John Mount s. Hezekiah.

Humphrey Mount of Cranbury (Matthias, Matthias, Matthias, George) was a ruling elder in 1st ch. Cranbury from Dec. 12, 1792 until his death Sep 27, 1801: on his tombstone in cemetery of 1st ch. Cranbury is this inscription.—"From this cold bed of humid clay, Reader to thee I cry, The time is short, make no delay, Prepare, prepare to die." He md. Abigail Bayles, & had 6 chldr:

HUMPHREY. DANIEL. SAMUEL. JOHN BAYLES. MARY. ANNA.

Thomas Mount (Matthias, Matthias, Matthias, George) moved to Virginia and became the ancestor of many who have been prominent in Virginia and throughout the South.

Joseph Mount (probably Matthias, Matthias, Matthias, George) b. about 1750, lived near Cranbury, N. J. md. Mary Bayles dau. John, & had 9 chldr.

JOHN b May 10, 1777 md Elizabeth Smith, moved to Trenton, N. J. WILLIAM. MARGARET md. Jonathan P. Burroughs MARY unmd. ANNE b. Dec. 20, 1790 bap. Mch. 17, 1791 at Cranbury ch., md. Frederick Coxe. SARAH md. Gerrit D. Stryker. SUSAN unmd. AMY md. William Webster. EUPHEMIA unmd.

Matthias Mount b. 1729 d. 1807 is probably a son or perhaps a nephew of Matthias (Matthias, Matthias, George), their graves are side by side in the 1st ch. cemetery at Cranbury. This Matthias was a ruling elder in the church from Dec. 12, 1792 until his death Dec. 22, 1807: he md. Margaret ——— & had 4 chldr:

JOHN ELIJAH. HANNAH md James Barkley. LYDIA md. William Perrine.

From a paper prepared March 2, 1905 by Daniel T. Hendrickson, Englishtown, N. J.

THE HENDRICKSON FAMILY.

Much more than the following could be written, had the writer time at his command in which to carefully read old deeds, wills, records, and bibles in possession of the family. The authorities for this paper are:— some of above records, historical records in Archives of Holland Society of N. Y., The New York Historical Society, and records from tombstones in the old family burying grounds.

(1) Rutger Hendrikse, said, through a younger branch, to be descended from that staunch old Mediaeval knight and Crusader Baron Henry of Nyddeck was md. to Gennetje Beeckman at Cologne, Germany in 1470. To this union there were born 1 s. and 2 daus. This son, Barent, was b. in Irland, a Westphalian town near the Netherlands border in 1482. I have been unable to find any record of the daus.

(2) Barent Hendrickse md. in 1524 Neeltje Evertson. They had 4 chldr., 3 of whom d. in infancy; the other, Lambert, who engaged in a sea-faring life, became a famous admiral in the Dutch navy, and was a trusted friend of William the Silent.

(3) Lambert Hendrickson, called in Motley's History of the United Netherlands "Pretty Lambert," md. a woman of Spanish extraction, the dau. of Manuel y Nadal an officer in the army of the Duke of Alva, yet a friend of the Dutch patriots. Of their 3 daus. no complete record can be found, but one son Daniel lived at Scrool in Holland and was the father of that Gerrit who came to America in the ship St. Jean Baptiste and landed at New Amsterdam in May 1661.

(4) Cornelis, the elder s. of Lambert Hendrickson was b. at Utrecht in 1572, became a navigator and was the first white man to set foot on the soil of Pennsylvania and West Jersey. He was the discoverer of the Raritan and Schuylkill rivers, and explored the Delaware to the falls at the present site of Trenton. During the latter part of 1614 he explored the coast of New Jersey in the yacht "Onrest," the first vessel built in New Amsterdam. This vessel was first sailed by Captain Adraien Block. Full accounts of Capt. Hendrickson's voyages can be found in O'Callaghan's & Brodhead's Histories as well as in the records of the N. Y. Historical Society.

(5) Daniel, the eldest son of Capt. Cornelis Hendrickson & Sonnetje Rutger his wife was born March 4, 1605 in Utrecht. He md. Emma Van Guelder and had 7 chldr., one of whom, Hendrick, removed to the ancestral home, Irland in Westphalia.

(6) Hendrick Hendrickson b. 1636 md. Jane Luitgirt. Though he prospered at home, yet he sold his property and with his wife and household goods he crossed the ocean to the new world and bought a farm at Flatlands, L. I. He sailed in the ship Rosetta and landed at New Amsterdam in March 1663. In 1664 his name is found as a soldier enrolled under Gov. Peter Stuyvesant who resisted the English occupation of New Amsterdam. To this union 2 sons were born, Hendrick and Daniel.

(7) Daniel Hendrickson was born at Flatlands in 1673. He md. Eversie (?) Gibbonson [Giberson]. He came to Monmouth County in 1693 and purchased those farms just west of Middletown which are now owned by the descendants of the late Hon. Wm. Henry Hendrickson. Daniel Hendrickson was the first Dutchman to hold the office of High Sheriff of Monmouth County; he was appointed by Queen Anne in 1707. Daniel Hendrickson was the father of 11 chldr: Catherine, Ann, Mojke, Sonnetje, Tuniche, Ghesie, Hendrick, Daniel, Cornelius, John and William. Mojke md. —— Wyckoff. Sonnetje md. —— Johnson. Tuniche md. Jonathan Holmes. Ghesie md. Ruliff Schenck. John was ancestor of late John Lloyd Hendrickson & Chas. I Hendrickson of Middletown. William was a bachelor & owned & died on what is now the Capt. Jas. Grover Taylor farm. The other children except Catherine and Daniel married & removed to Upper Freehold & Marlboro Twps. & to Burlington Co. Catherine never md. & d. at home. Daniel Hendrickson was a Captain in King William's war and took part in the capture of Port Royal. He d. at Middletown in 1760. His 2 sons in-law, Jonathan Holmes & Ruliff Schenck were his executors.

(8) Daniel Hendrickson, youngest s. of above Daniel was b. in the old homestead at Holland neighborhood, on the road from Middletown & Holmdel on Jan. 5, 1723, md. Catherine Cowenhoven, Dec. 22, 1743 & died June 24, 1788. This Daniel was a quiet, prosperous farmer and so active in church work that he was known as "Dominie Dan'll." He was highly educated and somewhat of a musician and an artist. A portrait of him, painted by himself is now in possession of the family of the late ex-Senator Wm. Henry Hendrickson He was the father of these chldr.—(a) Daniel D., grandfather of the late Hon. Wm. B. Hendrickson. (b) Cornelius. (c) Hendrick, grand father of the late Hon. Wm. H. Hendrickson. (d) Catherine.

(9) Cornelius Hendrickson, b Aug. 28, 1747, md. Lydia, dau. of Cornelius Vanderbilt and aunt of late Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt (b. Stapleton, S. I. 1794 d. 1877) founder of the famous Vanderbilt family, Mch. 24, 1784, & d. Oct. 10, 1802. They had chldr.—(a) Daniel C. (b) Margaret md Daniel Herbert and was mother of Daniel & James Herbert of Rhode Hall, Middlesex Co , & of the late Hendrickson Herbert of Manalapan. (c) Catherine md. Humphrey Tilton.

(10) Daniel C. Hendrickson b. Jan. 11, 1785 md. Deborah Tilton, sister of above named Humphrey Tilton, Jan. 12, 1813, & d. Sep. 7, 1863. They had chldr.—(a) Cornelius b. Apr. 17, 1814. (b) Daniel T.

(11) Daniel T. Hendrickson b. 1822 md. Deborah Ann Morris, dau. of the late George W. Morris, Sr. of Middletown in 1844 & d. by a fall from his hay mow Mch. 26, 1857. From data furnished by Adrian S. Appleget, Counsellor-at-law, Cranbury, N. J., and from notes by James Steen, Counsellor-at-law, Eatontown, N. J.

There were at least two different Anderson families, but the one most prominent in Monmouth Co. was of Captain John Anderson, who was captain of the ship "Unicorn," and engaged in the Scottish expedition to Darien (see Steen's "New Aberdeen &c." pp. 14 and seq.): according to a family tradition he was captain of the "Caledonia," see p. 13. He was a brother to Rev. James Anderson, first pastor of Wall St. Presbyterian church New York City, ("old First"). He was b. in Scotland 1665 d. Mch. 28, 1736 md. Anna dau. HERBERT.

Francis Herbert, the first of the family in Monmouth is claimed to have been a grandson or great grandson of Philip the 4th Earle of Pembroke, England. His mother, Bridget Herbert, and himself and possibly one or more brothers were in Monmouth before 1671, & Bridget rented a house from Edward Smith of Middletown in that year. It is possible that his father's name was Walter Herbert, and that Walter Herbert, who was licensed to marry Mary Barnes in New York Aug. 14, 1678 was his older brother.

Francis Herbert d. between Sep. 13 & Nov. 25, 1719 md. Hannah Bowne dau. John, & had 7 chldr:

THOMAS. FRANCIS. SAMUEL. OBADIAH. ELIZABETH. BRIDGET. MARY.

Thomas had 131 acres granted him in 1676 and 132 in 1677 (possibly a regrant); from 1695 to 1698 he was tax collector of Middletown township.

Obadiah Herbert, s. Francis & Hannah, md. 1729 Hannah Lawrence dau. Wm., & had 8 chldr:

Almira Clapp, lived at Truxton, N. Y.

Lewis Mc Knight, s. Wm. & Sarah, d. Aug. 18, 1810, was a Private in Capt. Hankinson's Co. in Revolution: he was the founder of Long Branch N. J., as a watering place, having begun business there in 1790–91, he is buried in Christ Church graveyard in Shrewsbury.

Joseph Mc Knight, s. Wm. & Sarah, was a Private in the Revolution; he is buried in Old Tennent cemetery.

TRUAX.

Truax, Truex, de Truex, du Trieux. This family, which would from the use of the prefix "de" or "du" in the early records seem to have been of French (and probably Huguenot) extraction, was founded in this country by Philip du Trieux, who settled in New Amsterdam about 1621. His second son Jacob, who was bap. in the Dutch Church in New York Dec. 7, 1645, was the first of the name to settle in Monmouth Co. April 14, 1682

he "took up" 130 acres of land in what was then Freehold township, between Swimming River & Holmdel. His oldest son was named Philip, and some of his descendants inter-married with the Craigs, Johnstons, and Van Kirks. John Truax (see p. 220) was the father of Roelef bap. Aug. 25, 1735 & had a M. L. Jan. 26, 1761 to marry Mary Johnston, both of Freehold.

CRAIG.

[To the following Craig genealogy by James Steen, notes have been added by the late R. Perrine Craig, by Mr. & Mrs. John W. Craig, Tennent, N. J., and by others.]

Not the least among the first families of Monmouth were the Craigs. Intermarriages at an early date into the Anderson, Crawford, Forman, Kerr, and other Scotch and Scotch-Irish settlers, has transmitted the line of the family so extensively that the descendants to-day of John Craig, the 1st, are to be numbered by the thousands.

Among the settlers, imported by Lord Neill Campbell, as of December 1685, and some of them by the ship "Henry & Francis," were John Craig, Archibald his s., and a James Craig. The fact that Lord Neill Campbell also had a s. Archibald, may imply a relationship between the Campbells and the Craigs. And indeed it had been quite natural for some of his kinsmen to have been among Lord Campbell's "settlers." An Andrew Craig is also of record as being "imported in Oct. 1684 by John Forbes," but the degree of kinship is as yet unknown to the writer.

John Craig (1st) was granted on June 11, 1690, 150 acres in Middlesex Co. by George Keith. He took quite a prominent place in the province, and on Nov. 2, 1692 he was returned with John Barclay as a member of the Assembly from Perth Amboy. On Dec. 9, 1695 he purchased of William Dockwra of London, or of John Reid, Dockwra's attorney, a lot of land at "Topinemes" on the Northeast of Spotswood Brook. He was then a resident of Middlesex Co. This on April 10, 1702 he (still of Amboy) sold to his s. Archibald. A few weeks before James Craig had purchased a neighboring tract of land, as was natural if James were indeed, as has been supposed, a bro. of Archibald's. John's name is first in 1705 of the committee applying to the Court for the registration of Scots meeting house (see p. 28) and he was probably then living in Monmouth. His sons Archibald and James are associated in the purchase of the dock or wharf site on Matawan Creek in 1700, and his s. Archibald is a grantee in the deed June 1, 1727 for Old Scots lot (p. 32).

John Craig & his w. Ursula had chldr:

JAMES. ARCHIBALD. URSULA.

We will not here follow the descendants of Andrew Craig (of 1684) nor of James Craig (s. John). (An Andrew Crawford also appears in the Old Tennent records as having a dau. "Ursilla" bap. see p. 208). One or two of the "Craig" baptisms in Old Ten. records seem not to be in the line of Archibald, but are probably in the line of James Craig (s. John) as Andrew (of 1684) settled in Middlesex, and is believed to have been the ancestor of the Craigs of Somerset Co.

Archibald Craig (s. John) d. Mch. 6, 1751 aged 73 yrs. his will probated Apr. 24, 1751, md. Mary ———, d. Nov. 1, 1752 aged 69, both bur. at Old Scots, they had 10 chldr:

He appears to have been the one who was an owner of slaves (compare p. 224, 227). An interesting letter concerning the sale of a slave is still preserved by the descendants of James Herbert of Freehold, a copy of which is here given: "Maidenhead Augt. 25, 1778. Mr. James Herbert, Sir: Your Negro boy Jacob Applyed to me yesterday to purchase him. I am in want of a Good Servant and if you can Concientiously recommend him to me as Honest, Sober & Industreous, I will buy him of you. I have asked the Servant your price, he tells me you will take for him what you gave about two months past which is somewhere about £280 .. 0 .. 0 its a Large price but as the Servant seems willing to stay with me if you can give him the above recommendation I will nevertheless take him. You may therefore in that Case send the boy to me immediately, and Send or come for the Money and I will likewise allow you the expense of Comeing for it. I am Sir Your Hum. Servant Archibald Mercer. N. B. I live at Maidenhead on the place Wilson Hunt formerly lived on." Maidenhead is now Lawrenceville. Slaves were owned by many of the Old Tennent people, and were baptized and received into the communion of the church (see Bap. Lists). James & Elizabeth Herbert had 7 chldr.
